Far Out, Upon the Desert
Why Do We Waste Life
Salt Stays in the Ocean
Vitamins Replacing War

By Arthur Brisbane

HODGE, CAL., Nov. 25—To stop worrying about superfluous things, and realize how little is necessary, come to this desert country, 2300 feet above sea-level, 70 miles back from the Pacific ocean. You will not "make money," in the usual meaning of the words, and if you make a bare living you will work hard for it. But you will have more of real life than anybody slaving in an ant-hill city.

The wide, level desert stretches in every direction, with mountains of many colors on the horizon, a most beautiful sky and glorious sun above, not a cloud as big as your hand in the bright blue. The cow gives five gallons of rich milk, living on alfalfa, grown beside her, under irrigation. A good horse is ready to take you anywhere on four or five thousand acres of desert land, and a million more acres adjoining.

Ten acres are enough, and you can buy them from the government or the Southern Pacific Railroad for $10 an acre, and less. You sit here, as isolated as Robinson Crusoe, with telephone, radio, newspapers from Los Angeles, telegraph office within reach, power of a little private, quiet world within a big noisy world. And you wonder why you ever played the fool's game in life, borrowing millions to erect tall buildings and worrying about renting and paying for them, doing ten thousand things, unnecessary.

Nearly all that we do is a waste of life. But we must live at least 50 years to know that, and then it is too late to change and live sanely. Your buildings are there, and your taxes, your lawyers, your corporations, and, like Frost's farmer that yoked himself up with the bull calf, you must go along.

There will be no cessation of population growth on this Pacific Coast until the saturation point is reached. That, fortunately, is far off, for airplanes will make town lots of Pacific Coast mountain tops now bare, and this desert, far from movies and soda water fountains, will be safe many a year for those that like solitude and are unlike Schopenhauer's "Negroes that cannot get enough of one another's snub-nosed company and like to crowd. I am told, 50 in one small room."

Population on this coast MUST increase without ceasing as salt increases in the ocean, almost twice as salty now as when our ancestors lived in it hundreds of millions of years ago. Salt, once it gets in the ocean, CANNOT get out, for only pure water is lifted by the sun's rays. Human beings, when they get into this beautiful country-perfect climate and atmosphere of genuine democracy, WILL not leave it.

Gerard Murray of the Los Angeles Auburn-Fulter Co., who rushes you up the Cajon Pass, 4000 feet high, at 70-miles an hour, in a Cord car, tells you as a favor that THIS is the time for you to buy a house out here.

"You can get as fine a house as any man wants for from five to eight thousand dollars, and for as little as one hundred dollars down."

He is from Wilmington, Del., his wife from Ohio. Will they ever go back? "We shall never live anywhere but here. There isn't any other place fit to live in."

He speaks for a million others, in Los Angeles alone, and if you say that you like a cold winter and feel that the Pacific ocean is too far away, they pity you.

Come out for the Olympic games, next year, if you like excitement with your travels. California is widening highways for the automobile rush, railroads are making special preparations. Be able to say, when you reach Heaven, "Yes, I saw the earth, at least all of it that is really important, the UNITED STATES from one ocean to the other.

Other states may learn from California that in addition to being useful good roads actually pay. The population of this state, only one-quarter of the population in a 25-mile radius around New York city, was enriched during the month of October by $3,241,000 from gasoline taxes alone. The public schools of this state are a great-

Release These Funds to Those Who Need Them

Some sound and economically correct method should be worked out by the State or by the banking system of Boston whereby depositors in the institutions which have been closed to conserve their assets may get a portion of their money if they wish to withdraw it for urgent needs.

All, or practically all, of such comparatively few institutions as have been taken over by the State have been pronounced sound. Ultimately, therefore, the depositors will receive their money back.

But this does not help those who want their money now, either because of emergency, or because of the Christmas shopping season.

The Evening American hears many stories that loan sharks are preying upon depositors, loaning money on their pass books, but charging an illegal and exorbitant interest rate. This is grossly unfair, particularly because the banks of Massachusetts are fairly bulging with idle millions of dollars.

Our boasted banking system certainly is not functioning when such conditions are permitted to continue.

Perhaps our alert merchants can work out a plan whereby credit would be given on the pass books, thereby proving themselves public benefactors and at the same time showing themselves to be better bankers than the bankers themselves.

To a layman, several plans for solving this unhappy situation seem feasible. Common sense might offer a solution where intricasies of banking procedure prevent it.

Retail Men Fight New Parking Plan

Representatives of Merchants Strenuously Oppose Curley's 12-Hour Project

The retail trade board of the Chamber of Commerce, heading bitter opposition forces, took steps today to prevent Mayor Curley's alternate parking plan, which was tentatively adopted by the Traffic Commission, from being put into effect.

The board, which represents Boston's largest stores, characterized the system as one that will create traffic chaos, new fire hazards and new dangers for the pedestrian without aiding the present situation.

At a special meeting a committee of the board voted to petition the Traffic Commission for a public hearing.

At the same time, the merchants' representatives urged adoption of the special plan for traffic control during the holidays as proposed by the board and the civic bureau of the chamber ten days ago.

LAWYER HELD IN AUTO 'FRAUD'

Dominick Leslie DiCicco, 26, Boston and Medford lawyer, was arrested today in his Tremont st. office charged with larceny of $50 and forgery in two counts in an automobile accident claim.

The warrant, served by Police Inspector Frank Haggerty, names the Aetna Insurance Co. complainants, in addition to Charles Vinciguerra and Albert Beatrice, both of Malden.

The latter two retained DeCicco for a claim on an accident last April in which both were injured.

According to the charges, DiCicco later presented two releases and collected $25 for each on the claims. The company claimed later the releases were forged.

Officials said the arrest of DiCicco was the first of others that are to follow in the drive by the committee of lawyers, doctors and others appointed by Governor Ely to run down alleged fraudulent insurance claims.

Tariff in Effect; Ends Dumping

London, Nov. 25 (INS)—The new 50 per cent ad valorem tariff on manufactured goods went into effect today, bringing to an end the feverish efforts of importers to bring large quantities of goods through the customs before the higher tariff duties were enforced.

Board of trade figures showed that heavy increases in imports took place during October and the first part of November as it became clear abroad that Great Britain was to abandon free trade.

Hibben Mentioned for Senate Post

Princeton, N. J., Nov. 25 (I S)—John Grier Hibben, president of Princeton University it was learned today, is being considered by Governor Morgan F. Larson, of New Jersey, as a successor to the late United States Senator Dwight W. Morrow.

FIRE POST FOR HURLEY OF MARLBORO

Smith Is Named to Position of Commissioner of Labor and Industries

State Fire Marshal John W. Reth and Gen. E. Leroy Sweetser, commissioner of labor and industries, felt the axe of Gov. Ely today in a list of appointments announced at the State House.

Gov. Ely filled a score of more than 30 positions on terms that expire Dec. 1.

James M. Hurley of Marlboro was named to succeed Reth and Edwin S. Smith of Framingham, personal representative of A. Lincoln Filene, Boston merchant, to replace Gen. Sweetser.

All appointments are subject to approval by the Governor's Council at its meeting next Wednesday and they include an appointment that replaces Councillor Edmund Cote of Fall River as a trustee of the Bradford Durfee Textile School in that city.

LYMAN REAPPOINTED

Frank E. Lyman of Easthampton, commissioner of public works, was reappointed.

High in the list of surprises was the appointment of Mary E. Meehan of Boston as assistant commissioner of labor and industries to succeed Ethel M. Johnson. The two women were subject of much pressure for appointment by leaders of women's clubs.

Two new trial justices were included in the list; Harry V. Madden of Hudson to succeed Fred E. Morris, the later in office for 17

NOBLE BOY TELLS HIS STORY OF MURDER

EXCLUSIVE!

Copyright, 1931, by the Boston Evening American

The mysterious "truth" of the slaying of Mrs. Clara E. C. Ellis, wealthy Haverhill widow, last February by 17-year-old Russell Noble, as related by the curly-haired boy to Mrs. Glendower Evans, society philanthropist, was given to the Boston Evening American exclusively today by Mrs. Evans.

Young Noble told his story to Mrs. Evans, she said, at Charlestown State prison, where he is serving a life term as a result of his plea of guilty to second degree murder in the killing of Mrs. Ellis.

The boy, who went from his high school classroom to a prison cell, declared, according to Mrs. Evans, that he was invited to the home of Mrs. Ellis by the widow on the night of the crime.

SEEKS TO FREE BOY

He said he resisted advances that she made, and struck her, then took her watch and some money because he needed funds with which to pay a doctor for attendance on a girl friend.

Mrs. Evans, whose home is in Brookline and who figured prominently in the fight to save Sacco and Vanzetti, and who helped save Gangi Cero from the electric chair, said she would spare no efforts to obtain a commutation of sentence for the boy.

Young Noble, in telling his story reluctantly to Mrs. Evans and a lawyer, broke a silence with which for months he had shielded his victim, carrying his secrets even to prison.

He was the model boy of his community when news of the crime broke on an unbelieving city last spring. He confessed the killing and said his motive was robbery.

And in divulging his secrets to his wealthy woman friend, he still declared that he was asking no quarter—declared that he had killed, that he was sorry, that he was being punished and that he was willing to pay.

Mrs. Evans told her story at her home on Wellington ter., Brookline,

CHINESE HASTEN WORK ON DEFENSES OF CHINCHOW

FIERCE ATTACK BY JAPANESE IS FORECAST

Invaders Plan to Drive Marshal Chang's Army South of Great Wall

Edward Hunter, first neutral correspondent to enter the Manchurian fighting zone and first correspondent of any nation to reach the actual battle front on the Nonni river, is now touring the region south of Mukden, where new hostilities have broken out. Last night and this morning he visited Chinchow, 150 miles southwest of Mukden, which the Japanese are preparing to attack. Several hours later he arrived at Hsinmintun as the first Japanese troops reached that city. His dispatch about Chinchow follows:

By EDWARD HUNTER
International News Correspondent
Copyright, 1931, by International News Service

Chinchow, Manchuria, Nov. 25 (INS)—The remnants of Marshal Chang Hsueh-Liang's Manchurian army are making hurried preparations today for the expected offensive by the Japanese whose reported aim is to drive the last Chinese soldier south of the Great Wall.

With Japanese detachments reported approaching from the region of Mukden, Chinese soldiers are hastily throwing up trenches along the railway outside Chinchow. Cavalry patrols are active outside the city and Chinchow itself is thronged with soldiers.

GARRISON OF 30,000

Similar scenes can be observed in villages nearby, according to foreign observers just returned from an observation tour.

Gen. Yung Cheng, however, told International News Service that instead of the army of 100,000 to 200,000 men the Japanese claim he possesses in this vicinity he actually has "below 30,000 men."

Assisting Gen. Yung Cheng in the defense preparations is Gen. Mi Ching-Lin, who was director of the Mukden arsenal when the Japanese occupied the city and who fled to Chinchow with other associates of Marshal Chang Hsueh-Liang.

Military leaders admit the chance of resisting successfully a general Japanese attack is very slight but they intend to do their best. The Chinese garrison appears to be composed mostly of schoolboys, whereas the Japanese are well-trained and equipped.

Foreigners for the most part are leaving this ancient, dilapidated walled city, fearing more Japanese air raids as the action nears Chinchow.

PRIEST'S HOME BOMBED

A French priest, Father Prosper Cordon, showed me where a bomb had chipped the mantle in his home in the last Japanese air raid that caused such energetic Chinese protests to the League of Nations a month ago. The residences of a British mission group and of Dr. Thomas Fulton and Mrs. Fulton and Dr. Morris MacIntyre of the Irish Presbyterian mission, are nearby.

"This is nothing new to us," Dr. Fulton said. "We are used to fighting of all kinds since bandits have operated in this region on a large scale for the last 10 years.

"Nevertheless, their activities have increased enormously since the Japanese occupation of non-treaty areas in September."

It was Dr. Fulton's view that it would be "sheer madness" for the Chinese to attempt to defend Chinchow against a Japanese attack in force.

Foreign representatives here are baffled and have abandoned efforts to reconcile the actual existing warfare in Manchuria with the technical peace. I witnessed, for instance, an example of scenes which Chinese sympathizers tell me are frequently arising.

FATHER AND SON SLAIN

The scene was in the office of W. H. Steele, British traffic superintendent of the Peiping-Mukden railway. A middle-aged Chinese woman and her 12-year-old daughter were brought in weeping and took their place in front of the station master's desk.

Her husband, the woman said, and their 10-year-old son were walking the night before near the railway station at Hungkurun, the husband having been a minor railway employe. A Japanese sentry heard them and called out to them in the Japanese language. The boy became frightened and ran. The father ran after his son whereupon the sentry opened fire, killing both.

The mother has come to Steele's office to try to raise enough money for the double burial.

"They maintain that there is no martial law," said Steele, "but what do they call a thing like that. There is no use remonstrating."

MISSING GIRL ON WAY HOME

pursue the girl, according to Norma, his other three daughters, Norma, Clara, 13, and Ruth, 15, jumped on his back, and then the family dog, Tige, became excited and fastened his teeth in the father's trousers.

The quarrel was over Alberta's staying out late with older girls, Norma said.

According to Dorchester relatives, the girl said she would return home early today, but this afternoon she had not arrived.

"She has been in touch with us several times since she left home and the message that she would go home today," said Mrs. Hanley of 4 King st., Dorchester, whose son, John, is the husband of Alberta's elder sister.

NOTE TO FRIEND

Wide search had been started for the missing girl on the theory that she might have accepted a ride from a motorist after leaving home, and been kidnaped.

An alternative theory of suicide was abandoned earlier today when it was learned she sent a note to a friend, Marion Fisher, of 15 Fisher ave., Wellesley, Monday afternoon.

In this note Alberta wrote she was going to run away, that she might get married and that she had hidden some clothes at the home of a neighbor.

She also wrote that her father, Albert J. Winnier, who conducts an automobile business in Brookline Village, had forbidden her to see Miss Fisher, at whose home he found his daughter Sunday night, after she had left her own home.

IT'S NEWS TO DAD

Checkup was mad of the missing girl's boy friends after the note was revealed, and one of them was found to be absent from school today, but it was learned he knew nothing of her whereabouts.

"I have heard nothing from her and if she's on her way home, it is all news to me," said her father, when asked about the statement of the Dorchester woman at his place of business.

Gandhi Gives Up Hope of London Talk

London, Nov. 25 (AP)—Mahatma Gandhi today announced that since the round table conference had come to nothing he must go back to India and start his campaign of "non-violent non-co-operation" all over again.

"Notwithstanding the laudable efforts of some delegates to pump life into this corpse which we call a round table conference," he said, "I fear I must abandon whatever slender hope I ever had of obtaining a full responsible self-government.

NOBLEBARES 'TRUE' STORY

INVITED TO HOUSE

Coming down to the imprisoned boy's admission, she said:

"He told me that hi stroubles first began when he became involved with a young girl, whose name never has been mentioned in the case. He said the girl's condition became serious and to avoid bringing shame on her, he made arrangements with a doctor.

"He became pressed for money to pay the doctor and worried a great deal about how to raise it. He said that on the night of the murder he had bes ninvited by Mrs. Elli stq go to her home at 10 o'clock.

"He said he went there and that Mrs. Ellis after a while led him to her room and made advances and that he resisted.

"The boy admitted that he struck her and he said to me quite frankly, 'Yes, I killed her.' Then he said he seized the purse and the watch and fled from the house. Later he gave the watch over to the police.

"He told me that he had never told that story before, not even to his own brother. Late in the summer some people came to me with information indicating that there were a number of circumstances about the case of Russell Noble which had been guarded by him because of an agreement with certain persons.

"These circumstances, I was informed, might, if known, have some mitigating quality, although not entirely excusing him from thec rime which he had admitted committing.

PRAISED BY WARDEN

"Accordingly I visited him a few weeks ago with Atty. Reuben L. Lourie of 17 Milk st., who represents me in various other matters.

"We first talked with Warden Hogsett who spoke highly of young Noble and the character the boy had shown since he was locked up over there.

"We then interview the boy. With his blonde cury hair, his young face, he looked entirely out of place amid those sordid surroundings. He was pale but seemed in good health. I don't believe he yet fully realizes the life that faces him.

"Mr. Lourie sought to bring out certain details about the crime, but Russell was very reticent. Finally he said he did not like to talk it in the presence of a lady.

"I told him that if he felt that way I would leave, but that in my opinion he should feel no reticence on that he account. He finally began to talk, although very unwillingly. Under the kindly questioning of Mr. Lourie he then told his story."

Mrs. Ellis was found murdered in her bed on the morning of Feb. 27, last, her skull crushed in, and she never recovered consciousness although life lingered for about a week, with police waiting at her bedside for her to come out of her coma.

But long before she died, through the stolen watch, young Noble had been arrested and grilled, and had confessed.

HONOR BOY IN SCHOOL

He was not only the honor pupil in his high school class, but he was a Sunday school teacher and choir singer, and because his parents were dead, he was the choreboy for several Haverhill families. He also had mornnig and evening newspaper routes, and Mrs. Ellis was one of his customers.

Rumors of a mysterious man visitor at Mrs. Ellis' home on the night of the murder were denied by her friends, and police also took steps to eliminate these reports from the case.

The undercurrent of rumors only ended with young Noble's surprise plea of guilty to second degree murder in Superior court at Lawrence, which resulted in his life sentence.

From the beginning of the investigation to the imprisonment of the boy, his attitude amazed psychologists. State alienists examined him repeatedly before being satisfied he was responsible for his crime.

He was unruffled in his demeanor through all the questioning of police and alienists and during his appearances in court.

SHAPIRO, 'BAD MAN' OF BOSTON SHOT DOWN

Ex-Convict Wanted for Postoffice Robbery Dying After Brooklyn Shooting

Morris Shapiro, safecracker and "bad man," who jumped bail in Boston a month ago after being arrested for a Salisbury, Ct., postoffice safe robbery, is dying in a Brooklyn, N. Y., hospital after being shot down by a Brooklyn detective, according to word received in Boston today.

The safecracker, who has spent 19 of his 49 years in Sing Sing Prison, was shot down while fleeing from Detective Harry Beck, who had recognized him on Brooklyn Bridge.

Shapiro, according to the detective, made a move toward his hip pocket, but when the detective beat him to the draw, Shapiro fled. In the chase through Brooklyn streets three bullets struck the alleged yeggman.

Shapiro is wanted in Boston to answer a charge of robbing the Salisbury postoffice in November, 1929, when he is alleged to have stolen $421.61 in postage stamps, as well as 15 blank domestic money orders, 85 blank international money orders, and some postal savings drafts.

He was not apprehended until a month ago, and when he was bailed in several thousand dollars, he jumped the bail.

Postal Inspectors John Breslin and William Anderson left Boston today for Brooklyn to learn Shapiro's condition first hand and to bring him back here if he should recover.

3 IN VAHEY CAR CRASH ESCAPE

The automobile of Atty. James H. Vahey, Jr., of Boston, who lives in Clifton ave., Swampscott, was found wrecked early today against a telephone pole on Lynn Shore drive opposite King's Beach.

Investigation by Patrolman George Horton of Swampscott and metropolitan police revealed that shortly after the crash three persons hired a taxicab two blocks from the scene.

According to the taxi driver's report to the police they "looked as if they had been on a party."

Inquiry at the Vahey home met with the response by the lawyer that nobody was hurt and he would make no further statement.

Roxbury Woman Is Found Dead in Bed

Mrs. Elizabeth Thornton, 41, was found dead in bed today in a house in Camden st., Roxbury. Medical Examiner Timothy Leary said she died from natural causes.

Her husband, James A. Thornton, and her sister, Mrs. Margaret Munroe, live in Lenox st., Roxbury, according to police.

Hopes for Peace

William Richards Castle, Jr., under secretary of state, who came here to speak before the Harvard Club, declared today he doubted if Russia would become involved in the Sino-Japanese clash. He is hopeful the trouble is near an end.

Melvin B. Breath of Chelsea was named to succeed Bayrd as a member of the Metropolitan District Commission.

A. Lincoln Filene and Thomas H. Sullivan of Millbury were reappointed to the advisory board, department of education, as were Eva W. White and Mary A. Barr, both of Boston.

BOXING CHAIR UNFILLED

Other appointees are John H. Plunkett, chief inspector in the department of public safety (re-appointed); Thomas B. Bassett, John Goss, James A. Burke, Arthur B. Barnes and Frederick F. Bergeron, all of Fall River, trustees of the textile school, the latter to replace Councillor Cote.

The much-sought appointment to the boxing commission was not made today. Neither were appointments made to fill vacancies as associate commissioner of labor and industries, public utilities commissioner, bank commissioner, chairman of the board of parole, superintendent of public buildings and state inspector of fish.

Another board yet to be named is the new barbers' registration board authorized by the Legislature and due for organization January 1.

Rome Census Passes Million

Rome, Nov. 25 (AP)—This ancient capital of the Caesars is the first Italian city to attain 1,000,000. Census figures published today showed Rome has 1,004,028 inhabitants; Milan 993,496 and Naples 843,073.

Castle, in Boston, Warns U.S. Not to Be Pro-China

The position of the United States in the clash of arms between Japan and China is "solely pro-American," Under Secretary of State William A. Castle, Jr., said today at the Hotel Ritz Carlton.

After explaining the situation in the Far East, he declared the State Department was hopeful of a peaceful settlement, but at all events that it was America's duty and to its advantage to remain neutral.

Secretary Castle came to Boston yesterday and spoke last night at a private dinner at the Harvard Club.

DOUBTS RUSSIAN WAR

"We are still hopeful for an amicable settlement," he said. "We are hopeful that the League of Nations will make some proposal, accepted by both sides, that will allow of the progressive withdrawal of Japanese troops into their own zone and enable them to eventually adjudicate all questions which caused the trouble."

"How do you feel about Russia—do you think she will keep out of the mixup?" he was asked.

"That's pure speculation," he replied. "Personally, I'm not much worried about that angle. I should suppose Russia would be very careful about getting into any trouble—it is so far from its own base for one thing. Russia's interest there is the Chinese Eastern Railway and so far as we know it has not been interfered with.

CITES JAPANESE TREATY

"Japan is very dependent on its trade with China and with the admirable civil government Japan has I feel it will do its best to bring about a satisfactory settlement and peace.

"What we are trying to do is to be neutral—to be neither pro-Chinese nor pro-Japanese, but solely pro-American. It is to our advantage to be neutral.

"The Japanese have a right to be in Manchuria under treaty and have been having a hard time largely, probably because of lack of a strong central government in China and the Japanese army finally felt it had to straighten things out. In doing so they want beyond treaty rights."

JAPAN OFFERS COMPROMISE TO LEAGUE

Reserves the Right to Protect Her People in China With Troops

Tokio, Nov. 25 (AP)—The Japanese government today instructed Kenkichi Yoshizawa, its representative at Paris, to accept the League Council's Manchurian peace resolution with the single reservation that the second clause be understood not to preclude "such military measures as may be required for the protection of Japanese lives and property from bandits and other lawless elements."

The situation at Chinchow, reported here to be becoming gradually more threatening, prompted the reservation made at the 11th hour.

It applies to that part of the league resolution which calls on the Japanese and Chinese governments to order their troop commanders to take no initiative which might result in loss of life or fighting.

Japanese Capture Town 50 Miles West of Mukden

Pieping, Nov. 25—Japanese troops captured the towns of Hsinmintun, 50 miles west of Mukden on the Peiping-Mukden railway, this morning, disarming the Chinese police.

Yesterday's fighting between Japanese and Chinese in which there were many casualties was near Hsinmintun.

Small Nations in League Rally to Aid of China

Paris, Nov. 25 (AP)—Representatives of small nations in the League of Nations Council were reliably reported today to have assumed the role of champions of China in the Manchurian deliberations.

Spokesmen for these smaller countries were said to have accused the big powers of letting the League Covenant go to pieces by their unwillingness to exercise the coercive measures it provides.

Because of this new attitude, it was thought the Council would not be able to obtain adoption of any Manchurian measure that does not provide for the evacuation by the Japanese.

There was some talk that the United States was planning to call a conference of the signatories to the nine-power treaty if the League should fail to put an end to Japanese occupation of Manchuria.

Meanwhile the Council studied instructions from Nanking to Dr. Alfred Sze, the Chinese member. A private meeting was called for this evening.

Britain to "Safeguard" Her Interests in Manchuria

London, Nov. 25 (INS)—Any "practicable action thought necessary and desirable" to safeguard British interests in Manchuria will be taken, Sir John Simon, secretary of state for foreign affairs, told the House of Commons today.

"The principle of the open door for international trade in Manchuria is safeguarded by the nine-power Washington treaty," Sir John said. "The government attaches greatest importance to this principle and is bearing in mind the interests of British trade. No damage to British property or persons has resulted so far, and no special steps have been found necessary."

Thousands of Chinese in Riot for War on Japan

Shanghai, Nov. 25 (AP)—Demanding a declaration of war against Japan, more than 5000 Chinese students rioted here today, and wrecked the station master's office and held up all railway traffic until they were given five trains in which to go to the capital at Nanking.

At intervening stations they were joined by 5000 more students.

They also demanded China's withdrawal from the League of Nations and the execution of Chang Hsueh-Liang for failing to resist the Japanese invasion of Manchuria.

U. S. Favors Inquiry, While Allowing Japs to Remain

Washington, Nov. 25 (AP)—The American government is prepared to supports neutral commission of inquiry in Manchuria without consideration of the question of withdrawal of Japanese troops from areas outside the railway zone.

Reports to the State Department from official sources in the Far East have convinced Secretary Stimson that withdrawal of Japanese troops from many points would result in chaotic conditions.

This government's attitude was explained authoritatively today to be that only a cessation of hostilities should occur before a commission began its survey.

They were quietly married in the parsonage of the St. Paul Lutheran Church in Glenside, a suburb. A reception followed at the home of Mrs. Elsie Peter Bell, cousin of the bridegroom.

Ex-Governor Taylor Dies in Tennessee

Johnson City, Tenn., Nov. 25 (AP)—Former Governor Alfred A. Taylor, 83, for years one of the most colorful figures in Tennessee politics, died today at Appalachian Hospital here. The old political leader had been in ill health for some time.

Alfred A. Taylor

Taylor, a Republican, first attained national prominence when he ran for Governor against his brother, Robert L. Taylor, who later became a United States Senator.

Both brothers were renowned for their ability to play the fiddle and displayed their talent during campaign rallies.

er glory than its good roads, greater even than its football, tennis, swimming and other champions.

The news comes here by wire, telephone and newspaper. No escaping it if that is your fate, but it seems as uninteresting as an explanation of the Einstein theory by Einstein himself would seem to one of the small horned toads outside the window. Einstein is coming here again this winter, by the way, by boat, through the Panama Canal. Wise Einstein. He will live longer. Mayor Walker of New York has just arrived to help release from prison, if he can, Mooney, sentenced for a dynamiting crime and believed innocent by many.

The most important news deals with vitamin D. That news will be important while time lasts. One of those deep Germans, Prof. Adolfe Windaus of Berlin, has isolated the vitamin, a thing never done before, and actually has a fragment of it, in pure crystal form. Taken in excess, it is a poison. In proper doses it is necessary to life and normal growth. Poor rickety children with twisted legs and spines lack vitamin D. Other vitamins control various functions of life.

Deprive a rat, for instance, of one vitamin it will never have children. The future may solve important population problems, humanely, with the help of vitamin deprivation. For a million years "inferior" populations have been killed off in wars, massacres, famines and plagues. Some proud Nordics conclude to their regret, that the process should continue as long as necessary. But now no more massacring. Simply say to the inferior, undesired race, "No more of such a vitamin for your people. Hereafter enjoy yourselves while you may, for soon you will be done. Don't repine. Probably your souls will come back in improved Nordic bodies."

You admire nature's marvels more than ever when you read the solemn German savant's statement that three billionths of a gram of vitamin D will cure a child of rickets. That is more wonderful than California's giant redwood trees. Nevertheless, you should come and see those trees that were old trees when Jezebel was torn by the dogs.

CORRUPTION CHARGED AS QUIGLEY WINS OUT IN CHELSEA

Near Death

Tom Mix, cowboy film star, was reported near death today at a Hollywood hospital

MAE WEST QUITS ON JAIL THREAT

Washington, Nov. 25 (AP)—Mae West's play, "The Constant Sinner," was closed today as the result of a threat by Dist. Atty. Leo A. Rover to arrest the company if another performance were given.

Rover said his warning had been given upon information from his assistant that the "theme, language and postures" were objectionable and violated the law.

The show has been exhibited twice here. Rover's warning had been communicated to Eddie Rosenbaum, manager of the play.

Mrs. Cobb Plans Fight to Keep Her Children

WIDOW READY FOR CUSTODY ACTION

Confers With Lawyer After Rumors Reach Her at Mansfield

Mansfield, Nov. 25—Mrs. Emily Roberts Cobb, exonerated by a special grand jury in her husband's shotgun death, today declared she would resist all attempts which might be made to take from her the custody of her two small children.

The attractive young widow, who has remained at the home of her foster mother, Mrs. George F. F. Roberts, in South Main st., since her release from the Ducy Hospital, Brockton, declared that widespread talk regarding attempts to secure custody of the children had reached her ears.

CONFERS WITH COUNSEL

The son, Justin L. Cobb, 3d, is at present at the home of his grandparents, Mr. and Mrs. Justin L. Cobb, father and mother of the shotgun victim. The daughter, Justine, is being cared for at the home of friends of Mrs. Cobb.

Mrs. Cobb communicated with her attorney, John B. Mahar, regarding the persistent rumors. Mahar reassured her, she said, and promised he would help her in every way to keep the children

Discussing the situation today with a Boston Evening American reporter, Mrs. Cobb said:

"I have hesitated to say anything that might reflect on my husband's memory in any way or to hurt the feelings of anyone concerned. I am anxious that nothing should occur to add to our sorrow.

WILL FIGHT, SHE SAYS

"If any attempts are made, however, by anyone to obtain custody of either child, I shall fight it to the end No one can ever say I didn't care for them properly. At times it was difficult but, whatever the circumstances, I did my best. I can prove that if the need comes."

Mrs. Cobb said she had not seen or communicated with any of the members of her husband's family since the shooting.

Discussing the 11th hour discovery of the shotgun pellets and tooth which established that Cobb had committed suicide, Capt. Van Amburgh said:

"In this case the state was justified in beginning on the premise that Mrs. Cobb was guilty. The notes written by her husband charged her with firing the fatal shot. It is a source of great satisfaction to us that evidence was uncovered to show our first surmise incorrect.

CROWLEY SEEKS GRAND JURY ACTION

MacLeod, Second in Balloting, Will Oppose Ex-Mayor for Office in December

Fraud and corruption in the Chelsea primaries was charged today by Frank D. Crowley, defeated candidate, who declared he would go to Dist. Atty. Warren L. Bishop with his complaint.

Crowley finished third, being led by former Mayor Lawrence F. Quigley and Representative John W. MacLeod.

Men voted on dead men's names and on names of patients in hospitals, Crowley asserted.

"The city was full of repeaters and mattrass voters," he said. "I am going to bring the fraud and corruption attending the election to the attention of the district attorney and ask him to act.

"INSANE MAN VOTED."

"I was fighting the whole of the North End and the South End of Boston and Roxbury as well. Voters were imported from all those places.

"They voted on dead men's names and in one precinct voted on the name of a patient at Danvers State Hospital.

"Outside the polling booth of Ward 3, Precinct 2, I saw three men who I know live in Roxbury. They were going in to vote and I told them to get out of there or I would have them arrested.

"I am going to file a recount petition Friday morning and the recount may show a few things."

Crowley will also ask a recount, he declared.

Former Mayor Lawrence F. Quigley led the field of seven candidates by 1893 votes over the second place man, Representative MacLeod, who led Crowley by 239.

'PEOPLE'S VICTORY'—QUIGLEY

Crowley has until Friday night to ask for a recount. His partisans believe that a new tally would show errors sufficient to wipe out the difference separating him and MacLeod.

"My nomination is a victory for the people of Chelsea. I am happy and elated and highly gratified," said Quigley today.

Crowley was secretary to Quigley when the latter was mayor, and is now his arch-political foe.

TOM MIX FIGHTS FOR HIS LIFE

Los Angeles, Nov. 25 (AP)—Tom Mix, who has been a cowboy of real life, of the screen and the circus, was near death today from peritonitis that followed rupture of his appendix and an emergency operation.

Mix spent a fairly comfortable night, but his physician said it would be three or four days before the crisis is past.

"Everything is as well as can be expected under the circumstances," said Dr. R. N. Smith. "His iron constitution will go a long way toward determining the final outcome and he is putting up a courageous fight."

Todays bulletin said:

"We consider him to be in a most serious condition.'

Harvard Chinese Students Open Drive for War Planes

Harvard students are raising funds to buy planes for the Chinese army and bombs to be dropped on Tokio.

It isn't quite as bad as it sounds, but it's literally true, nevertheless, the Harvard Crimson stated today.

Chinese students at Harvard are to assist organizations all over the country in raising money for 2000 airplanes, some of which will be shipped to China immediately and others used for training purposes by the Chinese National Defense League, according to the university daily.

C. C. Liang, secretary of the Chinese Students' Club of Harvard, is quoted as authority for the Crimson story:

"If we can drop a bomb on Tokio our aim will be accomplished, for the houses in Japan are made of wood and would easily catch fire."

The plans include a nation-wide appeal to Chinese college students to learn how to fly and to those who already hold pilots' licenses to assist in teaching their countrymen.

Commenting editorially upon the plan, the Crimson says:'

5000 MAJORITY FOR TEXAS WET

San Antonio, Tex., Nov. 25—Richard M. Kleberg, wet, a Democrat has won the position of representative in Congress left vacant by the death of Henry M. Wurzbach, Republican. His plurality in the election yesterday was approximately 5000 votes.

In retrieving for democracy the desk that had been occupied by Wurzbach for 11 years, the lone star delegation once more becomes solidly Democratic.

C. W. Anderson of San Antonio, the Republican candidate ran third. Carl Wright Johnson, Democratic, of San Antonio, was runner-up to Kleberg.

Governor Said It, But It Proves He Was Wool-Gathering

Ann Arbor, Mich., Nov. 25 (AP)—Stewart H. Redner, University of Michigan law student, has a theory. He believes that public men do not hear what is said to them when they are introduced to common citizens. Stewart tested his theory on Gov. Wilber M. Brucker, in Ann Arbor to deliver a speech.

"I killed my grandmother today," said Stewart, as she shook hands with the Governor.

"I'm very glad to make your acquaintance," said the Governor. Later, Governor Brucker insisted he heard what Stewart said, but Stewart claims he proved his theory.

FARRELL, GOLF STAR, WEDS

New York, Nov. 25—Johnny Farrell, national open golf champion in 1928, and Miss Catherine Hush of Old Greenwich, Ct., were married in St. Joseph's Catholic Church, in Bronxville yesterday.

On Sunday Mr. and Mrs. Farrell, accompanied by Mr. and Mrs. Gene Sarazen, will leave on a wedding trip to San Francisco and the Hawaiian Islands.

The bride is the daughter of Mrs. Henry Jerome Hush of Old Greenwich, where she is prominent socially. She met Farrell early last winter at St. Augustine, Fla., where the golfer is winter professional of the St. Augustine Country Club.

She is a graduate of Notre Dame de Lourdes Convent, New York city. She recently was Farrell's partner in a series of educational motion pictures on golf subjects.

WOODS HUNTED FOR MILTON MAN

Unable to get bloodhounds today to search for James Dunican, 51, missing East Milton resident, police combed the woodlands in East Milton and hunted in and around the West Quincy quarries.

Application to the state game warden for bloodhounds met with the reply that there are very few in the state now, and it would be impossible to get these.

Detective Sergeant John Haley, who is in charge of the search, organized his assistants and Boy Scouts in several groups to carry on the hunt.

Dunican left a note for his sister, Mrs. Edward S. Cole, with whom he lived at 50 Projecta rd., and while the contents were not revealed, the authorities indicated that the message hinted at suicide. Dunican had been employed by the Metropolitan District Commission up to recently. Loss of work and fear of an operation are believed to have made him despondent.

Theater Must Be Cool for Rosa Ponselle's 'Artistic Death'

Hartford, Ct., Nov. 25 (INS)—There is a thing called "artistic temperament," but Rosa Ponselle, the Connecticut girl who made good as an operatic soprano, insists on an "artistic temperature."

It was drafty backstage at the Bushnell Memorial last night where Ponselle appeared in "La Traviata." Sensitive performers shivered and complained, but not Ponselle.

She had requested the management to turn off the heat some time before curtain time. Low temperature is essential to an artistic "death" in the final act, she said. It helps the shivering.

Weds a Count

London, Nov. 25 (AP)—Miss Muriel Mullins of Brooklyn, N. Y., was married today to Count Jean Orlowski, member of an old Polish family. Constantin Skirmunt, Polish ambassador, was best man.

MORRIS GEST IN SANITARIUM

New York, Nov. 25—Morris Gest, famous theatrical producer, is in an unnamed sanitarium in southern New Jersey today in the care of physicians and friends, following a mental collapse.

Samuel Gest, a brother, stated the producer for some months had been under the almost constant care of Dr. Jerome D. Wagner.

Prisoners Guarded During Fire in Jail

Paterson, N. J., Nov. 25 (AP)—Police reserves stood guard about the Passaic County jail ready to remove 119 prisoners early today while firemen extinguished a blaze which broke out in the finger-printing room.

The finger-printing room was wrecked, but there was no damage to other parts of the structure.

GRANDI RESTING AFTER PARLEY

New York, Nov. 25 (AP)—Dino Grandi, Italian foreign minister, found that there is rest for weary notables even in New York as he enjoyed the most leisurely period today since his arrival to confer with President Hoover.

His schedule included only a luncheon given at the Brook Club by Percy R. Pyne, 2d, and a theater party this evening with John W. Garrett, ambassador to Italy.

Out of a tiring round of work and pleasure there emerged today much speculation as to what he talked about at a luncheon attended by such an array of famous bankers as has seldom been gathered in one house.

The luncheon was at the home of Thomas W. Lamont, partner in J. P. Morgan & Co.

Present were J. P. Morgan, S. Parker Gilbert, Gates W. McGarrah, George F. Baker, Marshall Field, John D. Rockefeller, Jr.,

JOHNNY'S DOWN FAIRWAY—BEHIND CUPID

Johnny Farrell, former national open golf titleholder and rated as one of the best players in the world, slips the ring on the finger of his bride. She was the former Miss Catherine Hush. R. I. PROVIDES OWN RELIEF

Providence, R. I., Nov. 25 (AP)—Confirming a recent declaration to President Hoover that "Rhode Island will provide for its own," Governor Norman S. Case today informed the chief executive that the three community chests of the State had been oversubscribed and that the General Assembly in special session had appropriated $1,500,000 with which to make loans to cities and towns needing the money for unemployment relief during the coming winter.

Democrats, who yesterday fought vainly to remove the provision that the communities shall pay back their loans, today announced they would renew the fight at the 1932 session.

Court Declares Kingston Co. Broke

New Haven, Nov. 25 (AP)—F. E. Kingston & Co., defunct brokerage firm, was declared bankrupt in United States District court today after an 11 months' contest caused by the refusal of Donald Dunham of West Hartford, a partner, to admit the company's insolvency.

MR. GLAD FINDS BIG KICK IN BEING GLAD

Man Who Won Own Way back Now Happy Aiding All Those in Need

Cheers the Hungry With Free Lunches and Encourages "Guests" With Advice

New York, Nov. 25 (AP)—There's a kick in being glad!

Take for that the word of Mr. Glad, himself. On the corner of 42d street and Broadway, Mr. Glad today inaugurated his second winter of giving sandwiches and coffee to the hungry.

Mr. Glad is the head of a large and thriving sales corporation—that much was learned under seal of secrecy. His name isn't Glad.

"I took that name," he said, "because I am glad to have regained my health and glad to have regained the material possessions I once lost."

GAVE AWAY FARES

The name fits well, too, the ruddy, health smile that radiates from beneath his snow white and bushy hair. He is 57 years old, mild of manner—and brotherly.

He started being "Mr. Glad" last winter when he stood on a corner not far from his office and handed out nickels so that unemployed men might have car fare to look for work. For a long time, neither his friends nor his employes, not even his wife, knew about it.

When he began handing out sandwiches, coffee and gloves in addition to nickels, he had to have help. A few close friends were let in on the secret. Some of them will help him this afternoon between 4:30 and 8:30 o'clock to hand out a thousand sandwiches and as many cups of coffee that will be the initial supply, but more will be rushed to the scene if necessary.

Mr. Glad had intended to give away a thousand gloves also, but he decided to reserve them for later distrfibution because of the prevailing mild weather.

On Christmas Day of 1924 he was taken to a Chicago hospital with a liver ailment. He travelled the country over, and went through four operations in an attempt to stay his fast-ebbing health. He was finally discharged from a New York hospital on Christmas Day of 1926. His business was gone. He was broke.

He started in to regain his losses, in health and in business, and did. He weighs 180 pounds and again is properous.

With each nickel or each sandwich Mr. Glad hands out a little slip of paper telling enough of his own story to encourage those who are down. The slip also tells the recipients:

"Cheer up, brother. Every cloud has a silver lining. Keep up your nerve and everything will come out all right."

The men who get them keep them. Mr. Glad has yet to see one thrown upon the sidewalk.

Pastor Hears 'Voice of Christ' in Kindly Words of Mr. Glad

New York, Nov. 25 (AP)—People talk about Mr. Glad even to him, and don't know he is the person.

Once a friend, who knew his identity, heard the Rev. J. H. Stokes of Hartford, Conn., deliver a sermon on Mr. Glad. He procured a copy and brought it to him. Part of it said:

"I believe I can hear the Christ of two thousand years ago speaking again in New York city through the heart and mind of Mr. Glad."

FOG DELAYS 200 ON BOSTON SHIP

More than 200 passengers from New York aboard the Eastern Steamship liner George Washington, were marooned by dense fog off Wing Neck, in Buzzards Bay today.

A freighter, the Grecian, of the Merchants and Miners fleet, was also swinging at anchor in Buzzards Bay. The Grecian was due at the Northern ave. pier early this morning.

Officials of the Eastern line said the George Washington would reach Boston late this afternoon, and immediately take 450 passengers bound for New York for Thanksgiving.

Fire Lieutenant Injured by Auto

Fire Lieut. Thomas P. Lohan, 52, of Engine 29, was injured on Commonwealth ave. near Brighton ave., early today, while responding to an alarm, when he was struck and knocked down by an auto operated by William A. Griffith, of 135 Durant st., Lowell

He was removed to St. Elizabeth's Hospital, where he is suffering from a badly cut left arm.

$150,000 GRAFT CHARGED IN CAMBRIDGE

Charges of "bootleg rule" and graft of $150,000 to one policeman, rocked Cambridge today as a City Council investigation promised startling revelations in the "port" section.

For the second time in three years, Patrolman James D. Russell, route officer in Ward 2, is named target in a council order that demands his removal.

A scathing broadside by City Councillor Daniel J. Murphy of that section accompanied the order that was introduced by Murphy in last night's council session.

'TOO YELLOW' SAYS RUSSELL

Immediately, Patrolman Russell issued a burning defi of "Murphy and his gang" that amounted to a challenge against trouble while patrolling his beat tonight.

"I have not and do not now fear Murphy and his gang. I will be patrolling my route tonight on the first half in full view of all of them," Russell said.

"I do not expect any trouble from any of them because they are all too yellow to cause it. If they do, though, they'll get plenty."

Murphy reviewed the 20 years service of Russell as a constable and police officer and branded him "morally unfit" and one "who has massed a fortune of $150,000 from eight or ten rackets."

CHARGES "FRAMEUP"

He charged Russell conspired to cause his arrest with a Roxbury divorcee on the eve of election on charges that the councillor was later cleared of in Roxbury court.

Patrolman Russell, no relation of Mayor Richard M. Russell, of whom Murphy demands the investigation, branded Murphy's charges as false and disclaimed knowledge of the Roxbury arrest.

"If Murphy can find $100,000 in my name he can have it," the policeman said.

"He's just trying to get back at me because I broke up his gambling joint, the Murphy Club."

Mayor Russell, pleading that he did not have the official order, would not say today what steps he would take on it.

UP TO DISTRICT ATTORNEY

"Under the rules of the council, a motion for reconsideration of an order may be made within 36 hours. Orders passed Tuesday usually get to me Thursday but this week it will be Friday, due to the holiday," the mayor said.

"From what I read in the newspapers there seems to be a charge of corruption against Patrolman Russell.

"If there is such a charge and evidence is at hand to prove it, I think the proper authorities are Dist.-Atty. Bishop and the grand jury."

Informed of Mayor Russell's statement, Councillor Murphy said his only interest was the removal of Patrolman Russell from the Ward 2 district and "let others present it to the grand jury if they wish."

Dist.-Atty. Bishop denied comment until the matter reaches him officially.

Murphy scored the patrolman today for his charge against the Murphy club, pointing out that the club was still in existence and has never been the subject of police or court complaint.

"The club was given over to youths of the district for baseball, basket ball and football teams and there never has been a sign of liquor or gambling about it," he said.

Recalling his arrest in Roxbury at the home of Mrs. Louise Lapham Cotsonas, divorced wife of a Cambridge druggist, Murphy charged that Patrolman Russell and others "conspired" to stage the arrest on the eve of election and "succeeded in defeating me for the office over an opponent that I have beaten before."

Murphy was freed of a statutory charge a week ago when Judge Palmer in Roxbury court ruled the evidence "scant and insufficient."

Murphy also charged that Russell collected poll taxes illegaly from foreigners in the district; described an alleged beating he inflicted on a Canadian war veteran, and charged the policeman withheld an alleged court record from a civil service record in which, Murphy charged, Russell was fined $15 for the larceny of $1.

6 BANDITS ROB PARKED PAIR

While Thomas Savage of Roslindale, said to be a Boston fireman, was parked in lonely Paradise rd., Swampscott, early today with a Salem girl, he was held up by six young men, all armed, and robbed of $45 and his car.

The holdup men threatened to shoot the young woman if she made an outcry.

Not being acquainted with Swampscott, the couple walked three miles to Lynn police headquarters.

Boston Man Is Held as "Pants Bandit"

Schenectady, N. Y., Nov. 25 (AP)—Two men claiming residence in New England were in police custody here today as the "pants bandits" who lined up a group of men in a local speakeasy Dec. 5, 1930, collected $35 from them, and forced them to removed their trousers to prevent immediate pursuit.

They said they were Joseph McCarthy, 29, Pembroke st., Boston, and Edwin J. Smith, 40, of the Soldiers' Home at Togus, Me. Their cases were adjourned in policecourt.

GIVING THE NEEDY A CAUSE FOR THANKS

LESLIE ARMSTRONG JOHN MADDEN

DIVORCEE AND 4 MEN HELD

Salisbury Beach, Nov. 25—A flat tire today caused the arrest of an attractive Chelsea divorcee and her four male companions on suspicion of being members of a holdup gang that has terrorized storekeepers in three states.

Two of the men are alleged to have confessed to six holdups, four in Portland, Me., and one each in Saugus and Chelsea.

The flat tire was on a stolen automobile in which they were riding.

Patrolman Harry Wilmot saw the five grouped about the puncture and walked over to them to offer aid when he noticed one man drop a revolver into the rear seat of the car. He drew his own gun and placed the five under arrest.

They are Mrs. Josephine Cullinane Baldwin, 24, of Williams st., Chelsea, who told police she was divorced; Frank Ryan, 23, of Chelsea st., East Boston; George Kelley, 24, of White Plains, N. Y., and William Durke, 19, and Lawrence Donohue, 24, of Portland, Me.

They were taken to Amesbury and arraigned in district court before Judge Pettingill on the charge of misappropriation and held in $1000 each after pleading not guilty. Later they were returned to police headquarters here ot await the arrival of Chelsea and Portland officers.

JILTED, STONES GIRL'S HOME

Jilted by his girl friend, Charles Turgeon of Lexington st., East Boston, "got even" today by showering her home in White st. with stones, breaking a dozen windows, police allege.

The patrol wagon arrived while he was still engaged in pursuing his strange course of revenge, with the result that Patrolman Thomas Daley pursued him for a quarter of a mile, finally capturing him in an alley.

Police said Turgeon suspected Catherine Jennings of thinking more of somebody else than she did of him, that he went to her house and argued and was told she didn't want to see him any more.

Entire Family Is Found Ill in Home

Answering a sick call at the home of William Doten in Linwood ave., Newtonville, Dr. Francis J. Curtis, Chairman of the Newton Board of Health, discovered that the parents and two children, Muriel, 13, and Clare, 4, had been stricken with scarlet fever.

Arrangements were immediately made for the removal of the family to the Newton hospital. Before leaving the house the doctor discovered a small white kitten asleep under a kitchen table and made arrangements with the Animal Rescue League to care for the feline until the return of the family.

18 Blind Men Are Led From Flames

Columbus, O., Nov. 25 (AP)—Eighteen blind men were led to safety from the second floor of the adult training school of the Ohio Blind Commission when fire broke out today.

Mrs. Allie Brown, who had taken her blind husband to the school, was the only person in the building with unaffected sight. She led the march to safety.

$20,000 Estate Hinges on Baby's Heartbeats

Lincoln, Neb., Nov. 25 (AP)—Do heartbeats without breathing constitute life? A court has been asked to decide whether an infant whose heart beat 10 minutes, but who never breathed, was actually alive. Disposition of a $20,000 estate hinges on the decision.

'Spring' Ends; Holiday to Be Snappy

Well, you're going to get it—a nice, chilly, snappy Thanksgiving Day—after all these days of misplaced summer.

The temperature will tumble some time tonight, the weather man said, and may hit a minimum of 38.

It will be fair, however, with a few clouds slithering across a frosty sky while the boys punt this way and drop-kick that way on many a white-lined battlefield.

Therefore, so far as present indications go, you must eat your turkey while looking out the window, not upon snow-clad hills but upon the present faded, but budding fields.

Meanwhile, today opened muggy, with the temperature rising to 67 by 11 a. m. and the humidity 25 per cent above normal—making the fifth summery day in succession. The forecast for Boston and vicinity:

Fair and much colder tonight; Thursday fair and colder; moderate west to northwest winds. The minimum temperature tonight will be near 38 degrees.

MEDFORD ACTS IN BANK CLOSING

To speed up the reopening of the Medford Trust Co., seven Medford aldermen were appointed today to confer with Gov. Ely and Bank Commissioner Arthur Guy.

Headed by Alderman John H. Burke, mayor-elect, the committee will seek early release of $260,000 in Medford city funds now tied up in the closed bank.

Burke, who recommended the committee, predicted that continued tieup of the city funds would seriously affect the financial affairs of the city before another year.

Other members of the committee are James J. Nicholson, Robert P. Campbell, George P. Hassett, Robert N. Spofford, William H. Cheetham and Floyd T. Prescott.

The bank was closed six weeks ago by Commissioner Guy.

HICCOUGHS ARE HALTED BY TUBE

Aurora, Ill., Nov. 25 (AP)—The hiccoughs which annoyed John Weber, 60, for nine days, have been stopped, temporarily. The hiccoughing ceased yesterday after an anaesthetic had been administered and a rubber tube put into his stomach.

Dr. A. N. Kitempion, the attending physician said he could not say whether the tube or the anaesthetic, or the combination of the two, had produced the desired results.

Eight New Warships Voted for France

Paris, Nov. 25 (AP)—The Chamber of Deputies naval committee today approved a report recommending construction during 1932-33 of four second class cruisers, one destroyer, one torpedo boat in limited categories, one hydrographic craft and one river gunboat in the unlimited category.

These are all replacements of obsolete units. Former Minister of Marine Danielou said the total tonnage was 8000 less than the average yearly construction since 1922.

Today, in the real estate columns of the Classified Ads, you will find scores of opportunities for profitable investment.

APE BUYS BIG GAME TICKETS

"Rastus," a seven-year-old chimpanzee, which is host to the children of Boston at the R. H. White Co. this week, called on Mayor Curley at City Hall today and after purchasing 24 tickets for the Boston College-Holy Cross football game for the benefit of the jobless, attempted to eat them.

Mayor Curley snatched them from his visitor and "Rastus" became so indignant that he started to leave the mayor's office. Mayor Curley hastily apologized and after removing his red beret and bowing in forgiveness, "Rastus" returned to his duties at the store.

Somerville Mayor Fights Oil Permit

Declaring that Somerville's one municipal bathing beach is in danger of pollution from oil and gasoline residue, Mayor Murphy today requested the Board of Aldermen to refuse further applications for permits to store fuel oil in the city.

Application was filed yesterday for permission to store 15,000 barrels of fuel oil on property adjacent to the Ford Motor Co. plant.

Costs $20 to Cheat "L" Out of a Dime

Judge Joseph T. Zottoli in Municipal Court today fined Alfred MacDonald $20 for evading a fare of the Elevated, and was given two weeks to pay the fine.

MacDonald used a piece of cardboard cut the size of a dime, covered with tinfoil, and deposited it in a fare box. Officials of the company told Judge Zottoli that MacDonald had made a statement that he had 15 rides on trains by using slugs.

BIG LEAD IS WON BY QUIGLEY IN CHELSEA

The MacLeod-Crowley race was in doubt until the very end and was not decided until 7 a.m. when returns were finally completed in Precinct 2, Ward 5. Complete tabulation of figures from this precinct presented MacLeod with a commanding lead over Crowley.

Due to the closeness of the vote between himself and MacLeod, Crowley will demand that a recount of all votes throughout the city be made.

Quigley rode in on the crest of a wave of ballots which practically doubled the best efforts of his nearest contender and engulfed all previous records for a primary vote in the city.

Final returns had been completed from every precinct but one of the city's five wards and it was the vote in this precinct which decided Quigley's future opponent.

It was learned early today that the initial tabulation of votes did not check with the sheets listing the address of voters. Twelve votes more were reported cast than the number of names checked on the sheet.

Quigley and MacLeod were both notified by their followers regarding the situation in the precinct and both rushed to the polling place early today to watch the checkup.

The four other mayoralty aspirants ran far behind in the voting. Former Rep. William H. Melley had only a total of 1644 votes, while the other three candidates did not garner a total of 400 votes between them.

OTHER CONTESTS

These last three included the extra Crowley and Quigley, entered in the mayoralty race at the last minute, and Miss Mildred Young, 28-year-old Communist candidate for the mayoralty nomination.

Miss Young secured a scattered vote in the city's five wards while Charles F. Quigley was close behind her. William F. Crowley, the other candidate, took last place.

Sharp contests were recorded in two of the city's five wards in the battle for Ward Alderman nominations.

In Ward 1, Myer Pressman and John F. Burke led a field of eight candidates but were closely pressed by Andrew P. Murphy and Bernard Sullivan. Pressman led with a total of 452 and was followed by Burke with 394 votes. Murphy with 341 ballots and Sullivan with 301 were close behind.

Other unsuccessful candidates in this ward were Joseph Lopresti, George A. MacDonald, Charles Keglinski and Isadore Cohen.

HENDRY LEADS

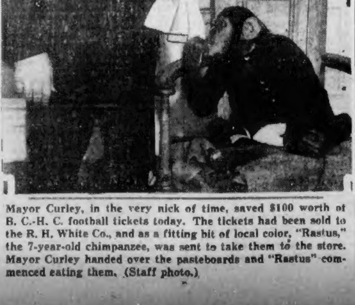
In Ward 2, Benjamin Schwalb, secretary to Mayor John J. Whalen, led the field of five candidates, with 643 votes. Robert Shienfeld, with a total of 588, was second, while Joseph Margolis, who put up a strong fight, dropped to third at the close with a total of 501. Abraham E. Schlager and Thomas J. Glynn, the two other candidates, were far behind.

William J. Hendry led with 1401 votes, while the other nominee, Frank Smith, was far behind with a total of 834. The defeated candidate in this ward was Patrick Cronin, who secured 696 votes.

Abraham B. Daniel and Leo Mayhofer easily led a field of six candidates for the two nominations in Ward 4. Daniel led with 675 votes, while Mayhofer secured 379. The other four candidates, far behind in the race, were Maurice Cohen, Joseph Locke, Aaron Cohen and Anthony Nigro.

In Ward 5 the aldermanic contest was undecided because of the lack of reports from Precinct 2.

$100 IN TICKETS A MEAL



Mayor Curley, in the very nick of time, saved $100 worth of B. C.-H. C. football tickets today. The tickets had been sold to the R. H. White Co., and as a fitting bit of local color, "Rastus," the 7-year-old chimpanzee, was sent to take them to the store. Mayor Curley handed over the pasteboards and "Rastus" commenced eating them. PARKING PLAN OPPOSED streets to the previous list of 14 exempted from the alternate system.

The newly exempted districts are Court sq. (at City Hall), Washington st., between Milk st. and Adams sq.; Salem st. from Hanover to Charter; Lynd st. from Green to Cambridge.

Police Commissioner Hultman, who is vigorously opposed to the alternate plan and has listed more than 200 streets on which he believes it will seriously endanger property and life, attended the private meeting and is understood to have made clear his opinion that almost anything would be better than the plan which seems destined to go into effect.

WHOLE THING A MUDDLE

The entire situation as regards the future parking rights of Boston motorists was in a muddle.

Although Traffic Commissioner Conry issued a statement in which he said Corporation Counsel Silverman had approved "in the main" the amendments that will make alternate parking effective, it is understood Silverman has reached no decision and probably will not make any decision known until the traffic commission meets again on Friday.

If the system is adopted, and apparently 10 days must elapse before such adoption legally may follow, there arises the problem of where the traffic commission will get the $6000 or $7000 believed necessary for new signs and new street markings to make the system clear to the motorist.

LIST OF ALL STREETS.

The commission has exhausted its funds for such a purpose.

Before it is made finally effective, the plan must also incorporate a list of all streets on which alternate parking is allowed, as well as a list of the exemptions, and it must be decided whether "all Boston streets" was meant to include just downtown streets on the intown side of Massachusetts ave., but all those in outlying sections as well.

Too, it hardly seems likely that the system will go into effect as originally planned, with the necessity of changing all parked cars from one side of the street to the other at 1 o'clock in the afternoon.

Such a course, at any time, but particularly during the Christmas shopping season, would cause a chaotic congestion of traffic and endanger the lives of shoppers, the retail trade board pointed out.

The trade board issued the following statement at conclusion of its meeting:

"A special committee of the Retail Trade Board of the Boston Chamber of Commerce acting for the Board, this morning went on record as being opposed to the alternate parking rule as proposed by the Boston Traffic Commission.

"At the same time it reiterated the statement of the Board issued on July 20 of this year which opposed the plan when first proposed at that time.

NEW HAZARDS

"The Retail Trade Board feels that the proposed alternate parking will not only create traffic chaos but will bring about new fire hazards because of the congestion in the streets during the coming holiday season.

"The change from one side of the street to the other at 1 p. m. will not only create traffic chaos, the board feels, coming as it does at the height of pedestrian traffic, but will serve to create new hazards for pedestrians.

"The board members feel Mayor Curley proposed the alternate parking rule in good faith and that they are sure he does not wish to do anything that would injure retail trade and create new hazards.

"The board will file a petition with the Boston Traffic Commission for a public hearing on the proposed rule in the belief that other interests who find the proposed rule objectionable will want to put forth their objections.

"At the same time the board will address a letter to the Boston Traffic Commission urging them to put in effect the special plan for traffic control during the holidays as proposed by the civic bureau of the Boston Chamber of Commerce in conjunction with the Retail Trade Board on November 16.

"The high lights in the plan proposed by the board and the civic bureau are the elimination of cruising taxicabs on Washington and Summer sts.; the painting of safety lines from Avery st. to Franklin st. on Washington st. six feet from either sidewalk to permit the overflow of pedestrian traffic; the elimination of all parking on Washington st. between Avery and Franklin sts. and the elimination of the left turn from Washington st. into Winter st."

CONRY'S STATEMENT

Conry, Hultman, Park Commissioner Long, John J. O'Callahan, representing Thomas J. Hurley for the street commissioners, and John F. Hurley, traffic department engineer, were present today at the traffic commission meeting behind closed doors in police headquarters.

Chairman Conry issued this statement when the meeting adjourned:

"The adjourned meeting of the Boston traffic commission was held at 10 a. m. today at police headquarters for the purpose of perfecting the rules of alternate parking.

"The report of the traffic engineer showed that he recommended four additional streets be exempted from alternate parking.

"The chairman reported the result of an interview with the corporation counsel with the statement that the corporation counsel had approved in the main the amendments to therules and that they would be all ready for formal adoption on Friday morning.

"It was further voted that the chairman be authorized to make such changes in the rules as adopted as might appear to be necessary under the emergency rule adopted on Dec. 4, 1930."

Conry would not elaborate upon his prepared statement and Commissioner Hultman would say nothing.

N. HAMPSHIRE SEEKS REFUND OF 6 MILLION

Concord, N. H., Nov. 25 (AP)—Renewed efforts to recover for New Hampshire $6,500,000, alleged to have been illegally collected by the Federal government from 1866 to 1868, inclusive, for taxes, will be made when Congress convenes.

Roland E. Stevens of White River Junction, Vermont, special counsel for Maine and New Hampshire, in claims against the Federal government, made this announcement today.

Stevens said it was hoped Congress would pass a joint resolution granting leave to file suit in Federal Supreme Court.

"The movement," he said, "is likely to be supported vigorously by Democrats and Republicans alike as it is neither a sectional nor party measure. More than $200,000,000 was collected from various states under an act of Congress which undoubtedly was unconstitutional."

He said Senator Henry W. Keyes in 1924 introduced a joint resolution asking leave to file suit in New Hampshire's behalf, but due to pressure of business it was not brought to a vote. Later, he said, Senator Stevens of Mississippi introduced a similar resolution, which was twice passed by the Senate but not concurred in by the House.

R. I. STANDS BY 4-PARTY PLAN

Providence, R. I., Nov. 25 (INS)—Rhode Island will continue to support the four-party plan of railroad consolidation in the East, as planned by the Interstate Commerce Commission, and will decline to join other New England states in a plan to intervene.

That was made clear today by Governor Norman S. Case, in a letter addressed to the Governors of Massachusetts, Connecticut, Vermont, New Hampshire and Maine.

The intention of the New England governors to intervene in the four-party plan was announced last week by Gov. Joseph B. Ely, of Massachusetts, following a meeting of the six chief executives in Boston.

In announcing his intention to remain outside the fold, Governor Case pointed out that "Rhode Island is unanimous in its support of the four-party plan and its application to New England. In addition, he said that more than fifty per cent of the larger industries and organizations throughout New England so far reporting have gone on record approving, at least in principle, this plan.

Violent Rebellion Agitated in India

London, Nov. 25 (AP)—Information received here today from India said agitation had begun for a campaign of violence, following indication that the round table conference here will probably end this week without a settlement satisfactory to the Nationalists.

The situation in Bengal is said to be especially critical and the Marquis of Lothian, undersecretary of state for India, declared in the House of Lords that in some Bengal districts every British officer is doing his duty in "deadly terror of his life."

Tax on Illegal Rum Is Upheld by Court

Chicago, Nov. 25 (AP)—The U. S. Circuit Court of Appeals upheld today the right of the Government to levy taxes on illegally distilled liquor, sustaining a $46,602 judgment awarded the Government against Ugo Ferroni, bootlegger of Peru, Ill.

Ferroni has served an 18 months sentence at Leavenworth penintentiary for violating the prohibition act.

Tin Plate Plants to Start on Full Time

Pittsburgh, Nov. 25 (INS)—Welcome Thanksgiving news was given to 3000 employes of the McKeesport Tin Plate Company today as officials announced that 44 mills would be placed on a full-time basis at midnight Sunday.

No extra employes will be added as the entire working force has been held intact through staggering and pro-rationing of work.

Stubborn Coughs Ended by Recipe, Mixed at Home

Here is the famous old recipe which millions of housewives have found to be the most dependable means of breaking up stubborn coughs due to colds. It takes but a moment to prepare, costs little, and saves money, but it gives real relief even for those dreaded coughs that follow severe cold epidemics.

From any druggist, get 2½ ounces of Pinex, pour it into a pint bottle and fill the bottle with plain granulated sugar syrup or strained honey. Thus you make a full pint of better remedy than you could buy ready-made for three times the cost. It never spoils and tastes so good that even children like it.

Not only does this simple mixture soothe the inflamed throat membranes with surprising ease, but also it is absorbed into the blood, and acts directly upon the bronchial tubes, thus aiding the whole system in throwing off the cough. It loosens the germ-laden phlegm and eases chest soreness in a way that is really astonishing.

Pinex is a highly concentrated compound of Norway Pine, containing the active agent of creosote, in a refined, palatable form. Nothing known in medicine is more helpful in cases of severe coughs and bronchial irritations.

Do not accept a substitute for Pinex. It is guaranteed to give prompt relief or money refunded.

Hoover Unable to Attend Games Here

President Hoover, according to word received here today, will be unable to accept the invitation of Mayor Curley to attend the Boston College-Holy Cross charity game tomorrow or the Stanford-Dartmouth game Saturday.

Mayor Curley had reserved seats for the President and others, who might accompany him, for both of these stadium games. The President is an alumnus of Stanford.

Mussolini Assures Business Freedom

Rome, Nov. 25 (AP)—Premier Mussolini today assured A. W. Robertson of Pittsburgh and New York, chairman of the board of the Westinghouse Electric Co., that the Italian government has no intention of restricting the legitimate activities of business in Italy and that there is no tendency to nationalize industry.

"The Italian people are feeling the depression," said Mr. Robertson, "but they are accepting the situation without panic."

William J. Kelly, of Brighton, Dies

William J. Kelly, 38, of Elmira st., Brighton, head of the Boston fire department's division steamfitting and station equipment work, died early today in the Cardinal O'Connell House, St. Elizabeth's Hospital. He was stricken with a cerebral hemorrhage Sunday

There will be a military funeral under the auspices of the Veterans of Foreign Wars Friday morning, with a requiem mass at 9 o'clock at St. Columbkille's church Brighton.

Mexico to Sue U. S. Over Two Slayings

Mexico City, Nov. 25 (AP)—Instructions were on the way to Mexico's embassy at Washington today, announcing Mexico's intention to claim damages from the United States for the slaying of two Mexican students at Ardmore, Okla., by two former deputy sheriffs.

The deputies have been acquitted of the murders. One of the slain youths was a cousin of President Ortiz Rubio.

Snell Refuses to Take "Bad Luck" Chance

Washington, Nov. 25 (AP)—Representative Snell may not be superstitious, but—a ladder's a ladder.

The New Yorker was boarding an elevator at the capital before which workmen had set a large stepladder. He walked carefully around it remarking, "There's no use taking any chances."

Snell is in a close contest with Representative Tilson for the Republican nomination for speakership of the House.

Lindy to Fly Giant Plane Back to Miami

Colon, Panama, Nov. 25 (INS)—Carrying 18 passengers, the giant Pan-American Airways liner American Clipper left here at 7 a. m. today for Barranquilla, Colombia, on the first leg of its return flight to the United States.

Col. Lindbergh, who remained at Barranquilla after piloting the huge ship as far as that port on the southward journey, will be picked up at Barranquilla, and will continue on to Miami at the controls.

—I know Camel is the fresh cigarette!"

FRESHNESS

—that's the thing!

CAMELS are never parched or toasted

HAVE you noticed the new trend in cigarettes?—freshness is the popular thing.

That's because a fresh cigarette, as demonstrated by Camels, is something smokers have discovered as better than anything they ever tried before.

Camels are fresh in the Camel Humidor Pack because they're made fresh to start with — blended of choice, delicately mild, sun-ripened tobaccos in which the natural moisture and fragrant flavors are vigilantly safeguarded.

The tobaccos in Camels are never parched or toasted — the Reynolds method of scientifically applying heat guarantees against that.

That's why we say with so much assurance that Camels are truly fresh. They're made fresh — not parched or toasted — and then they're kept fresh in the Camel Humidor Pack.

Try Camels' freshness for a change. Switch over for just one day, then change back — if you can.

Presentation Takes Place at Somerset

This evening brings another debutante ball—that which Mr. and Mrs. George H. Swift are giving to present their second daughter, Miss Lucille Swift. It takes place at the Hotel Somerset, of course, with an ushers' dinner preceding it. We often meditate on why the Somerset has lasted to still be the scene of gay parties, after all these years. Happy landings, Miss Lucile.

For Children

This coming Friday morning will see a large number of children gathered at the Exeter Street Theater, that old standby for benefit movies. "The Painted Desert" will fill the bill this time, sponsored by the advisory board of the Associate school, whose executive committee organized the event.

This school was instituted in 1918 by the Women's Education Association, and was one of the first to train backward or problem children in work that would cover the years before they were able to go to school.

The board, made up of members known for their educational work, includes Mrs. John W. Bartol, Mrs. James F. Ayer, Mrs. Algernon Coolidge, Mrs. Eva Whiting White, of the Elizabeth Peabody House; Mrs. Mary Stannard, Miss Sophia E. Butler, Mr. Joseph Lee and Dr. Douglas A. Thom.

To Benefit Club

While the ball that the Hugh Bancrofts are giving in honor of their debutante daughter, Miss Jane, is going on next Wednesday evening at the Somerset, a piano recital will take place at the Copley-Plaza for the benefit of the Charlotte Cushman Club. Georg Fior has been asked to play and will present a varied program.

Among the large group of sponsors are Mr. and Mrs. Albert Bigelow, Mr. and Mrs. Henry B. Sawyer, Mr. and Mrs. Chester B. Humphrey, Mr. and Mrs. Robert A. Van Amringe, Mr. and Mrs. Edmund Sears, 2d, Mrs. B. H. Bristow Draper, Mrs. Walter C. Baylies, Mrs. William R. Haydn, Mrs. Arthur Derby, Mrs. Herbert R. Gutterson, Mrs. Franklin Hobbs, Mrs. John W. Bartol, Mrs. Henry Lincoln Kincaide, Mrs. E. C. Stanwood, Mrs. J. C. French, Mrs. Roger Wolcott, Mrs. Charles E. Bacon, Mrs. T. P. Burgess, Mrs. Henry Whitney, Mrs. William P. Howe, Mrs. George W. Duncklee, Mrs. Gilmore Scranton, Mrs. Adolph Leeds, Mrs. C. F. Tappan, Mrs. Richard Wheatland and Mrs. Roger Cutler.

IN GROUP OF DEBUTANTES

MISS FORBES MISS PERKINS

MISS DOROTHY FORBES, debutante daughter of the F. Murray Forbes of Descrie, Wellesley, is shown chatting with Miss Elsie Perkins, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Robert Perkins, of Framingham and 225 Marlborough st., where they are living temporarily while bringing their charming deb out. Both girls have been presented, their parties having been similar—house dances given at their country places.

Ellen Wales to Wed Dec. 17

A late afternoon ceremony in the Arlington Street Church on Thursday, Dec. 17, will make Miss Ellen Wales, daughter of Mrs. Nathaniel Wales and the late Gen. Wales, the bride of Mr. Howard Thayer Kingsbury, Jr. The Rev. Dr. Samuel Eliot and the Rev. Dr. Endicott Peabody of the Groton school will officiate.

The reception will be at the Women's Republican Club and guests at both the ceremony and reception will be limited to the immediate families, and a few close friends.

Miss Wales is a member of the Junior League. Her fiance, a Groton school graduate, is of the class of 1926 at Yale University.

The engagement of the couple was announced in October of this year. Mr. Kingsbury is the son of Col. and Mrs. Howard T. Kingsbury of New York.

6-HR. DAY VITAL UNEMPLOYMENT WAR WEAPON

Leaders of American thought endorse the six-hour day and similar methods of spreading work as the only possible solution of the unemployment problem the country now faces. And as a result the plan is spreading rapidly throughout industry.

This is the 19th of a series of studies of the six-hour day, advocated by William Randolph Hearst.

By LAURA VITRAY

"The five-day week is not the ultimate, and neither is the eight-hour day. Probably the next move will be in the direction of shortening the day rather than the week."

It was Henry Ford who expressed that opinion. And Dr. George Barton Cutten, president of Colgate University, agreeing with him, explained:

"A more efficient use of machinery and a more even distribution of profits, would make for a six, or a four-hour day, and provide employment for all."

WORK MUST BE DIVIDED

There you have the opinions of a business man and of an economist, both agreeing that the hours of work must be shortened.

"There is no longer any difference of opinion among those who are well intentioned and competent, as to the value of shortening the hours of labor," says Morris L. Cooke, industrial engineer.

Ethelbert Stewart, Commissioner of Labor Statistics of the United States Bureau of Labor, says:

"When we come to think in terms of production instead of in terms of hours of labor, we will cease our opposition to a shorter work day."

The principle behind shorter working hours is so just, it is not surprising to find a high dignitary of the Catholic Church according it his sanction.

"I am for the shorter day, the shorter week, ... shorter working hours," Archbishop Curley declares.

PLANS DIFFER WIDELY

The ways in which the principle is applied to individual industries vary widely. But they fall into certain clearly defined groups.

First, there are those who have preferred to shorten the working week to five days. There are almost a thousand of such firms in the country today.

The five-day week was the earlier development. It had made such headway even before depression set in, that 270 plants had installed it as early as 1928.

Seeking to distribute the work more fairly by a further reduction of working time, many since the depression, have adopted both the five-day week and the six-hour day . . . though some, like the Firestone Rubber Co., of Akron, have preferred to drop to a four-day week.

The six-hour day, then, is the second . . . and, according to experts, the most satisfactory method by which work is being redistributed today. More than any other weapon, it is combatin the nation's problem of unemployment.

Friday we will give you further estimates of the six-hour plan by men who have thought about it.

Concert Planned to Aid Unemployed

A concert for the benefit of the unemployed will be presented on March 4, next, in the Newton high school auditorium by the All-Newton Music School.

Use of the auditorium was granted by the school committee, but a request for janitor service was denied.

MASTERPIECE IS UNEARTHED

A valuable painting by the noted Francois Casanova, whose best work was done in the latter part of the 18th century, has been unearthed in France through a fortunate accident by P. H. Harris, Harvard 1928, it became known today.

The ancient canvas, valued at 1,000,000 francs, was found by Harris, Rogers and Sheldon Fellow for researches in Italy in Romance Languages, in a pile of rubbish in the military school in Lyons.

Here, for the half century during which the painting has been lost, it has lain unnoticed until Harris and a British associate, Dr. Cornelius Ver Heyden de Lancey, discovered it.

The painting is of a battle scene, and for their feat, the Harvard man and his associate have been recommended to the French government for recognition.

N. H. Women Favored in Democratic Votes

Concord, N. H., Nov. 25 (AP)—Democrats have accorded women greater recognition than Republicans in naming delegates to the first district conventions in Manchester next week to choose candidates for the contest for the Congressional seat made vacant by the death of Fletcher Hale, Republican, of Laconia.

Already Democrats have named more than twice the number of women selected in Republican caucuses and there are still a number of Democratic caucus results to be reached.

ANDORRA TURNS TO SPAIN FOR SUPPORT

Following is the second of a series of articles on Andorra, the tiny European republic which is striving to maintain its independence against alleged encroachment by France. The series is the result of a prolonged study of the Andorran situation by an International News Service correspondent.

By LAWRENCE FERNSWORTH
International News Service Special Correspondent
(Copyright 1931 by International News Service)

Encamp, Andorra, Nov. 25—This little mountain state of Andorra which has flung a challenge in the face of powerful France over what the people claim is an effort on the part of that country to make their land a French colony, leans heavily upon the new generalitat of Catalonia and the Spanish republic to maintain its thousand-year-old independence.

At this moment the president of Andorra, Roc Palleres, who in private life is a peasant and a driver of mules and who, for his public services, receives an annual salary of $7.20 payable quarterly, is in Madrid to confer with the president of the Spanish Republic over the stand which Spain shall take in supporting Andorra's determination to combat French encroachments.

Andorra's parliament, or council general, to show its confidence in President Palleres, voted a sum which several times exceeds his salary to permit his journey to Madrid—voting in fact enough to pay for the entertainment of himself and his mule.

The attitude of Andorra in leaning upon Spain and upon the Catalans reverses its old position. Traditionally France was regarded as Andorra's friend and monarchical Spain as its enemy. It always depended upon France to lend moral support in a fight against the encroachments of Spain.

So great was Andorra's fear of Spain's intrusion that it voluntarily sought a new alliance with France in 1806, after the French Revolutionists repudiated the chief executive's title of co-Prince of Andorra on the ground that revolutionary France no longer recognized titles.

The visit of President Palleres to Madrid has one other object. It is to ask Spain to sanction the transport across Spain, duty free, of merchandise which Andorrans buy in foreign marts. As matters now stand goods bought by Andorrans in other countries are required to pay duty when they reach the Spanish frontiers.

13 CLUBS IN BRIDGE HAND

And It's An 'Honest Deal'

Chicago, Nov. 25 (AP)—When the ordinarily genial O. E. Pantke of La Grange picked up his bridge hand in the home of Mr. and Mrs. Paul H. Meyer in Bellwood, he glanced at the cards and then glared at the other players.

"This may be a joke," said he, but I insist that these hands be played and scored just as if the deal were honest. I bid seven clubs."

There were no opposing bids.

Thereupon he laid down 13 clubs.

"If that's an honest deal," he continued, "I'm the one in five trillion to catch such a hand."

They convinced him it was honest.

First National Stores Staffs to Aid Needy

Six thousand employes of First National Stores, Inc., Somerville division, including all executives, warehouse and office workers of the Somerville plant, store managers, clerks, superintendents and supervisors, have united to contribute 1 per cent of their total wages in December, January and February for unemployment relief.

The total contribution by this means is expected to exceed $15,000, to which amount will be added a like contribution from the company, making a total of over $30,000.

White House Mob Now Due Friday

Washington, Nov. 25 (AP)—The White House Communist demonstration, which failed to materialize yesterday, is promised for Friday afternoon.

The police reserves, which all for naught, hurriedly converged on the executive mansion from all directions yesterday, probably will be on the job again Friday.

Herbert Benjamin, New York, calling himself field representative for 1500 "national hunger marchers" said he and four others will seek an audience with President Hoover.

What to do if you can't get home for Thanksgiving? Send your voice by telephone, instead. On the Nation's one great day for family gatherings and reunions, be sure that the folks back home have word from you.

It will mean much more to them to hear your voice on Thanksgiving Day than the cost of the call will mean to you. And it doesn't cost much now, you know, to call long distances.

NATIONAL APPEAL FOR LOCAL RELIEF ANALYZED

By GILBERT SELDES

I WAS LISTENING THE OTHER NIGHT to one of the many broadcasts in aid of the unemployment fund. From various cities great men and women spoke; orchestras and soloists came in easily and smoothly from Los Angeles, Chicago and New York; Lindbergh spoke in one place and from another came a musical composition on the theme of his great flight. It was only because we had grown used to national and international hookups that the sigificance of the event was hard to come at. I want to put that significance clearly, so I say in advance that I have no political theory; I am not an enthusiast for unlimited action by the Federal Government, and to me the dole is, at its very best, an open confession of the failure of the industrial system. I am certainly not grinding any axe, for fear that my own head would be the first to fall under it.

Local Action

But it was striking that virtually the whole population of the United States was listening to a broadcast which came from every corner of the country to every corner of the country; we were participating in a national event; but again and again we were told that the action we took could not be national and had to be local. It struck me at once that there was a gap between the inclusiveness of the radio and the exclusiveness of the Government. The radio said, "the nation as a whole"; the Government said, "the nation as a hundred thousand separate parts." Mechanically the radio spoke to me as an American; actually the words were addressed to me as a New Yorker, to my cousin as a Californian, to my friends as Bostonians, Atlantans and Chicagoans. The misfortune of the country was national; the cure had to be local.

No Half and Half

I repeat: I make no choice between these two ways of approach. I only point out the discrepancy between them. It suggests to me that the great battle for States' Rights was fought when a State, a city, and a town might have been a self-contained unit, and that now the relations between the parts of the country have become too complex for anything but Federal action. Probably the death rattle of the States came with the thought that no nation can exist half slave and half free, which led to the later argument that no nation can exist half wet and half dry. Industry and invention have all been on the side of concentration of power; the theory of politics is still in favor of diffusion.

The Curse and the Cure

I was acutely conscious of this lack of harmony during the broadcast. I felt that all the speakers would have been happier if they had been able to say "the Government of the United States" instead of appealing to local boards, mayors, and State assemblies. Perhaps, unconsciously, they felt that the Federal Reserve Bank, the Secretary of the Treasury, the Presidents (past and present), the Congress of the past ten years—all the national agencies and leaders—were so far responsible for what had happened to us, that they should, as parts of the Federal Government, be responsible for the remedy. The speakers were eloquent, devoted, earnest; but they were held in check. And I think millions of people feel a vague resentment (which does not interfere with their generosity) because perfect frankness has been made impossible because we are not asked to face the facts.

Seeing Reality

More than three hundred years ago Francis Bacon wrote: "Without doubt, the contemplation of things as they are, without superstition or imposture, without error or confusion, is in itself a nobler thing than a whole harvest of inventions." The contemplation of things as they are is one of the rare satisfactions of life; it is the sign of maturity, the one great pleasure we have in life in return for giving up the pleasures of childish illusion; and, on the other hand, a whole harvest of inventions, such as we possess more bountifully than Bacon could ever have imagined, seems bent on placing confusion and imposture between us and actuality. I count the radio as peculiarly guilty in this respect; but for once, in these national broadcasts, the radio has revealed the truth instead of concealing it. We are a nation; but we refuse to act as one.

Lardner Returns

Ring Lardner, after a desperate illness, has begun to recover, and almost simultaneously has begun a series of reminiscent sketches of his baseball days. This constitutes good news in double measure. Even for those who, like myself, know Lardner only in the most casual way, the thought of his illness was a distress lightened only by the occasional bursts of sardonic humor which he issued from his hospital bed; and as for his writing, by now it is known that he is constitutionally incapable of writing anything which is not distinguished. I do not mean that in the thousands of pieces he has written for every occasion, all are immortal; but all are clearly written by a man whose major work is of the highest order.

We Know You, Ring

From time to time Mr. Lardner has suggested that he wouldn't turn over in bed to see the best baseball game in the world; so it is amusing to note that today he is still eager to convince us that the players of his youth were great men on the field, that such a one should have been made manager of his team, that another did not get the breaks, that a third was as good as any player in the world. No one has ever dissected the mind of the player more acutely than he did in "You Know Me, Al;" all the bunk about the giant intellects of baseball, of inside playing and strategy, went to pieces before this morose and hilarious attack. Yet the human beings remained alive all through it.

Better Than "Main Street"

When he came to deal with people who think a little more and express themselves a little more freely, Lardner carried over the same temperament. There are pages in "The Big Town" for which I would throw away the whole of "Main Street"; and he has written short stories which have not yet been matched by most of his American contemporaries. He is a writer who has not been carried away by his own formula; one of the few who enjoy the contemplation of things as they are, without superstition or imposture, without error or confusion. It is no use wishing him luck; all we can do is wish ourselves the luck of his continuing.

By NICHOLAS YOUNG

In face of all the returns, "The Student Prince" is just another "Blossom Time" in the artistic deeds of the Messrs. Shubert. For the third time in as many successive seasons this romantic, even merry, operetta has taken possession of the Shubert stage and found itself very much among friends. In these days of a restricted theater the proceedings may seem extraordinarily unorthodox. Not even the astute J. J. Shubert could believe his own eyes when it was shown that the advance sale for "The Student Prince" exceeded by many thousands of dollars that which fell into the Shubertian coffers when the noted Al Jolson tested Boston with "The Wonder Bar."

To the local playgoer there is nothing particularly new about "The Student Prince." It was an old story—just one of the concoctions in words and music which had already come and gone with considerable flourish. For the third time the Shuberts have brought this musical temptation to Tremont st.; for the third time it has been discovered that Sigmund Romberg's melodies, hitched to royal romance, are exactly the thing to stir human emotions and lift the prevalent box office embargo. "The Student Prince," if you can believe such unemotional testimony as dollars and cents, is once more arousing uptown theater-going interest. The Shubert is threatened with packed houses for the rest of the week. There is no sound answer for it, except that Mr. Romberg performed just that kind of a job when he turned out the score that all composers seek—and few achieve.

Margaret Cantrell

As there is nothing new in either score or text, it may easily be surmised that stirring music and royal romance are the shortest road to enduring operetta. In the case of "The Student Prince," the facts seem pretty well established. Rollicking tunes in schoolboy tempo sweep the theater; a prince of high degree and a maid of no degree whatever plight their troth. And immediately Mr. Romberg sets up arias and ensembles to fit each entangling situation. Mr. Romberg's chore was well undertaken; his performance as composer leaves no regrets. By its music "The Student Prince" clings to popular fancy.

Of course new faces smile from across the footlight; new voices are lifted in familiar melodies. That, perhaps, is what urges the impression that "The Student

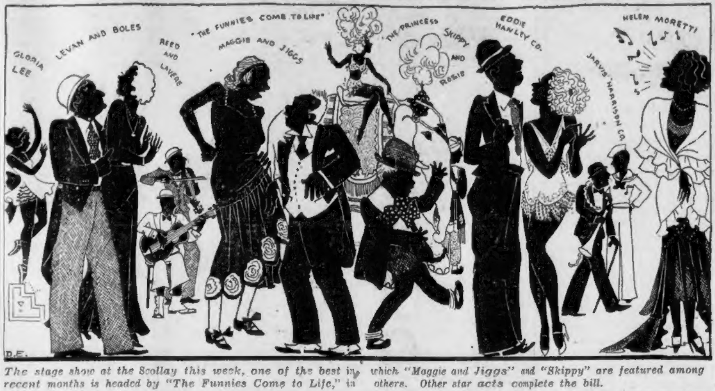
WHAT A ZIPPY SHOW THEY GIVE AT THE SCOLLAY



The stage show at the Scollay this week, one of the best in recent months is headed by "The Funnies Come to Life," in which "Maggie and Jiggs" and "Skippy" are featured among others. Other star acts complete the bill.

Must Exchange Tickets

The Professional Players' organization have just announced a plan for taking care of its subscribers who hold tickets for the fourth week of the third subscription play, which is Ethel Barrymore in Sheridan's comedy, "The School for Scandal."

In making this announcement, Miss Rebekah Hobbs, managing director of the Professional Players, states that choice seats of the performances of Wednesday, Thursday, Friday and Saturday nights, and of both matinees of next week are being held for the purpose of taking care of these subscribers. At the same time Miss Hobbs urges all fourth week subscribers to apply for the exchange of tickets immediately, as the tickets reserved for this purpose will not be held beyond noon this coming Saturday.

Special Attractions at Howard Tonight

The Columbia burlesque attraction, "Nite Life In Paris" will offer a midnight show at the Old Howard tonight. Georgia Sothern will perform special dances. There will be three complete shows tomorrow, at 1:00, 4:30 and 8:00.

HART IN ROLE OF PATRICK HENRY

Star Accepts Invitation to Join in Washington Centennial Pageant

By LOUELLA O. PARSONS
Universal Service Motion Picture Editor
(Copyright, 1931, by Universal Service, Inc.)

Louella O. Parsons

Los Angeles, Nov. 25—Come what may in the movie field for W. S. Hart, he will travel to Washington Centennial pageant. The invitation reached the former good-bad man of the screen a week or so ago and he has already accepted.

Meanwhile it is true that Maurice Chevalier wants Mr. Hart for a part in a Western he contemplates making for Paramount. Bill, however, is a little dubious about the movies.

"I have retired," he told me at Marion Davies' dinner, "and I am not sure I want to attempt a picture again. The Patrick Henry role is different. I played Patrick Henry on the stage and it was one of the most successful things I ever did. I am delighted they invited me—and you can depend upon it nothing will interfere with my presence in Washington when the pageant is presented."

Seen and Heard

Again I say Gloria Swanson slipped into town immediately after her marriage and now I offer proof of my original statement. Gloria had several closeups taken for "Queen Kelly" while she was in town. The picture which is snappy, to put it mildly, and which was directed originally by Eric Von Stroheim, is, perhaps, a little too censorial for America, but there is no doubt after all the publicity Gloria has been receiving it will go great in Europe. That is just what Gloria intends to do, release it in Europe. "Queen Kelly," up to date has cost $800,000 and more.

Hit at Shubert

Prince" is a new show—at least, not an old one. George Hassell and Gus Alexander may be dismissed with a gesture. In many months they have become routined to their comedy roles. But Gertrude Lang is new and tuneful; also spirited and infectuous. She is rather ingenuous — but what could you expect? Margaret Cantrell, the statuesque princess, fits naturally into familiar surroundings, and Belle Sylvia does a grand duchess exactly as the rules are laid down. Another newcomer to "The Student Prince" is Allan Prior, rollicking, love-lorn prince of the realm whose amorous antics are considerably softened or, perhaps, appeased by the excellent quality of his voice. This prince repines, but he never gets out of touch with ballads in baritone.

In this present Shubertian splurge into revival of romantic operetta, facts seem to outweigh prognostication. With two performances behind it, and advance sales mounting into figures that astound the bewildered experts, "The Student Prince" rests securely upon its own merits. Mr. Romberg, naturally, is content, and complains not that this work still possesses an irresistible appeal to the fretful ear.

Special Shows Tonight at Boston and Keith's

A Thanksgiving Eve midnight show is scheduled for the RKO houses in Boston. At the New Keith theater, a special premiere showing of the eerie film, "Frankenstein," is to be held, a weird, fantastic tale of a man who created a horrible monster, while at the RKO Keith-Boston, tonight, there will be a big stage revue, "Hot from Harlem," featuring Bill Robinson, the inimitable colored dancer, who has with him a large company of singers, dancers and comedians from the "Blackbird" and "Brown Buddies" revues. Both performances will start promptly at 11:30 p. m.

SOME STEPPER

Publix Ushers Help Needy

Twenty-five heaping baskets of food are to be given to the poor and needy families of Boston as a token from the Service Clubs of the Boston Publix Theaters. These Service Clubs are composed of ushers in the intown theaters.

These baskets are filled with foodstuffs, such as bread, butter, vegetables, fruit, canned goods, chicken, turkey and cranberries, everything to make a real Thanksgiving dinner. Along with each basket is a brand new dollar bill as a token of good luck to the family.

Exeter Theater

Edmund Lowe and Lois Moran in "The Spider," and Thomas Meighan in "Skyline" are the attractions at the Exeter for the remainder of the week, beginning tomorrow.

Child's Plea Caused Her Return

By HARLEIGH SCHULTZ

Love took her out of the movies, and now love returns her to the screen. When she became Mrs. Lee Arms, this bride little thought she would ever change her determination to be a happy housewife and live happily ever after. But children came along—the stork visited the home thrice. The eldest is Mary, now in school. As proud as any child of mother, is Mary. So she begged her Ma to do just one more picture.

And, fans, that is Mae Marsh's own story of how she happened to accept the role of Ma Shelby in "Over the Hill," which opens at the Olympia and Uptown theaters tomorrow. Says the woman, who as a girl, made a hit in "The Birth of a Nation," "Intolerance," and other films:

"So I gave in, and here I am on the screen again."

Jan Smeterlin in Concert

Jan Smeterlin, Polish pianist, whose Boston debut last year was one of the most remembered musical events of the year, played at Jordan Hall last night and exhibited such masterly art and power as placed him among the front rank of living pianists whom Boston is privileged to hear.

Smeterlin played a Mozart Sonata, the Brahms "Paganini" Variations, six pieces of Chopin, two new Mazurkas of Szymanowski, and items from Albeniz and Debussy. Though a conflicting recital prevented our hearing the modern pieces, it is safe to say that for them, as for everything else on the representative and excellently selected program, the Polish pianist found characterizing voice, expressed the thoughts and moods of the composers as nearly as the latter had set them down on the music page.

Bowdoin Square

Beginning tomorrow the Bowdoin Square provides a bill of special picture excellence, together with seven vaudeville acts. The top film is "The Spirit of Notre Dame." Tomorrow night a souvenir photograph of Lew Ayres will be given to all patrons.

Holiday Matinee at Copley of "First Year"

An extra holiday matinee is announced for tomorrow afternoon at the Copley, where Frank Craven's hilarious domestic comedy, "The First Year," is the current production. In "The First Year," the new Copley players have ample opportunity to display their talents in high comedy, for Craven's play abounds in brisk dialogue and amusing situations.

"Blonde Crazy" on Big Midnight Bill at Met

"Blonde Crazy," featuring James Cagney and Joan Blondell will be the attraction at the midnight show tonight at the Metropolitan. Pre-holiday celebrants will find plenty of entertainment in this spicy picture of modern life. "Blonde Crazy" is a story of both comedy and dramatic tenseness. There will also be shown an unusual comedy, Paramount sound news, cartoons and other features.

"Rose and the Ring" on Marionette Program

The unique entertainment known as Tony Sarg's Marionettes, beloved of children and their elders, has been announced for two performances daily on November 25, 26, 27 and 28 at Tremont Temple. This year the fascinating array of puppets, brought to perfection by the artistic and inventive genius of Tony Sarg, will present a return engagement of Lewis Carroll's "Alice in Wonderland," and Thackeray's "Rose and the Ring."

Hans Wiener Dances at Repertory Recital

Hans Wiener, Viennese dancer who was first seen in Boston last season, appeared at the Repertory Theater last evening in joint recital with Otto Ashermann, Miriam Blecher and a group, consisting of Elizabeth Halpern, Marjory Heinzen, Estelle Rosedale, Dorothy Sammis and Dorothy Wood.

A large and fashionable audience applauded the dancers in a long and well executed program.

WOMAN HURLS STONES AT KIN'S WINDOWS

All was not happy in the Fitzsimmons family out in Auburndale today—but the Fitzsimmons family haven't decided yet whether to make formal court charge against an angry woman relative for buzzing rocks through windows in their home.

To Newton police today Mr. and Mrs. Peter Fitzsimmons of Lexington st., Auburndale, complained that the relative, after causing a scene in their home, was ejected and then hurled three stones through two windows, one of them narrowly missing the head of their three-year-old daughter.

BARRAGE OF STONES

The daughter, Adele Theresa Fitzsimmons, in fact, is the nub in the trouble, according to Mr. and Mrs. Fitzsimmons, the angry relative claiming that the girl was spreading a story about her throughout the neighborhood.

Late yesterday, according to the Fitzsimmons parents, this angry relative stormed into their home and created a scene, declaring that the little girl was spreading a story and that she could have heard it nowhere else except from her parents.

Fitzsimmons ordered the relative from the house and she left. A short time later, however, the Fitzsimmonses were startled to hear the crash of glass in their dining room.

CHILD NEARLY HIT.

Rusing in, they found a window shattered and a stone the size of a baseball on the floor amid the broken glass. Then another stone came in, crashing a second window, and a third followed, narrowly missing the little girl's head.

The woman relative, according to the complainants, was seen on a banking near the house by them and by a neighbor, and she was throwing stones.

TWO ARE HELD IN RUM CASE

At the Bay View Malt and Hop Shop, in West Ninth st., South Boston, dry agents smelled and tasted liquors and bought bottles of it at $2 a head, it was testified in Federal Court today. The sales were made, according to the testimony, on Sept. 22-23, Oct. 1, 13 and 23. Thomas F. Foley is charged with making four of the sales. Edward D. Burns is alleged to have made one sale. Both pleaded not guilty. Each was held in $1000 for the grand jury.

The domestic help problem is solved by taking a kitchenette apartment, and the best are advertised daily in the For Rent columns.

Old-Fashioned Girl Still Holds Favor With College Men

The Daily Northwestern, student publication of Northwestern University, conducted a survey of the ideas of men students on the question of the ideal girl.

Eighty per cent of the men specified that they were not enthusiastic about girls who smoke, drink intoxicating liquors or overdo the use of rouge and lipstick.

The men, for the most part, expressed no preference as to whether the girl be blonde or brunette.

AID IS ASKED BY SHORT LINES

Washington, Nov. 25 (AP)—A four-point program, asking relief for the more than 500 short line railroads in the United States, was laid before President Hoover today by 22 representatives of these roads.

As an emergency measure the delegation asked the President to urge upon Congress a law providing a revolving fund of more than $100,000,000, out of which loans could be made to short line roads.

The second point asked repeal of the recapture clause of the Interstate Commerce Act providing that one-half of all profits in excess of 6 per cent be turned over to the government.

Please Pass the Biscuits

—By ARTHUR "BUGS" BAER—

Thursday is Thanksgiving Day by proclamation and a little hypnotism.

It is peculiarly an American institution started when the first Pilgrim outran his last Indian.

When he was sure he had escaped the situation he offered a prayer of thanks.

That's why we require a little auto-suggestion this year.

However, things are considerably improved and tomorrow should be one of those old-fashioned days when everybody can acquire a turkey tumor.

If you're hard of hearing Thursday we hope it's because you have gravy in one ear and mashed potatoes in the other.

There was never any doubt about national prosperity. You can't stop 48 states all going the same direction. The only trouble was that we were temporarily skulldrugged by that sympathetic European diplomacy. The bullet goes in your heart and comes out through your pocketbook.

The pick-up started the first week of this month. For seven days no banker would light a match because he was afraid that it was that paper profit business. He didn't want to go through that thing again.

Now, it seems to be official and we should be thankful that there is territory west of the Mississippi.

The West always recovers first, the South next and the East sues.

Not that turkey means anything to us. When they carve the noble old bird they think the writer is an aviator. He's supposed to do his gliding on one wing.

Well, that's better than the neck. We've chewed on turkey neck for 40 years and while it's a degrading sport it is not nearly so brutal and one-sided as a bull fight.

After the fight is over you can at least eat the bull.

HITS 'CHARITY' INTIMIDATION

Washington, Nov. 25 (AP)—Senator Couzens (R), Michigan, today threatened an investigation of complaints that civil service employes in Washington were being "dragooned and otherwise intimidated to subscribe to charity."

Couzens, a member of the Civil Service Committee, assailed a statement attributed to J. B. Gordon, District of Columbia sanitary engineer, that officially the contributions were to be voluntary, but unofficially those who failed to contribute three days pay spread over three months would be "marked men" in the government.

"The statement," Couzens said, "is purported to be based on instructions from the President through the Civil Service Commission, and that I much doubt."

School Playground Sought in Newton

At the request of Mayor Sinclair Weeks, the Newton School Committee will investigate a proposal by residents of Waban that additional land be acquired by the city adjacent to the Angier school, to be used as a playground.

Suitor Admits Fatal Bomb Plot in Love for Married Woman

Little Rock, Ark., Nov. 25 (AP)—Walter Nelson, 32-year-old contractor, confessed to police today that desire to avenge rebuffs from the husband of the woman he loved led him to plant an elaborate system of dynamite bombs which blew up a store in Hot Springs Tuesday, killing one man and injuring another.

J. D. Downs, manager of the store, died instantly and Charles Weaver, the owner, object of Nelson's revenge was injured by the explosion that was set off as they opened the front door to begin the day's work.

Police said Nelson absolved Weaver's wife of any part in the bombing.

Canada's Population Is Above 10,000,000

Ottawa, Ont., Nov. 25—On the basis of incomplete census returns Canada's 1931 population was estimated today at more than 10,000,000 persons.

The total for all the Provinces except Quebec and British Columbia and the northwest territories is 6,783,429. Those three divisions had a population of nearly 3,000,000 in 1921, when the population of all Canada was 8,788,482.

FARMERS UNITE TO BACK BOARD

Washington, Nov. 25 (AP)—The great farm organizations buried differences today in a plea to Congress to retain the Farm Board and strengthen it with the equalization fee or the export debenture.

The National Grange advanced the debenture and the American Farm Board Federation the equalization fee, but both offered to compromise.

Louis J. Taber, master of the Grange, asked the Senate Agricultural Committee to forget the differences between the various plans and enact legislation to dispose of agricultural surpluses.

Edward A. O'Neal, president of the Farm Board Federation, stressed the equalization fee, but said his organization would not oppose the debenture. He proposed enactment of both.

The committee called in the farm leaders to consider the future of the Farm Board, including proposals to abolish it or to strengthen it.

be chief marshal, assisted by Capt. William A. Parr. The route of the parade is from Embankment rd. to Beacon st., past the State House, where it will be reviewed by officials, down Park st., to Tremont st., to Boylston st., Washington st., to the Jordan Marsh Co. store, where it will be officially reviewed by officials of the Jordan Marsh Co., and will disband.

The parade will be almost two miles in length and will be composed of four divisions which will include nine bands, 15 Tony Sarg balloons, three beautiful floats, 300 clowns, 40 ponies, and about 50 other features.

The nine bands are Quincy DeMolay Band, St. Vincent's Fife and Drum Corps of 110 pieces, the Gate of Heaven Band, the House of the Angle Guardian Band, the Mission Church Band, the West Roxbury Legion Band, the Metropolitan Firemen's Post American Legion Band, Emmett O'Brien's famous singing band and a funny rollicking, laughing clown band.

Everett Branch of the Veteran Firemen's Association will be on hand with their old famous fire tubs.

Farm Board Cotton Inquiry Demanded

Washington, Nov. 25 (AP)—A thorough congressional investigation of the farm board's cotton stabilization activities was requested today of the Senate agriculaural committee in "the name of economic sanity" by J. W. Garrow, president of the American Cotton Shippers' Association.

He asserted stabilization had damaged producers, caused a treasury loss of $70,000,000 to $80,000,000 on present stabilization corporation holdings and $40,000,000 upon spot cotton and futures contracts.

Navy to Dispose of Three More Craft

Washington, Nov. 25—Three more ships have been added to those the navy will sell next month. They are the U. S. S. Newport, former training ship for the New York militia, now at Puget Sound Navy Yard; U. S. S. Rocket, a harbor tug at the Norfolk Navy Yard, and a shore patrol, No. 237, formerly Thomas W. Slocum's yacht. The Ranger, at the Charleston, S. C., Navy Yard.

Sealed bids for their purchase will be opened Dec. 17.

Lowell Mill Cuts Pay

Lowell, Nov. 25 (AP)—Walter B. Gallant, agent for the Lowell Silk mills, today announcer a wage reduction averaging 10 per cent for the 800 employes of the plant.

SANTASON TO OPEN THE GLAD YULETIDE

In a two-mile long parade and with nine bands playing tuneful marches, Santason will be officially welcomed to Boston tomorrow, and then the city will capitulate to the joyous Christmas spirit. Santason arrives at the Charles River Basin at 10 a. m. and parade to the Jordan Marsh store. Photo shows one of the Tony Sarg balloons to be in the parade.

THIS IS LIFE

A REAL AMERICAN MENU, AND AN AMERICA GONE TO POT IN MAD REVEL

—By ROBERT E. ROGERS—

THE FOLLOWING MENU for Thanksgiving Day is not intended to encroach on the department of this paper devoted to women's interests. It is not an attempt on my part to set up as an expert in dietetics. Neither is it a reproduction of one of the grand old menus on exhibition at the Parker House, dating from the days when food was cheap. Nor it is an advertisement for one of these new all-you-can-eat-for-sixty-cents restaurants. What it is you will find out when you have read it carefully.

PINEAPPLE ICE PUMPKIN PUDDING
STEWED BLACKBERRIES
Brazil Nuts Pine Nuts Hazel Nuts
Popcorn Chocolate
Cigars and Cigarettes Chewing Gum

What is this gorgeous repast? It is an all-American Thanksgiving menu, copied from a fascinating book by one Gregory Mason. The book is entitled "Columbus Came Late" and is a historical study of the glories of the old Amerindian civilization which was already old, even obsolete, in 1492. And the above list of edibles is made up only of foods which the American Indians used long before Columbus set sail from Palos. Every single article in it is American. Note particularly the chewing gum!

ROBERT E. ROGERS

What, No Liquor?

And I have no doubt that if Mr. Mason had wished he could have found some kind of liquid with which to quench the Indian thirst. Cider, of course, was old English and therefore ruled out. But wasn't there pulque or some such equivalent to serve as either cocktail or cordial? Mr. Mason does not enlighten us.

Anyway, even by our standards of today, it's a good dinner. Not perhaps quite as good as a modern one, in which all foods are cold-storage, frosted, canned, preserved, dried and ready-to-serve, bought at the delicatessen and chain store, the result of science and mass production and hence obviously superior—but 'twill do to stay the pangs of a primitive and savage hunger. Seconds, please!

Speaking of Thanksgiving, I had a little shock on Sunday evening. I was in New York. Strolling down town after a Forum lecture engagement, I found myself, on the way to the Grand Central Station, in Times sq. I see it so seldom that always it comes as a sharp surprise after the dim and rural atmosphere of the Boston streets on a Sunday evening.

America as It Goes New Yorkish

Half past eleven and the population of a small city crowding the sidewalks. Half the men bareheaded, three-quarters of them of continental extraction, Mediterraneans, Alpines, Mittel-Europeans, Levantines, few Nordics, no Yankees. Every third person speaking a foreign language, every other person speaking broken English. Most of the girls dressed and made-up in careful imitation of the more foreign and exotic screen heroines.

Most of the shops open, all of the theaters open, each with a loud and uniformed barker or puller-in. And people pouring steadily into these midnight performances. A continuous Burlesque show, its lobby placarded with photographs of naked girls. And I mean naked. Dance halls, skating rinks, Chinese restaurants, all with barkers. People crowding into them, just beginning the evening. A mechanical doughnut factory in full operation behind plate glass, full of people stuffing doughnuts.

The streets a solid mass of racing taxis. Sidewalk pedlars yelling all sorts of wares. Old men in the gutter pushing little carts loaded with queer-looking foods, not American foods in any sense I understand. People eating on the streets. Most of the shops open, manned by pale and sleepy clerks. Haberdasheries, tobacco shops, salted nut and candy shops, lunch rooms with frying cakes in the windows, drugstores, featuring marked-down copies of erotic literature with suggestive "art" covers and illustrations. Boccaccio, Moll Flanders, Roxana, Zola's Nana, Rabelais,—prices slashed to nothing.

Crowds standing motionless before the unwinding fiery ribbon of the Times' illuminated bulletin—an endless and steady stream of headlines about murder, robbery, hi-jacking, racketeering, crimes of passion, political corruption, economic incompetence and callousness.

A Contrast, and a Day Gone Blooey

And, suddenly round the dark corner, in the twilit window of a branch bank, a half-illuminated painting or reproduction of a painting, a reminder of Thanksgiving Day.

In a bare room above a plain deal table stood three people, man, woman and child, Puritans, with bowed heads, saying grace over a simple meal.

That was all. But when one has Puritan blood in him, it was enough. Times sq. gagged me a little after that.

I wonder why we bother to keep Thanksgiving any more. Year by year the annual proclamation is made the subject of witticism or blatant reproach like that of the Atheists' society. Does anyone keep it any longer to give thanks? Or is it entirely a day for sleeping late in the morning, an elaborate and stereotyped restaurant or hotel dinner, a football game in the afternoon, and a musical show in the evening?

Does it hold its own even in New England as the one day of the year for the reunion of three and four generations? Or has the centrifugal force of our days smashed the patriarchal family entirely? I suspect so. And regardless of New England, what can the day possibly mean to that swarm of transplanted Europeans in Times sq. who have turned the American Sunday evening to a carnival in Babel?

What does Thanksgiving Day mean, anyway, in America any more, except to a few out of date Yankee palookas, who no longer matter anyhow? The blazing-bright electric sign full in my face gave me no answer. It merely announced that within doors the entertainment was "Strictly Dishonorable." Likely enough!

HER EYES SAW A TITLE, BUT THE MARQUIS BEHELD LOVE

GLORIA SWANSON'S "SOULFUL EYES" THAT HAVE LED FOUR MEN GLADLY TO THE ALTAR—AND SOON LEFT THREE OF THEM

These three poses of Miss Swanson's gray eyes might well be labelled "Innocent Interest," "Abiding Trust" and "Questioning Suspicion." In her exceptional biography of Gloria Swanson and her loves, Louella O. Parsons, the movie editor, frequently mentions the eyes. After two marriage ventures had crashed, Miss Swanson went to Paris to film a picture. There she met the Marquis Henri de la Falaise and he fell in love with her, with her glorious eyes, her imperial presence, her wit and gracious manner. Miss Parsons tells today of that courtship—of how filmdom aspired to aristocracy and made the grade. Later, however, love went out the window. (International Newsreel photos.)

BACON DARED TO STATE STAND PUBLICLY

Senator Monahan Aroused by Double "Play" in Legislators' Pay

Political circles today awaited developments in the controversy between Sen. Joseph W. Monahan, of Belmont, and President Gaspar Bacon, of the State Senate, following Monahan's demand that Bacon publicly repudiate his alleged attack against him at Worcester recently.

Monahan, only member of the Legislature to publicly protest the action of his associates in voting themselves a salary for the special session on auto insurance rates last night published an open letter to President Bacon, describing him as supporting the salary vote publicly while disagreeing with it in private

President Bacon said he would decide whether or not to reply today

ATTACK DENIED

In the open letter was included one from President Bacon to Monahan denying reports of an address made at the Worcester Chamber of Commerce a few days after the rate session ended. Monahan questioned Bacon's action in sending a private letter instead of making it public.

The letter contained excerpts from Worcester newspapers in which Bacon was quoted as decrying the actions of an unnamed senator who alone opposed the will of the majority of the Legislature. Bacon was quoted as saying it was the Legislature's duty to be governed by the majority and not "make a grandstand play"

OPPOSED SALARY

Bacon, in his letter to Monahan, denied making the statements quoted and insisted that he had merely defended his own position

He said he could not go back on a unanimous ways and means committee and a practically unanimous Senate because of his personal disagreement with the action

STUDENT FINED IN RUM CASE

Although the father pleaded guilty and the son not guilty, the parent was absolved of guilt and the son convicted today in Lynn Court, where both were charged with illegal keeping and sale of liquor.

"Just a fresh kid,' Judge Ralph W. Reeve commented in making a guilty finding in the case of the son, John Kolisetsky, 17, of Blossom st., Lynn, a Boston University sophomore.

He was fined $100 and held in $300 when he appealed

The judge ordered Deputy Police Chief Edward D. Callahan to notify the dean of Boston University of the youth's guilt

Waldimar Kolisetsky, the father, following the arrets on Nov. 9, declared in court that his son had nothing to do with the liquor seized and that he, the father, was the only one to blame.

Opportunities for Boston Goodfellows

HERE ARE THE FIRST of a list of Christmas "Opportunities" for the Goodfellows of Greater Boston. Each day a list of appeals will be printed by the Evening American in conjunction with its Christmas Basket Fund. Goodfellows are asked to read these appeals and investigate those they wish to help. Addresses will be given by calling the American Christmas Basket Editor, Liberty 4000.

CASE NO. 1

I am married, have one child and expect another one soon. I have been out of work for seven months and I struggle on trying to get by doing pickup jobs here and there, but that does not give me much and I find it so hard to get by as my wife is so sick that it takes nearly all I can make for doctor bills and medicine.

Can you please send us a basket of food so we at least can be happy on Christmas Day? I hate to trouble you, sir, but I am told you are very kind and considerate to the poor and needy on that day that everybody likes goodies. Please, sir, not that I mind for myself but my wife, she feels it so badly and has taken it so hard because we will not be able to spend a cheery Christmas. I'd like to see her happy and content on that one day and that is why I made up my mind would write and ask you to please help me to make my wife rejoice. Maybe you, too, have a wife or a child and understand just how I feel at this one special time of the year. So I appeal to you in the name of Christianity please help me with a basket of food.

This man lives in Dorchester. Anyone wishing to investigate the case may call the Christmas Fund Editor, Liberty 4000, and ask for Case No. 1.

I am in a needy condition and my husband has not been working for the last year, and I have six children. I would be very thankful if you would send me some clothes for the children. If you would please send me a Christmas basket, I would be very much obliged.

This woman lives in East Boston. Anyone wishing to investigate the case may call the Christmas Fund Editor, Liberty 4000, and ask for Case No. 2.

CASE NO. 3

Just a few lines to ask you not to forget me for Christmas, because we are not able to buy anything. You were very kind to us last year and we appreciate it very much.

We have four children and we have a hard time to keep them clothed properly. I hope you won't forget us.

This family lives in Waltham. Anyone wishing to investigate the case may call the Christmas Fund Editor, Liberty 4000, and ask for Case No. 3.

CASE NO. 4

I am writing to have you send my grandma a Christmas basket and some coal and wood for Christmas. I would like two dresses and a coat and hat. I am 14 years old. You sent my grandma some wood last year and thank you and hope you give us the things I asked for. Some people kept me dressed last year. They told me to write to you and you would put my letter in the Boston Evening American I hope someone will read my letter and will help us Christmas Day. Hoping you will take pity on me and my grandma. My grandma is 100 years old; her birthday was October 25, 1931.

This little girl lives in Boston. Anyone wishing to investigate the case may call the Christmas Fund Editor, Liberty 4000, and ask for Case No. 4.

Kosher Butchers Plan 'Meatless Week' as Price Boost Protest

Three hundred members of United Kosher Butchers' Association of Boston will meet tonight to act on the recommendation of the executive committee of the organization for a meatless week in Boston.

This recommendation has been made as a protest against the increase of 8 to 12 cents a pound in the wholesale price of kosher meat.

An effort is to be made by the local organization to make the proposed meatless wek a national proposition

BOYS HELD IN SCHOOL BREAK

David W. Campbell, 18, son of Alderman Robert P Campbell of Fulton st., and Bertram W. Newell, 19, of Spring st., both Medford, were held in $2500 each today in Malden court charged with breaking and entering the Medford High School and larceny of tools valued at $195.

Newell is a student at the school.

Lieut. John B. A. Buffum of the Medford police told the court the tools were recovered in a Winchester garage. He intimated action against the garage owner.

DISTRIBUTED AS PRELIMINARY TO BIG WORK

Thanksgiving Dinners Are Provided as a Starter for the Larger Christmas Task

Again this year the Boston Evening American Christmas Basket Fund and the ushers of Publix Theaters in Boston have co-operated to make families happy at Thanksgiving time, as a preliminary to the more pretentious work for the Yuletide.

Today, with the names of 25 needy families, furnished by the Christmas Basket Fund editor, the service clubs of the eight intown Publix theaters—the Washington St. Olympia, Uptown, Fenway Metropolitan, Scollay Sq. Globe Modern and Beacon—are giving out baskets for Thanksgiving.

This is a 150 per cent increase in the ushers' aid, as last year they took care of 10 families at Thanksgiving

WOMAN, 100, IN NEED

Christmas Day is exactly one month from today, and letters appealing for Christmas baskets are pouring in every day—telling of hungry mouths to feed and evidencing, between the lines fears of disappointment

You can help, Goodfellow and you, and you, and you!

There is a little girl in the South End, 14, but in her letter of appeal she thinks first of her grandmother, who has just passed her 100th birthday—only to find herself in want and with the prospect of being cold and hungry on the day when everyone should be comfortable and happy.

"I am writing to have you send my grandma a Christmas basket and some coal and wood for Christmas," says the little girl.

"I would like two dresses and a coat and hat. You sent my grandma some wood last year and thank you and hope you give us the things I asked for."

6 NEED A BASKET

From a woman, mother of six children, in East Boston, comes the following appeal:

"I am in a needy condition and my husband has not been working for the last year, and I have six children. I would be very thankful if you would send me some clothes for the children. If you would please send me a Christmas basket, I would be very much obliged."

These are just two of the ap-

Ambition Causes Her to Shed a Husband and Woo a Title

GLORIA SWANSON has been described as "a girl in love with love," and in this, the third of Miss Parsons' delightfully intimate series dealing with Gloria's romances, it is revealed how the American cinema star wooed a foreign title.

Recently Miss Swanson became a bride for a fourth time. Of the others, Wallace Beery had married her when she was an extra girl at Essanay. Herbert Somborn was her husband before she signed her first big contract. Those stories have been told.

Now for the foreign title . . .

By LOUELLA O. PARSONS
Motion Picture Editor of Universal Service, Inc.

CHAPTER III

Hollywood, Nov. 25 Mr. Somborn, who has never spoken of his former wife unkindly and who has paid her the tribute as "the best mother in the world," refused to say what brought about the trouble. His only comment was that Gloria seemed to feel a career was more important than a husband.

It has often been said and published that Gloria thought that Herbert Somborn was a man of enormous wealth. Whether or not this is true I do not know.

But Gloria apparently decided to convey the idea to her current lord and master that she who travels alone travels fastest.

"I must have my freedom," she told her husband. "I am an actress and if I chose to dine with someone else I must not be hindered. If I am to go on I must live my own life."

I have heard it said that a commission which Mr. Somborn collected as Miss Swanson's agent was a little matter that rankled I must admit that I have no proof that such money was ever paid to husband No. 2 I know Herbert Somborn to be very generous and very kind.

He has never married again and Gloria Swanson, to this day, stands on a pedestal in his eyes. He is free to see his little daughter whenever he chooses and he told me that his former wife had gone out of her way to let him see little Gloria, who is now a tall, beautiful girl of 11.

She Can Spend
More Than a Queen

With all the talk of Gloria's many loves and her consuming ambition, one thing must be said of her. She has never neglected her children. The welfare of Gloria, her own daughter, and Joseph, her adopted son, has always come first. She has never permitted her children to figure in the publicity sent out about her. Little Gloria's picture has never appeared in any newspaper.

The girl is a charming child, cultured, gentle, refined. Gloria Swanson has done a beautiful job in rearing her. Equally well brought up is Joseph, who has shared his foster sister's love from the day he was taken into the Swanson home a mere babe. Gloria adopted him because she wanted her daughter to have a companion.

A woman who can do as much for an adopted child and be as good a mother, has something fine about her and Gloria, despite her fickle nature and her love of admiration, is not without some very excellent qualities.

With money to spend on clothes, Gloria went social. There were liveried butlers, chauffeurs and maids until the Swanson home was managed like that of a royal personage There was no thought of a possible rainy day. Money was meant to be kept in circulation

No multi-millionairess ever had finer jewels or more dazzling clothes or a more pretentious menage Much has been said about the dozens of servants who answered telephones and doorbells before the lady herself could be reached

This splendor was doubled after Miss Swanson became the Marquise de la Falaise de Coudraye, but I am getting ahead of my story.

After her divorce Gloria made up her mind to enjoy her freedom. Her house was filled with gay company. Marshall Neilan again entered into the picture. Other young men paid court to the lovely woman whose fame was now international Paramount, delighted with the popularity of their star planned to do much for her. Madame Sans Gene, the famous French washerwoman who later became a favorite at the French court, was the subject chosen. Forrest Halsey wrote the story. Nothing would do but that the picture be made in Paris.

One happy day, Gloria, surrounded by scores of New York society folk, sailed away, literally in a blaze of glory. But when she came home, oh, me, oh, my—triumph was hers. The wooing of the American cinema star by a title was her next adventure

Few traces of the rather awkward, badly-dressed little extra girl remained when Gloria landed in Paris that fall day. A hotel, she decided, was too commonplace so she took a quaint chateau on the banks of the Seine. This acquaintance with the antiques of bygone French splendor aroused her inter-

LIFE IN DANGER AFTER LEAP

Leaping from the bathroom window of his home in the second floor of 957 Saratoga st., East Boston, Stephen Bruno, 77, injured himself so seriously that officials at the East Boston Relief Station do not expect him to recover.

Doctors said he had suffered a fracture of the pelvis and broken both ankles.

Bruno had been despondent for a few days. He was found in an alleyway beneath the window from which he jumped by Joseph Junto a neighbor

JILTED GIRL ORDERED 'SHEIK' SLAIN TO SPITE HIS WIFE

INFURIATED AT HIS PLAN TO RETURN HOME

"Sphinx Face" Toscano's Ex-Flame, Who Pronounced His Death Sentence, Is Hunted

Philip "Sphinx Face" Toscano's tardy decision to spend more time with his wife and two children in East Boston and lead a more orderly life, led to his murder by members of a West End mob of vice, drug and liquor racketeers, it was revealed today.

A young woman admirer was so infuriated that she is reported to have ordered his execution in a vacant lot in Revere last Sunday night.

The girl who pronounced the sentence of death on the underworld sheik was being hunted today by Boston and Revere police, who learned that she had not only openly threatened Toscano with violence but boasted that she would "slash" his wife's pretty face.

THREAT REVEALED

One night a short time before the murder, this girl parked her car on London st., East Boston, a few doors from the Toscano home. She directed a young man who rode with her from Boston to tell Mrs. Toscano that she wished to speak with her in the street.

"Tell her," replied Mrs. Toscano, indignantly, "that if she has anything to say to me she can come in here and say it."

The courier returned to the girl in the automobile with Mrs. Toscano's message and they drove off without further delay.

The police think if Mrs. Toscano had innocently gone out to the car in the street, which is not brilliantly lighted, she may have been attacked with vitriol or a razor. Mrs. Toscano said she was really frightened by the affair.

This new evidence and other promising information was furnished by Mrs. Toscano in a lengthy and rather dramatic interview at her home. As she lay ill in bed in her little chamber on the second landing of a three-decker, she was surrounded by a group of police officers who questioned her for more than an hour.

SAVED HIM FROM JAIL

Those who took part in the examination were: Lieut. Cornelius Cronin and Sergt. Dominick Church of Revere, Sergt. Louis De Sessa of the Boston homicide squad, and Special Officers Philip Whaland and John Henneberry of East Boston.

The victim's mother, Mrs. Salvatore Toscano, sat near her daughter-in-law. It was the first time Mrs. Toscano, who has been under a doctor's care for a week, had been interrogated about the tragedy.

Mrs. Toscano told the officers that after she saved her husband from going to jail for non-support a month ago, he had resolved to turn over a new leaf. He promised the court officials and his wife that he would give more time and thought to his family and, immediately after, the girl in question began nagging him for casting her aside so abruptly. She swore vengeance.

On a mystery clue in connection with the case, Sergt. Louis Di Sessa and Lieut. Cornelius Cronin started for Portland, Me., to interview a man held in Cumberland County jail.

This prisoner, according to information received by police, can supply the motive for Toscano's murder and name his slayers, if he will.

Police opinion was divided today as to the part the jilted girl played in his slaying. Some of the officials investigating the case think that Toscano was "put on the spot" because he held out or double-crossed certain members of the gang.

WIDESPREAD SEARCH ON

Other officials think his death was directly due to his illicit love affair. Late disclosures, however, tend to contradict that a woman's scream was heard at the scene of the shooting. In fact, the new evidence indicates that no woman accompanied the slayers, but that she gave the order that sealed his doom at a Boston rendezvous.

Mrs. Toscano told police that when her husband left home at 5 o'clock Sunday evening he wore a brown suit, pearl grey hat and no topcoat. When found shot to death in the vacant lot near the Chelsea line early Monday morning he was clad in a powder blue suit.

The police thought that he may have made the change in his attire at the home of Mrs. Grace Merangi Pallazzo on Leverett st., West End, for whom he worked as chauffeur and chore man. The Revere and Boston officers visited Mrs. Pallazzo's apartment in Boston after interviewing Mrs. Toscano.

est in the aristocracy of a country that had once been ruled by kings.

Gloria started to work but certain questions continually came up on the authenticity of scenes laid in Madame Sans Gene's day. Forrest Halsey, author of the scenario, a gay Bohemian and extremely popular, met James Henri la Baily de la Falaise, Marquis de la Coudraye, scion of an old family. The marquis' family had been closely associated with the court of the Louises and had figured when the revolution took the power away from the aristocrats and gave it to the commoners.

The young marquis was brought up on French history. Who then was better qualified to give advice on "Madame Sans Gene?"

"Come and help us with our picture," Mr. Halsey suggested.

While the marquis' blood is blue and he is, in truth, a real titled gentleman, he has no scruples about working. On the contrary, he is ambitious and always has been as eager as any American to find an occupational niche for himself.

"Before we make any definite arrangements," Mr. Halsey told him, "I want you to meet Miss Swanson."

A meeting was arranged. The marquis looked upon a young woman with more pride in her bearing than any of his aristocratic family. Gloria saw a good-looking young man with charm, breeding and an education.

Henri bent low and kissed her hand, but he did not flatter her. He had come on business, and it never occurred to him that the American cinema actress was accustomed to have every male within call fall at her feet.

This aloofness fascinated La Belle Swanson. That any good-looking youth could remain impervious to her charms was unthinkable. She set out to captivate the marquis and in so doing fell in love with him.

While back in the mind of Gloria Swanson, former Chicago extra girl, may have been the possibility of becoming a marquise, yet she was genuinely in love with the good - looking Frenchman. Gloria perhaps visualized returning to America as the Marquise de la Falaise de la Coudraye. What woman wouldn't have been thrilled at such a prospect? Gloria studied French so that occasionally she could nonchalantly answer Henri, who, although he speaks English fluently, still enjoys conversing in his native tongue.

The marquis had little idea of the extent of the Swanson vogue. He did not know that the appearance of Gloria in a shop, a theater or on the street in America was sufficient to draw a crowd. To him she was an attractive American girl, intelligent, entertaining and amusing.

When he asked her to marry him he didn't know he was wooing a woman who was as much in the public eye as any president or ruling monarch.

The two former husbands of Gloria had been typical Americans. Henri was a typical Frenchman. His manners were charming, he always had time to woo her. His breeding and his gentleness appealed strongly to her. His mother had belonged to the Hennessey family, American it is true, but she had absorbed so much French in the many years she lived in Paris that she had become more of a French woman than an American.

If Gloria had remained in France the same might have been said of her, although she was never able to master the French language.

2 HURT IN FIRE ESCAPE CRASH

City sq. police today launched an inquiry into the fall of a heavy counter balance and portion of a fire escape from a building in Chapman st., Charlestown, where two small children were seriously injured.

One of the children, Philip Kelley, nine, of Lawrence st., Charlestown, is seriously hurt at the Haymarket Relief Station. The other child, Mary McLaughlin, 13, of Johnson ave., Charlestown, less seriously injured.

A preliminary investigation, police said, showed corrosion in an iron connection between the weight and the adjustable portion of the fire escape.

An immediate arrest in the case was promised if the probe proved anyone guilty of negligence in the care of the fire escape.

The accident happened shortly after 8 o'clock last night when the boy and girl were playing in the street beneath the fire escape. The building, a four-story wooden structure, was equipped with an old fire escape having the usual adjustable bottom part, which reaches to the sidewalk when stepped on.

The heavy weight crashed to the street causing the heavy adjustable part of the fire escape to fall.

COMES HOME A STAR

NORMA BUTLER GOT CHANCE, NOW STAR

Boston Girl Plays Lead in "Once in a Lifetime," Satire on Hollywood

A chance that comes but "once in a lifetime" came to a local girl, Norma Butler, of Weymouth, who portrays the role of the heroine in "Once in a Lifetime" the satire on Hollywood life at the Majestic Theater.

Norma was working in "Girl Crazy" when the cast was notified that the show was in its last week. She made up her mind to come to Boston and stay with her folks, when chance prompted her to buy a ticket to see "Once in a Lifetime" then at the Music Box Theater, New York.

THEN CAME THE BREAK

On her way out of the theater she was stopped by a man who quite excitedly exclaimed, "You're the girl for the part." The stranger was the general manager for Sam H. Harris.

Extremely pretty, with large brown eyes and golden red hair, Norma boasts that Boston is her home, and that if it wasn't for the fact that she was chosen class president of Cambridge high and Latin school when she was 16

STUDIED DRAMATICS

While going to school, she studied at the Boston Conservatory of Music, where she learned dramatics and voice culture ("besides learning to play the violin," she adds in an undertone). Her first stage appearance was at the Wilbur Theater, in a play presented by the Curry School of Expression, which she was then attending.

She has since appeared in "Tip Toes," "Bye-Bye Bonnie," in a stock company in Pittsburgh, "Good News" and "Girl Crazy," and now her present big role in "Once in a Lifetime." She had always trouped with her sister Audrey, who was recently married and has abandoned the stage.

RINES DEFENDS RADIO SONG

The war of the "purified air lanes" raged on a wide front today, following the act of John L. Clark, program director of Station WBZ, in cutting the song "This Is the Missus" of the air as it was being sung yesterday by Joe Rines, orchestra leader, at the Advertising Club luncheon.

From Rines came the declaration:

"Anybody who can see a double meaning in the lyrics of 'This Is the Missus' must be looking especially for it'."

Tsck! Tsck! Tsck!

"Clark has never given anybody, so far as I know, a definite list of numbers he is pleased to call off color," said Rines today. "If he wants to purify his programs, why doesn't he edit them before they go on the air?"

Safe Robbers Get $350 in Lynn Break

While many motorists were passing the scene, thieves went to the roof of the potato chips factory of John Boyd at 162 Boston st., Lynn, entered through a skylight and stole $350 after smashing open the office safe. The break was revealed by police today.

The money represented collections made yesterday and the authorities believe the thieves had inside information.

PLEAS OF NEEDY POUR IN

peals, but there are many more—and there are additional letters arriving each day.

Last year several thousand families were cared for and made happy by Christmas baskets through the Boston Evening American Christmas Basket Fund.

But this year, from every indication, the appeals will be greater in number than ever.

Each Christmas basket provides for a family, as a rule not only on Christmas Day, but for two or three days thereafter, depending on the size of the family.

EVERY BIT HELPS

You can aid the Christmas Basket Fund in two major ways. First you can send in a donation to the fund. Second, you can take the names and addresses of one, two or as many families as possible, and provide for them yourself on Christmas Day.

Some good fellows prefer the one way, and others enjoy doing the service directly. But if you cannot do it directly, the Boston Evening American is only too glad to do it for you and will make your donation go as far as possible.

Other requests will be coming in rapidly, and in this connection the Christmas Basket Fund editor wishes to instruct applicants for baskets to secure an endorsement from their pastor, doctor, children's school teacher or other reputable person, which will eliminate confusion in the distribution.

Applicants should also set down their names and addresses plainly and be sure to include the number of persons in their families. This is important.

The Christmas Basket editor also wishes to urge reputable organizations, clubs, church societies to investigate families in their districts and to submit the names, addresses and the number of persons in needy and eligible families where baskets should be sent.

Do not wait until too late. It is not too early now to begin the work and every good fellow in the land is needed, so get aboard and make this a happy Christmas for all those who have not fared so happily this year.

Address your communications and send your donations to the Christmas Basket Fund editor, Boston Evening American, 5 Winthrop sq., Boston.

And if you wish names of families say how many, and the certified names will be forwarded to you.

You will be repaid in happiness, such happiness as you have never known, provided you have not done this before.

Do it today.

CURLEY ORDERS EXTRA CITY ALLOTMENT

Charity Organizations Prepare to Feed Hundreds of Boston's Poor

Seven thousand needy Boston families will enjoy a holiday dinner due to the orders of Mayor Curley to the Public Welfare Board to present checks of $5 each to families on its lists.

The $5 is to be in addition to the weekly allotment distributed by the board among the poor and unemployed. This $5 allotment was inaugurated last year by Mayor Curley when he sent out $5 gold pieces to each needy family.

TURKEY ON THE BILL

In addition dinners will be distributed at the headquarters of various organizations and inmates of the various city and state institutions will dine royally on turkey and fixin's and be provided with entertainment during the holiday.

The more fortunate in Greater Boston are also making extensive plans for Thanksgiving. Turkey will be king as usual in most homes and in many of them, school and college students will be reunited with their families for a week-end holiday.

Today was also marked by a general exodus of students from the schools and colleges in and around Greater Boston. The great majority of students deserted the institutions but a number, living too far away, either remained or were invited to the homes of friends for the holidays

Welfare organizations continued their last minute efforts today to make tomorrow a happy day for the needy. A Thanksgiving food sale for the benefit of the Family Welfare Society is being held from 10 a. m. to 4 p. m. today at the home of Mrs. Robert Emmons, 91 Beacon st.

SALLIES TO FEED 1000

The Salvation Army will provide its usual Thanksgiving dinner for 1000 needy children at Ford hall tomorrow. The Army's instrumental quartet will provide special entertainment after the regular turkey dinner. Salvation Army lassies are also distributing 150 Thanksgiving baskets to needy families.

The St. Vincent de Paul Society is also preparing to make its usual widespread distribution among the needy throughout the archdiocese. Other societies serving dinners to the poor and unemployed throughout the city tomorrow are: The Mt Olivet Christian Association, 1 Sterling st.; the Morgan Memorial Church of the Wayside Army, 75 West Concord st., and the Boston Industrial Home, 17 Davis st.

Through Governor Ely's recent orders, inmates of all Boston and state institutions will receive turkey dinners, countermanding the menus which had been prepared for economy reasons. State prison inmates will receive a turkey dinner, topped by a whole mince pie for each inmate. There will also be movies in the morning, yard liberty in the afternoon, and a radio program at night at the prison

STUDENTS FLOCK HOME

Students at Boston colleges, prep and finishing schools were flocking from the city today in a general exodus to their homes for the holidays. The majority of students will have no classes until next Monday.

At Wellesley, a college Thanksgiving dinner will be held for girls whose homes are too far away for them to make the journey.

WOMAN, 2 MEN, HELD IN 'PLOT'

Mrs. Bessie E. Metcalf, 24, State Hospital nurse at Danvers; her husband, and a former New Hampshire policeman were arrested in Peabody today charged with attempting to extort $2000 from Morris Beres, 66, gas station proprietor.

The three were arrested in the Beres' gas station, Margin st., Peabody, by police who were secreted in a back room.

Louis Goodman, 35, the former policeman, was arrested at gunpoint as he sat at the wheel of the Metcalf auto in the yard. Leroy Metcalf, attendant at the same hospital where his wife is employed, was with Mrs. Metcalf and Beres in the gas station office.

Beres told police Mrs. Metcalf drove him to a "lovers' lane" in Danvers last night and was making violent love to him when Metcalf and Goodwin emerged from behind a tree

The trio, Beres told police, offered to "forget it" for $2000 and later reduced the figure to $500. His story to police sent Inspector James Murphy and Patrolmen James McHugh and James Harris to Beres station, where the money was to be paid.

Police said they appeared directly after Beres handed Metcalf $50 and accepted a receipt marked "on account." All three were in jail late today, unable to raise bail of $5000 each for appearance in court Friday.

Watch Her, Mother — She Needs You

Despondent Young Girls

SHE LOOKS despondent, worn-out and depressed. Young girls budding into womanhood often get wistful. They should be watched!

"I have a headache," they quietly complain. "My back bothers me. . . . I guess I'll lie down."

During this "trying time" every young girl needs the helpful benefit of a strengthening medicine like Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound.

That's why so many attractive young women become faded prematurely. The pretty girl of 18 often becomes a languid lady of 25.

When your daughter becomes tired and listless . . . won't you give her Vegetable Compound Tablets . . . just as other mothers do?

The very fact that it's been in use a long, long time, gives women extra confidence. They know it must be good . . . or so many women wouldn't take it.

And how true that is! For our records show that 98 out of every 100 women report benefit.

Ask your druggist for a bottle of either the tablets or the liquid today. Don't postpone the blessed relief this medicine brings.

CLAIM GILLETTE STOCK IMPAIRED

William G. Thompson, counsel for minority stockholders of the Gillette Razor Co. in the $21,000,000 suit against 1930 directors, declared today that the defendant directors caused an impairment of $14,000,000 in the company's capital

The charge that the Gillette company, in a letter to stockholders, proposed to "write off almost exactly what we say was the impairment to capital," was made by Damon E. Hall, his associate counsel.

Counsel for the defendants strenuously objected to the introduction of evidence bearing on the letter, as it would bring out matter remote from the real issue, but Judge Prest allowed Thompson to question Bradley W. Palmer, a defendant director, about the letter.

The letter was not introduced, but questions asked Palmer developed that the company suggested to stockholders that the capital be reduced from $35,164,220.59 to $17,465,767.50, and that the difference be used to write off several items.

Mayor Urges All to Attend Charity Game

Mayor Curley, in a radio broadcast over Station WNAC this afternoon, appealed to the citizens of Boston to attend the Boston College-Holy Cross game at Harvard Stadium in order that every seat there will be sold and in order that $78,000 be raised to care for the unemployed and needy of this community.

The mayor said that anticipating the generosity of the people of Boston, the welfare department, acting on instructions from him, has sent a check for $5 to each of the 7000 families on the relief rolls of the city to provide Thanksgiving dinners for them. The funds to cover this expenditure will come from tomorrow's game, the mayor said

"I have arranged to keep the front door of City Hall open on Thanksgiving Day morning for the first time in my service as mayor of Boston so that all who wish tickets for the game can purchase them in Room 47 before 12 o'clock," the Mayor said.

"After that hour tickets will be on sale at the gates of the Stadium at $3 each, regardless of location.

He also outlined plans for the burial of "General Depression"

GIVE YOUR OLD SHOES AT GAME

Continuing his drive to get shoes and clothing to be distributed by the Volunteers of America, Mayor Curley today appealed to all those who plan to attend the Boston College-Holy Cross game at Harvard Stadium to bring bundles of old shoes and clothes with them.

Fire department wagons will be stationed at all gates and persons who have shoes and clothing which are no longer of use to them can deposit bundles in these wagons.

At least 10,000 pairs of shoes for men, women, children and infants are needed immediately, Mayor Curley said. The Volunteers are turning several hundry needy persons away daily because they have not sufficient money with which to provide them footwear and warm clothing. Wagons will also be stationed at parking spaces in the vicinity of the Stadium.

Eminent British Judge Tells When a Wife May Spend More Than Her Husband Can Afford

Mrs. Jean Nash, of Whom Justice McCardie Said: "Dress and dress alone seems to have been her end in life. . . . Mrs. Nash was the mere devotee of fashion and thus she trod the path which so often leads to financial dishonor."

HAVE you heard about the brand new yardstick for determining how far a woman may go in spending her husband's income for clothes? The decision was recently rendered by Justice McCardie, England's famous bachelor judge, during the suit of a fashionable London dressmaker to compel a husband to pay for his wife's clothes.

According to Justice McCardie, a wife is justified in being extravagant in clothes if her husband is amorous. The more amorous the husband is the more extravagant may the wife be, said the distinguished judge —and he had reasons for saying so. Find out what these are by reading the article about Judge McCardie's dictum from the High Court of Justice, King's Bench Division, which appears —next Sunday—in . . . .

WHO REMEMBERS "the sweet, old-fashioned vamp"? Nobody!

That is because "vamping," as a highly specialized art, has passed out of the picture. It is now merely an amateur sport, which nearly every girl takes up as a side-line.

Once upon a time, there were only two kinds of women in the world—"nice women" and "vamps." The former were trying to capture one man for life. The latter were struggling to capture a lot of men. In those days, to be known as a "vamp" almost wrecked a girl's chances of marrying. And to be too popular with the stag-line instantly stamped her as declasse.

But, how the world has CHANGED!

The only unpardonable sin, in these days, is to be UN-popular. Even her own sex won't forgive a woman for being a wall-flower or a "dud" with the men. Now, every woman frankly and openly uses every art she can discover and every artifice she can invent, to make herself attractive

To want to vamp a man, no longer means that a girl wants to marry him—or even that she wants to conquer or annex him. It means merely that she wants to try her skill. She is not looking for a victim. She is looking for a thrill—or for amusement.

Since vamping has been lifted above the cloud of disapproval, and has become one of the modern pastimes, most girls take it up along with their Algebra and their High School French, and are post-graduates by the time they reach their coming-out parties. The man who looks into a pair of limpid, innocent debutante eyes is looking into the eyes of a skilled amateur-vamp, whether he knows it or not.

What the modern girl hasn't learned about men, about the love-game, about synthetic beauty and cultivated charm, since vamping became a popular sport, in perfectly good standing, isn't worth knowing.

But she doesn't call it "vamping" any more. She has been forgotten where the word originated, and that it was coined from a poem by Rudyard Kipling

Give Thanks for Your Health Tomorrow

By Dr. R. S. COPELAND.

IN THE TRADITIONS and practices of every people there are days of prayer and thanksgiving, of fasting or feasting, of rejoicing or lamentation. In America, the great day of rejoicing, celebrated by all races and creeds, is Thanksgiving Day. The President, the Governors of States, the heads of provinces, issue proclamations. They direct that the last Thursday in November shall be set aside as a day to turn from the ordinary affairs of life, to give thanks to Almighty God for the blessings He has given His children

In the midst of economic depression and world tribulations we must overlook the unpleasant things in life. We must give thanks for many blessings that are ours in spite of material adversity.

In the last analysis good health is chief of human blessings Without it, wealth and position mean little. With it, all things are possible

If you know how to live, you can have sparkling eyes today. I say this because knowledge of how to live is really half the battle

You might be ignorant of the names of the capitals of the world and its great rivers. You might not be able to recognize by name a single one of the beautiful flowers and glorious trees. You might not know how many valves there are in the heart, or the number of bones in the body. Yet if you know what to eat and how to live, you are blessed beyond words. This is a day of thanksgiving for you if you have your health and your dear ones are well

This period of depression will end. It will be followed by better times, perhaps, than we ever had in the past. They will surely be better, if we apply the lessons of adversity

Poverty may make it necessary to eat the simplest food. That is no curse! To eat simple food when you are rich will make your riches worth more to you and to the world

You may have to walk instead of riding in your own car. That will make your muscles strong. It will take the fat off your stomach. It will send your blood in a cleansing stream through every cell in your brain. You may not be able to afford the theater and late supper afterward. That fact will send you to bed earlier and give your body the lasting benefits of abundant rest.

The Beauty Box

A SENSITIVE skin that flares up under harsh winds needs generous meals of oily cosmetics. Powder acts as a protection against the elements, but must never be rubbed in vigorously with the powder pad if the skin surface is a victim of tantrums. Can't treat that kind of a skin with anything but gentleness. Use cream freely two or three times a day

Guard against the habit of chewing on one side of the mouth which forms a half circle line from nostril to lip and by pulling facial muscles to one side.

BASHFUL GIRL

Lady With a Past

By Harriet Henry

Venice Says She'll Not Wed Rollo

THERE WAS a dinner of 14 at the Wainwrights' before the Charity Ball

Venice sat on Rollo's right and wished with whimsical satisfaction that Guy could see her now At her left was Baron Stienvél, New York's latest titled darling He had known Rene de Thenardier slightly and read of his suicide. His attentions to Venice were marked and persistent. She purposely led him on, for the girl with the cerise nails was on the other side. Her honeyed tones fell on indifferent ears

The Baron must discover why Rene de Thenardier had killed himself for this girl with the russet hair and small, immature mouth. Her gown of silver lame was exquisite and her figure slim and lithe, but he would hardly have expected de Thenardier to be ensnared by such freshness.

"I shouldn't have told mother to put the Baron on your other side," Rollo whispered to Venice. "Don't let it turn your head, my pretty."

"My head is already turned," she smiled and forced herself to give a long look into his eyes.

"Are you going back to Europe soon, again Miss Muir?" The Baron was firm in his intention to focus her interest on himself.

"I doubt it. But like all good Americans, I hope to get to Paris when I die."

Cerise nails were pressing on the Baron's arm. Venice started with that renewed picture that brought back Roland Wainwright's insolent kiss of a year ago

"Am I interrupting?" she asked sweetly, leaning slightly across the Baron towards that honeyed voice.

"Oh, no," said the other girl just as sweetly.

"I beg your pardon." The Baron turned quickly to her.

"I have a bone to pick with you," smiled Cerise Nails.

Venice wanted to laugh. So that was the way that particular girl courted interest. She turned back to Rollo

They reached the ball about 12 o'clock. It was a seething mass of richly groomed humanity Debutantes, dowagers, married couples, titles, roues, probably a pickpocket or two. Venice whirled from one pair of arms to another. Suddenly she saw Drake Farrelly. He was dancing with a snub-nosed girl of about 17. Her crisp black hair, cut like a Velasquez picture, indicated that she might be his sister. Venice, dancing with Rollo, called quite purposefully. "Hello, Drake."

She saw quick color dye his face

"Hello, Venice."

Baron Stenval was taking her away from Rollo. She lost Drake in the sea of gyrating forms. She was annoyed. Her eyes went slewing about the room. All at once she saw him sitting in the sidelines. Some one had gone off with his sister. He was watching Venice. Why doesn't he ask me to dance? she thought. She looked up into the Baron's face.

"You waltz like the hero of a Viennese operetta," she said. After the words were out she reflected that it was a dubious compliment. Apparently he did not think so.

"To dance with you is a dream," he murmured.

Oh, my God, went her mind Drake I mustn't lost him

"I like the other end of the room better, don't you?" she managed.

Donny Reese cut in here

"And I once thought you dull," he sighed. "What a whirl you're having, Venice."

"Like a leaf in an autumn wind. Let's go up toward the other end of the room, Donny. I think it's a little less crowded."

"Right. Rollo's gardenias methinks?"

"No, Wadley and Smythe's." Where was Drake? There, in the same chair. He was still watching her and she smiled at him. He rose.

"Sorry, Donny." He touched Venice's arm. They were away together. She had nothing to say, but it was her first moment of real happiness that evening. He danced well. Smoothly and evenly. He held her tightly, but impersonally.

"Was that your sister?" she asked

"Yes, Peggy, the older one. This is her first big party.

"I thought you shunned big affairs like this."

"I do generally"

"Why tonight then?"

Rollo's hand was on Drake's shoulder

"Of course. Thank you, Venice."

Drake was lost again She became silent

"Come along," said Rollo. "I've arranged a little supper in one of the dining-rooms."

Supper was hilarious. The Baron and Rollo sparred for her attention

Rollo unlocked Venice's front door. He went inside with her.

"What an evening!" she sighed. "It's been marvellous, Rollo. But it's too late for you to come in unless you want to wait a few minutes for breakfast."

"No, darling. Tonight's my night. Are you going to marry me, Venice?" He smiled down at her with possession and smug self assurance in his gaze. His golden cockscomb was enhanced by the one lamp in the hall. His sapphire eyes were gay and certain of his own irresistibility The consciousness of his own charm seemed to visibly exhilarate him. She would have liked to slap his face

"No, Rollo," she said carefully, "I'm not going to marry you."

"Don't joke, sweet."

"I'm not joking."

He stared at her through a silence in which neither of them seemed able to find words. The evening's success faded for Venice in the supreme triumph of this moment. If Cerise Nails could but see her now! She was not good enough for him when she was actually Venice Muir, shy and grave and suffering from the indifference tendered her. It needed a man's death to call her to his attention

"Why not?" he finally asked. His tone was irritated and truculent.

(Copyright, Harriet Henry)

FELT HATS FOR WINTER

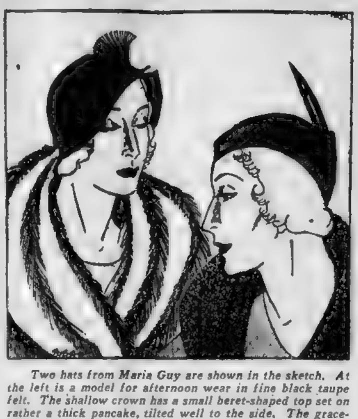
SKETCHED IN PARIS



Two hats from Maria Guy are shown in the sketch. At the left is a model for afternoon wear in fine black taupe felt. The shallow crown has a small beret-shaped top set on rather a thick pancake, tilted well to the side. The gracefully curving brim is exceedingly short at the upper side and is slashed and spread open there. At the side back is poised a short brush of black aigrette.

For smart tailored wear the supple felt model in black with a sharp little quill is especially good. The turban-like brim is made of a double fold or cuff, of the thin felt, narrow in front and deeper and slightly draped at the back. The crown is very shallow and viewed from the front the hat has a modified boat-shaped line and is worn very tip-tilted to the right side.

A Real Man Is Himself---He Needs No Camouflage

By WINIFRED BLACK

"N-N-O'., said Dora.

"Well, why did I say that, I didn't mean it

"I mean yes—I had a wonderful time—we met a real man, somebody we'll never forget as long as we live, a man that means something to us, and that is worth going a thousand miles to see—any day in the year."

And then she hung up the phone, and I can hardly wait to see her, to find out who the man is, and what kind of a man he is, and why Dora and her husband are so glad they know him

Have you ever felt that way about a man or woman? Have you come home from a party or from a week-end, or from a little journey on a tiresome train and said to yourself

'Just think of it, that woman has been in this same world that I live in all the time, and I never knew her before

"I never even heard of her and now she's my friend; what a mistake it is to think we're about through with new experiences

"Why, there's a new one every day—I can harly wait till tomorrow—maybe I'll meet another real friend, somebody I've been waiting for all my life, and never knew it."

But I do wonder about this man that Dora and her husband found the other day, not so very many miles away from the place where they have been living for years.

What do you suppose he is, old or young?

Is he rich and successful, or is he poor and down and out?

That wouldn't make any difference to Dora and her husband—not if the man had a heart and a brain, and courage, and a fine ideal of life

What is it about him that has so interested these intelligent people who are worth while in the world?

I know one thing that he is—and that's flat.

He's himself—and nobody else

He's real, and he's sincere, and he doesn't pretend to be something he is not.

When people are honest and real, they can be almost anything else they like as far as I am concerned.

Pretense, hypocrisy can't—the false front, camouflage—what nonsense they all are. They don't deceive a soul really, and I simply can't bother with them myself, can you?

If I can't walk in at the front door, I don't want to have to climb the back fence to get at the real person behind all the stuff and nonsense, do you?

When I find out about this man of Dora's, I'll tell you about it—and shall I?

Warned Not to Be Rash

By BEATRICE FAIRFAX.

DEAR MISS FAIRFAX

I have been engaged five months, and have spoken of marrying my fiance. Lately he has taken up football, and claims he has to be in at 9 o'clock every night. I have caught him in several fibs since then about going with other girls. If this goes on much longer I am likely to do something desperate. Should I go out with other young men and forget him, which I am afraid will be impossible, or what?

B. S

Dear B. S: Certainly, go out with other boys and girls too the more the merrier. The idea of taking this youngster so seriously as to talk of doing something desperate is unworthy of you

Won't Let Him Forget

DEAR MISS FAIRFAX.

I am 20 years old and I'm going with a girl a year older. I love her dearly, and she loves me, too. I have not been working for a while, and she did not give me the air, either, but tried to get me work, and she has done many things for me

What I want to know is this, should I marry her now, or should I wait until things pick up?

JOE.

Dear Joe: Don't think of getting married till you have a job and see your way clear to support a wife; you've got to think of her as well as yourself.

A DIVISION OF NATIONAL DAIRY

All Set for Feast of Year

By MARTHA LEE.

From Martha Lee's Wednesday Morning Broadcast Over Station WAAB

EVERYTHING ALL SET? The squash all steamed—(it warms up beautifully)—the onions peeled and waiting patiently in cold water, the bird all stuffed, the celery cleaned, the cocktail sauce all made, the soup waiting for last minute warming, and the ice box rolls all mixed?

And how about dessert?

If your guests have delicate digestions, perhaps you hesitate to offer them the traditional plum pudding and mince pie—I've had them reproach me with considerable feeling when indigestion pills have had to be sent for after the meal, when I've been over-zealous in my efforts to provide "a real old-fashioned Thanksgiving dinner."

Apricot Sponge may not sound very Thanksgivingy, but it's truly delicious, easily digested and the fruit helps offset some of the heavier foods.

To prepare it, bring 1¼ cups of milk to a scald, with a dash of salt. Stir together 3 egg yolks and ½ cup of sugar. Pour part of the hot milk onto the egg mixture and then pour the egg and milk back into the double boiler and cook until the custard will coat a silver spoon—not longer. Have soaking 2 tbsps of gelatin in ¼ cup cold water and stir this into the hot custard. Set away to chill. When it is ropey, add 1½ cups of stewed apricot pulp and juice—(the stewed apricots put through a sieve. Also fold in the beaten white of one egg and pour into individual molds or one fancy mold. Serve ice cold with a thin boiled custard.

A Chocolate Mousse, served with Silver Cake with Pistachio Frosting, is a combination not to be despised. You can make the mousse in a coffee can or in your electric refrigerator

CHOCOLATE MOUSSE

Melt two squares of chocolate in a double boiler and add one cup of sugar. Scald two cups of evaporated milk and add slowly to the chocolate, stirring until smooth and thick. Soften two teaspoons gelatin in two tablespoons of cold water and dissolve in the hot mixture. Cool. Fold in one cup of beaten cream and pour into air-tight molds and pack in ice and salt for four hours. Serves 6 to 8.

Here's hoping you have a lovely day tomorrow and will be listening in to my Friday morning broadcast at 11 o'clock from Station WAAB, when I'm going to share with you some suggestions on howe to use up the remnants of the feast.

Faithfully yours,

Martha Lee

YOUTH is charming when it is appropriately dressed. A dainty little girl went to a party wearing an ankle-length dress of pale green taffeta with a little basque bodice. Bands of puffing outline neckline and skirt. There are tiny puffed sleeves and a large self bow is appliqued on the full skirt. She was the success of the children's party.

Daily True Story

It Makes a Difference

EILEEN RANDALL had always scoffed at those weak minded people who fall in love. She used all the old arguments in a new and brilliant fashion; at least they seemed new and brilliant to the coterie of young men and women who gathered at her studio apartment to discuss life and its problems.

And they all agreed with her, not one of them was married, and they carried on in what they chose to regard as a free and easy defiance of the conventions.

If Eileen had one objection it was their uniform note of approval—all, but one. His name was Harrison Mather and he always sat in a particular corner and listened with a cynical smile almost as though he were secretly chuckling

A girl friend had brought him up explaining that he had a good job in an advertising agency and a cozy flat of his own.

Mr. Mather sipped Eileen's weak gin and smoked his pipe and listened to diatribes against the unfortunates who surrendered their freedom and started through their young years shackled one to another.

Yet Eileen liked him: she was always glad when he lingered after the others had gone, though even then he didn't say much

"I wonder," she said to him, "if you think I'm all wrong—my ideas that is—I've seen so many couples go to smash that naturally I'm wary."

"On the contrary," he replied, "I think you're right—why should any one marry in these days? Of course divorces are easy, but then they're expensive. You and I are situated about the same—at least I take it we are—we both have enough to get along—we aren't in danger of losing our jobs and we can have everything we want within reason——"

"Exactly," said Eileen, puffing a cigarette. "Forgive me for putting you down as one of the really conventional people."

TELLS HER FRIEND

Eileen told her friend and her friend seemed a little dubious "Naturally he'd say so," she remarked, "but I've never been able to figure Harry—he used to call on me quite often, then he stopped and you'll find that's what he'll probably do with you—not that it matters."

"Oh, he won't stop," said Eileen a little proudly, "you see our ideas are just the same, so why should he?"

But Eileen's friend seemed to be right for after a few weeks Mr. Mather failed to appear. Eileen wondered why, but when he did turn up she gave no sign she had missed him.

"By the way," said Eileen, "I'm giving a regular party next week and I do hope you can come."

"What evening?" he asked.

"Thursday, begins about 10 and lasts—well, maybe till breakfast."

The young man shook his head. "Sorry," he replied, "but I've got another date for Thursday."

"Oh, then I'll make it Friday—you see we really want you."

Mr. Mather looked at her steadily and she was conscious of the flush that mounted to her cheks—"I'll tell you," he said, "you come with me Thursday and I'll come to you Friday. How's that?"

"Done," cried Eileen, "is it a dress affair?"

EILEEN GOES VISITING

Eileen was excited, and when they started out on a cold, snappy evening and headed for the East Side she was thrilled with the spirit of adventure.

They paused at the door of an old time brick house now converted into three flats. "There's a man who's been out of work for three months lives in this flat," he said, "he's just landed a job, but he's got two small children on his hands. He had a fine position three years ago, but you know what the times are. Well, his wife died—starved to death. I'm afraid, though, he doesn't say anything about that—anyway, I'm staying with the kids every evening I can—you'll see—you won't meet him because he's at work. In the daytime he parks them part of the time in a nursery and the neighbors help keep an eye on them the rest of the time"

When he knocked he pressed her arm. "Be cheerful," he admonished.

A tow-headed little boy opened the door.

"Hello," said Mather. "Well, how are we tonight?"

"We're great," said the boy, "only Milly has a toothache—show Uncle Harry the tooth, Milly——"

The girl came forward and stretched her mouth wide "It's back there," she thrust a finger toward the offending molar, "but I guess it'll go away"

"I've brought this lady along to wash your faces," the man explained, "while she's doing that I'm going out to get a little milk and some crackers, and a few eggs."

He slipped out and left her alone with them. "Are you married to Uncle Harry," asked the little girl.

Eileen shook her head. "Oh, no, we're just good friends," she said.

Eileen called her party off. "I don't feel like it," she explained to the disappointed crowd by telephone.

"Look here," she said to Mather later, "it isn't right to waste money in foolishness when I can help those kids with it . . ."

"I rather thought you'd feel that way, said Mather, "most people would—the trouble is they don't actually see suffering and so they can't visualize it. You wouldn't believe Tom Harkins had a really good position a little while back, would you? Well, he did—and if ever a man and his wife loved each other, they did—but he's one of the kind who wouldn't ask for help. It was part of the game with him and he looked it in the face—that takes courage."

WHEN SPRING CAME

And then when spring began to temper the air she said to him, "What they need is fresh air—I can't bear to think of their facing a summer in town."

She said it as she looked at the boy and the girl; said it and added impulsively, "How'd you like to go to the country, where the green grass is and the birds and the flowers?"

They clung to her with eager questions. "Could daddy come, too? Would you be there? Would Uncle Harry be there?"

Eileen looked at the man.

"Isn't there some way we could afford it?" she asked.

"Well," said Mather, "you're keeping a flat and I'm keeping a flat and I've heard that two can live more cheaply than one."

"You mean—that?" she asked.

"Why not? Then we could take the kids on for the Summer and times are surely getting better and Tom will win out—he's got to."

"But it would hardly do—would it?" asked the girl who had scoffed at conventions.

A rare smile lit the man's face. "There's a way to make it do," he said.

"Oh, yes, yes," said Eileen as his arms went about her.

"I told you, he ought to marry you, didn't I?" said the little boy.

New Plan by Makers of Vicks Cuts the High Cost of Colds

Saves Money, Time and Health by Better "Control-of-Colds"

Test of Plan Offered by Boston Druggists on Unlimited Guarantee of Satisfactory Results

The high costs of colds are more than ever a problem this winter. In every family, therefore, it is news of peculiar interest that the makers of Vicks VapoRub have developed a Plan for better "Control-of-Colds" in the home. A Plan to reduce the number, the severity and the costs of colds

A New Vick Product

The Plan is made possible by a new preparation — Vicks Nose & Throat Drops. Based on a new idea in "preventing" colds, it is a companion to Vicks VapoRub, the modern external way of "treating" colds. The two aid and supplement each other. Together, they make possible further reduction of the burdensome family "Colds-Tax."

Trial Offer to VapoRub Users

Use of this Vick Plan for better "Control-of-Colds" in your home will mean fewer colds—less severe colds. It will mean cutting your high costs of cold troubles—a saving in money, loss of time and health. To say nothing of the discomforts of colds and the severe ills that often follow colds. Test the Plan for yourself—without risk. Get a bottle of the new Vicks Drops today. Use it with Vicks VapoRub as directed. Unless results are entirely satisfactory, your druggist will refund the price of the Nose Drops—and the test will have cost you nothing.

Here, briefly, is the Vick Plan for better "Control-of-Colds."

1.—Before a Cold Starts

Use Vicks Nose Drops—a few drops up each nostril—whenever you have been exposed to anything which your own experience tells you is apt to give you a cold—contact with others having fresh colds, crowds, stuffy, ill-ventilated rooms, public places — a night on the Pullman or a dusty automobile ride—sudden changes in temperature, wet or cold—inhaling smoke, dust, gasses—excesses in living, such as over-eating, smoking or drinking—after a hard day, when you are over-tired

In short, don't wait for that stuffy, sneezy irritation of the nasal passages—Nature's warning that you are actually "catching cold."

2.—After a Cold Starts

At night, massage the throat and chest well with Vicks VapoRub—now available in white "stainless" form, if you prefer. Spread on thick and cover with warm flannel. Leave the bed clothing loose, around the neck so that the medicated vapors arising may be inhaled freely all night long. During the day, use Vicks Nose Drops every few hours—any time, any place. (If there is a cough, you will like the new Vick Cough Drops, actually medicated with ingredients of Vicks VapoRub.)

This gives you full 24-hour treatment and without the risks of too much internal "dosing," which so often upsets the digestion—especially of children—and lowers body resistance to disease at a time when it is most needed. Don't "dose" colds except on your doctor's advice.

Looking Over Holiday Card and Sports Map

What a sports feast has been arranged for us fans and fannies before and after the carving of the turkey, tomorrow! In the morning the time honored, hallowed, traditional schoolboy games—Latin vs. English, Salem vs. Beverly, Dorchester vs. Commerce, Brockton vs. Waltham, Newton vs. Brookline, Malden vs. Medford, Lynn English vs. Lynn Classical, Everett vs. Chelsea, Marblehead vs. Swampscott, Revere vs. St. Johns, Winthrop vs. Peabody and a flock of others. In the afternoon, before the turkey is carved, for to help the unemployed Ma generously has promised not to set the table until 5:30 or 6 o'clock, will come the annual duel between Holy Cross and Boston College with the Harvard Stadium this time as the battleground and the Mayor's Fund for the Unemployed as the benefactor. Then in the evening with the Thanksgiving Meal safely over and the turkey and all the fixin's stowed away we all can go to the Arena to see Dynamite Gus Sonnenberg, whose flying tackle once made him world's champion and may yet regain the throne for him, come back against giant Charlie Strack, the former Colgate and Oklahoma football star. Alex MacLean and Paul Bowser, jointly are staging the big grunt and groan show featured by Sonnenberg's return, in aid of the Veterans of Foreign Wars. If you think hockey will make your turkey "set" better than wrestling, why all you have to do is to trek to the Boston Garden where the Bruins will engage in an ice shindy with the Chicago Black Hawks.

Maybe some other metropolis in the land of the parched and the home of the dry has a better Thanksgiving Day sports menu than has Boston, but if so it can't be detected, even with the Lick telescope . . . Our little old Boston has all the other burgs backed off the map . . . Little birdies tell us both Alex MacLean and Cap. Jimmy Winston are being considered for the Boxing Commission . . . Governor's first idea was to turn the helm over to some independently wealthy young sportsman . . . But that woud be putting a lamb among a pack of wolves . . . Boxing needs a trained, experienced, fearless hand at the helm . . . The play that beat Notre Dame was an end around or reverse play with lanky 6 foot 3 inch Bob Hall, the giant tackle, who hadn't received a pass this year, playing end and sneaking into the Notre Dame backfield and taking the pass which put the Trojans in position for the winning field goal . . . Hockey players are said to have been socked with a 20 per cent. wage reduction, but dependent on how much this season's receipts slump from last . . . Last year's business broke all records, too.

Unbeaten Tulane and Tennessee are being talked about the country over, but unbeaten Southern Methodist, despite its victory over the Navy, is scarcely getting a tumble . . . Navy is supposed to be weak, but scouts tells us "Rip" Miller's aggregation is 50 per cent. stronger now than at the start of the season . . . Tulane beat the Texas Aggies 7 to 0 and Southern Methodist won over the Aggies 8 to 0 . . . That looks as if Southern Methodist can be spoken in the same breath with mighty Tulane after all . . . Tulane, Tennessee and Southern Methodist—beats all how the South has "come" in football . . . But New England still continues to be the nursery of football players . . . More great college players have hailed from New England than any other section of the country . . . "A beaten team is 20 per cent. stronger than an unbeaten team," is a football axiom . . . If that is so then the good Lord help the Army when it faces Notre Dame! . . . But the Army has been licked also . . . Dissension among hockey players? . . . Wouldn't be surprised if stories on wage cuts are true.

A coincidence that the great winning streak of Notre Dame and the great losing streak of Hobart both should end on the same day . . . Another angle was that Hobart beat the team that started them on their Marathon losing streak and that Notre Dame's second great winning streak was broken like the first by Howard Jones' coached California aggregation . . . The White Sox, Cleveland Indians and Brooklyn all are bidding for Tony Freitas, the Sacramento southpaw . . . A Yale man, George Foster Sanford, invented the multiple kick you saw Harvard use against Yale, last Saturday . . . Sanford first used it when coaching Rutgers . . . Sanford was some football player . . . Also, despite his huge bulk, he could step a quarter in 50 seconds . . . Leominster Lou Little can be well satisfied with Columbia's football season . . . And Columbia should realize it has a great coach.

We hope they pack the Arena until it bulges out at the sides at next Monday night's benefit to the widow of the late Jack Sheehan . . And we trust a big enough percentage will go to Mrs. Sheehan to make it a benefit to her and to her alone . . . See a good show and be helping the widow of one of the fairest, squarest sportsmen that ever lived . . . They say the Carnera-Campolo "Battle Among The Clouds" will attract a gate in excess of the $83,000 pulled in by Tony Canzoneri and Kid Chocalate . . . Looks as if the depression was over—in New York . . . Part of the Carnera-Campolo receipts will go to the Federation of Jewish Charities . . . Another reason why the gate should be a whopper . . . Boston will have to wait until next Wednesday for its next big Cauliflower Show—Lou Brouillard vs. Bucky Lawless.

Now they say Johnny Szymanski, the Fordham tackle injured in the Bucknell game, may, if he lives, be paralyzed for the rest of his life . . . Twenty-three players have been killed this season . . . Once again some will ask "Is the game worth the candle?" Dick Dunn is planning a great New England Fair for Rockingham, next July, with ten days of all kinds of sports features . No grass grows under the feet of Boston Garden's general manager . . . He'll yet prove the greatest promoter since Tex Rickard . . . If B. C. leaves enough of H. C. in the stadium, tomorrow, the H. C. vs. Yale game in the Bowl on Dec. 5 should be a pippin . . . Dartmouth is "peaking" for Stanford here at the Stadium on Saturday, but faces Brown in the Yale Bowl a week hence . . . Yale is looking for a nice "workout" against Princeton . . . If the Tiger should take the Bulldog it would be the season's greatest upset.

Wonder why Paul Bowser, the wrestling impresario, doesn't lassoo Clarence Munn, the giant Minnesota guard, who looks to have the All-American position cinched . . . Wayne Munn was a great wrestler and Monte a good boxer . . . Clarence is bigger and perhaps better than either of the other two Munns . . . Columbia, Cornell, Princeton and Penn are the teams who will compete in the round robin at Yankee Stadium on Dec. 9 . . . Riders in next week's New York six day bike race will compete in the Boston race in January .

Stanford Arrives at the End of the Long Trail Across Continent

With Coach "Pop" Warner in command, Stanford's big squad of football players from far off Palo Alto hit the end of the cross-continent trail this morning, getting off the train at Newtonville, where the American photographer was awaiting them "I'll make no predictions," says Pop, "but with Phil Moffat back in harness, Stanford will face Dartmouth with the strongest lineup it has had this season. We didn't come from the Pacific to the Atlantic to be licked, and if we are we will have no excuses," declared the noted gridiron mentor.

BOSTON PROS, WHALERS MEET

The Boston pro soccer eleven will journey to New Bedford tomorrow where it plays the Whalers of that city at Battery Park in an American league contest.

Numerous Hub fans will make the trip to the Whaling City to root for the Blue and Gold eleven and many are of the opinion that the Hub outfit can topple the leaders in tomorrow's tilt.

The Blue and Gold turned in its best performance of the season last Saturday when it held the Hakoah eleven to a tie at Lincoln Park

Jimmy Cairney, the new find, Dave Priestly, Charlie O Hare and Jack Miller will all be in the line-up against Ike Dawson's champions, and Southern New England fans are going to see a rejuvenated Hub team

Two other games are scheduled in this section, the elevens representing England and Ireland, batting at Sullivan sq. in an International tilt sponsored by the Boston and District League. The Clan McGregors and Old Timers clash at Merrymount Park, Wollaston.

The Sullivan sq. battle will be between 11 Englishmen and 11 Irishmen, selected from the teams in the loop, and as it is the first inter-country game of the season both will be out to win

HOOVER ASKED TO SEE B.C.-H.C.

Mayor Curley has invited President Hoover to attend the Boston College-Holy Cross game in the Stadium and the Dartmouth-Stanford clash Saturday

The invitation follows

Hon. Herbert Hoover,
White House,
Washington, D. C.

Holy Cross College and Boston College, two prominent institutions of learning in Massachusetts, will play a football game for the relief of the unemployed Thanksgiving Day at Harvard Stadium. Leland Stanford and Dartmouth will play Saturday on the same gridiron

As you are an alumnus of Stanford, the people of New England would be pleased to have you present at both games. I have taken the liberty of making reservations for you for both games.

James M. Curley
Mayor of Boston.

Colonials Play Gloucester Five

South End basketball fans will travel to the Lincoln House where the Colonial Club five plays the Gloucester T. T. Friday night.

McKenney Wants to Even Up Score With McEwan

Coach Joe McKenney is out to even things with Capt. John McEwan, Holy Cross mentor, tomorrow. McEwan counted a victory over the Eagles, 7-0, last fall in his first season as head coach at Mt. St. James, and the Eagles aim to make the score even in the Stadium tomorrow.

McKenney, still the "boy coach" of the football world, has pulled his squad out of a mid-season slump and the Maroon and Gold is being given an even chance to come through.

STANFORD HERE FOR GREEN TILT

The Stanford football squad of 44 players, led by Glenn "Pop" Warner arrived at Newtonville station this morning completing their 3000-mile journey from the coast for their game with Dartmouth at the Harvard Stadium on Saturday

The squad went by bus to Belmont Springs Country Club, where it will be quartered until Saturday. The squad will work out this afternoon at Belmont and tomorrow will attend the Brown-Colgate game at Providence

In spite of their long trek across the continent the Stanford players were in good condition, as they got in a practice session at every junction and will have worked off their "train legs" before game time.

Phil Moffat star halfback, who was handicapped by a bad ankle, will be ready to start against the Big Green team. Warner feels confident that he will repeat his 13 to 7 victory of last season

Pop Warner and Captain Hillman

Here are the two who will do the heavy thinking for Stanford in Saturday's big game with Dartmouth in the Stadium. Capt. HARRY HILLMAN—no relation to Harry Hillman the Dartmouth trainer—and Coach GLENN WARNER talked things over on the steps of the Newtonville Station when the Stanford squad hit the end of the long across-continent trail this morning The American photographer was on the job, as usual.

Purple and Eagles in Shape for Classic

Harvard Stadium will resound with the thunder of a new set of foes when Boston College and Holy Cross elevens clash within its high-walled enclosure tomorrow afternoon for Mayor Curley's Unemployment Fund.

For the first time in [illegible] years an athletic contest in which Harvard will not be represented will take place in the Stadium breaking a hard and fast rule which has been observed since the erection of the Crimson horseshoe.

The great cause of charity was the wedge that opened the finest gridiron in the East to the famous [illegible] rivals for their annual contest. And with a capacity attendance tomorrow, with 6[illegible] fans streaming through to the Stadium, the cause of charity will be enriched by $75,000.

Holy Cross at Home on Stadium Turf

Holy Cross is coming [illegible] from Worcester with a great team, a team which has faced the best in the East and held its own. Moreover the Purple is very much at home in the Stadium, having a spot on the Crimson schedule for [illegible] years

On the other hand [illegible] the All [illegible] 13 [illegible] Mal Cavanaugh [illegible] 19[illegible] a Maroon and Gold team made an appearance in the Crimson arena

Coach Joe McKenney [illegible] two days to initiate [illegible] the site of their final game and for the past two afternoons the Eagles [illegible] of Soldier's Field

Despite rumors of injuries from Mt. St. James, Holy Cross will be at its full strength tomorrow, and the Boston College squad is in the best physical condition of the year as a result of the return of Bill Bennett, varsity tackle, Lou Musco, end, and Charlie Callery, halfback

O'Connell, Grand Opera Ends Ready for Fray

Captain Phil O'Connell [illegible] Colucci and Jim Cavalieri [illegible] a few [illegible] the [illegible] now fit for [illegible] final game of their college career.

Boston College will match the [illegible] with Captain Joe Kelly and Dynamite Pete Chesnulevich of Nashua the sparkplug of the Maroon and Gold team. Shorter than the H. C. captain and almost as light Pete can take a tremendous amount of punishment [illegible]

With the new offense which [illegible] to [illegible] the Eagles [illegible] will take a [illegible] Freitas the second [illegible] member of starting backfield [illegible] will take care of the [illegible] end of the game and will share the passing with Kelly and Chessy.

The fourth B. C. back is a newcomer Frank Maloney of Brighton, another lightweight who teams well with the present trio

Capt. McEwan will start Phil O'Connell at quarterback calling signals to Les Griffin and Marty Murray at halfback posts and Don Kelley, fullback

Downes, Couhig, DiVenuti B. C. Stars

The rival lines will about balance, with Harry Downes, center; Phil Couhig, tackle and John DiVenuti, end, offsetting the power of Holy Cross [illegible] forwards Iggy Zyntell [illegible] Colucci and Cavalieri, end [illegible] Baironus guard

The B. C. guards are Maurice Whalen and Roscoe Taylor, who, though greatly improved, are admittedly inferior to the Purple [illegible] Baironus and Zyntell. At the tackle positions the two [illegible] to a standoff. B. C. present Phil Couhig and Dick Reynolds [illegible] 200-pounders, opposing [illegible] and Johnny [illegible]

[illegible] season's record as a whole [illegible] the Purple the advantage [illegible] the odds in the betting may drop [illegible] to even money by game time tomorrow

Nine of Crusaders Play Last Game for Holy Cross

The powerful Holy Cross eleven which is favored to defeat Boston College this afternoon will lose nine seniors who are playing their last game for the Purple Capt Phil O'Connell, quarterback, is the outstanding among the prospective graduates who include Leslie Griffin, back, Meegan, back, Jack Baronus, guard, Eddie Bergin 146-pound center, Tony Colucci and Jim Cavalieri, Grand Opera ends, and two first string wing replacements, John Callahan and Ed Tierney.

BATTERY A AND CADETS PLAY

The First Corps of Cadets and Battery A football rivals for a quarter of a century will play their [illegible] annual contest on Tech Field, Cambridge Thanksgiving Day morning [illegible]

Not for years [illegible] interest been [illegible] the contest been so keen [illegible] Practice started [illegible] both teams [illegible] against semi-[illegible] and [illegible] Boston

The Cadets coached by Lieut. [illegible] Van [illegible] have undergone a [illegible] season. Every Sunday they have played a game in the [illegible] League

First efforts were directed to a strong [illegible] game, but their star [illegible] Dobson sustained a broken ankle in an early game, hence the strategy has been directed to the aerial attack. As a result the doughboys have a [illegible] of [illegible] and with a [illegible] of [illegible] centre, [illegible] and veteran ends in [illegible] and [illegible] of [illegible] the artillery [illegible] heaviest ammunition to break through

An exciting offensive game is expected with Leeds of West [illegible] the ball. He will be [illegible] by Simpson and [illegible] both heroes of the game [illegible]

Briton, Larivee on Sheehan Card

200,000 TO SEE SCHOOL GRID GAMES TOMORROW

BOSTON TWIN BILL IS MAIN CLASSIC

By GEORGE W. GRIMM

Some 200,000 football fans will pack schoolboy stadia tomorrow morning throughout the state for the annual Thanksgiving Day classics that will be waged between traditional rivals.

The big twin-bill at Fenway Park will, as usual, draw the largest throng. It is estimated that 2,000 will pass through Bob Quinn's turnstiles to watch Latin and English and Dorchester and Commerce do battle.

Latin and English will be battling for the City of Boston championship and this is adding more interest although none is needed as a rule when these old enemies collide. English will be a slight favorite but Latin will put up a strong battle.

The Dorchester-Commerce embroglio will commence at 9 a. m. The Latin-English fire won't start flaring until 10.30 because of the funeral of the late Edward Goodale, sub-master at Latin.

Malden Invades Medford Field

Another grim fight is listed for Medford at the Fulton st. grounds, with undefeated Malden journeying there to mix things up with Medford.

Warren McGuirk's Malden team has gone through like a champion with only one blot on its record—a tie by Melrose early in the season.

Malden has much at stake. It will have a strong claim to the championship if it gets a clean-cut win over Medford and a possibility of a trip into the Midwest for a game with some sectional champion.

Salem, Beverly in North Shore Classic

Salem has the spotlight in the North Shore sector along with the Lynn civil war between Classical and English. Salem meets Beverly, the toughest team on its schedule. Salem, like Malden, is on the road to a mythical championship and must get by Beverly or be crushed after a brilliant season. Salem will be favored to win but as in all the Turkey Day football festivals, the upset jinx will be hovering close by.

Chelsea goes to Everett, Melrose plays at Arlington. Lawrence and Lowell tangle, Newton is at Brookline, Somerville and Rindge battle at Cambridge for the suburban title, Dedham plays at Norwood, Natick meets Framingham, Fitchburg battles Leominster and B. C. High and Cambridge Latin mingle at B. C. Alumni Field.

Any one of these games is a foremost attraction and countless paragraphs could be written about the tradition and rivalry and battles that are due on each gridiron, but that would take up an entire newspaper.

No matter where you go you are bound to see a thrilling game. For it's a gala day for the schoolboy athletes. The only day, as a matter of fact, in which they grab the spotlight from their older college brothers.

SHAKEUP OF B. U. STAFF EXPECTED

There will be a shakeup in the Boston University football coaching staff within the next fortnight that will probably result in the three Terrier mentors being replaced.

Head Coach Hilary Mahaney has Alton K. Masters has been Mahaney's assistant for two seasons and George Kenneally, who is the third member of the staff, has been connected with the team for one season.

These three men have worked under adverse conditions and as a result of these were unable to produce. The clamoring of the alumni and students has made it imperative for the athletic council to act and it is expected that it will announce a new coaching staff at its next meeting.

The council met yesterday and had a three-hour discussion behind closed doors. None of the members would make any statements at the conclusion of the meeting.

Prospects this year were bright. A veteran team returned and enthusiasm ran high.

All this fall there has been much dissension over player-control, and it is alleged that the coaches were not highly in favor of the plan.

Dr. Frederick Rand Rogers, who this year became head of physical education and athletics, is the sponsor of player-control and he maintains that as long as he is at Boston University, his proposed system will be in effect.

This means that the Terrier athletic leader will do all in his power to have men on his coaching staffs who are in sympathy with his ideas. It is known definitely that player-control will be used next fall, and the man who is head coach will have to proceed along these lines.

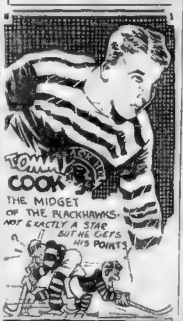
ON THE ICE



TOMMY COOK
THE MIDGET OF THE BLACKHAWKS—NOT EXACTLY A STAR BUT HE GETS HIS POINTS

The most common name in National Hockey League is Cook. There are four members of the Cook clan in the loop.

Three of them are brothers, Bun and Bill of the New York Rangers and Alex of the Bruins.

The fourth is Tommy Cook of the Chicago Blackhawks. He is related to the other three and has not as famous as Bun and Bill, but out in the Windy City they rate him not only as the best of the Cooks but one of the finest forwards in the game.

Tommy is a midget, weighing only 135 pounds, and the fact that the Hawks are referred to as "the starless team" proves that the youngster isn't very impressive in action, but his record shows that he has plenty of ability.

Coming up from Tulsa of the American League two years ago, he led the Hawks in scoring in his first season in fast company, and last year he finished second in point making.

Watch him tomorrow night when the Chicagoans make their first visit of the season here to tackle the Bruins.

Friday—George Owen.

Ruth Interested Only in Family

Kansas City, Nov. 25 (AP)—Another home run for George Herman Ruth.

En route East from California here last night, he said he was hurrying to get back to New York "home, the children and golf—then spring."

He declined, however, to enlighten reporters as to his home run plans for the next baseball season.

"Too early for that," he commented.

Injured Fordham Player Recovering

New York, Nov. 25 (INS)—John Szymanski, injured Fordham football player, was reported improved today. Physicians expressed hope for his complete recovery after an examination revealed he had not sustained a serious spine injury. The Fordham player was hurt in the game against Bucknell last Saturday.

HARVARD ICE SQUAD OUT

Harvard candidates for the varsity hockey team held a meeting at the Varsity Club to hear Coach Joe Stubbs, Capt. C. C. Cunningham and Manager Eustis Dearborn.

Eight letter men from the 1931 squad form the nucleus for this winter's team and Stubbs expects a sextet at least as strong as Harvard's 1931 team.

With Capt. Cunningham, the forward line has Baldwin, Saltonstall and Barry Wood, who formed the second-string forwards in 1931.

Johnny Farrell in Benedict Class

New York, Nov. 25 (AP)—Johnny Farrell, national open golf champion in 1928, and Miss Catherine Hush of Old Greenwich, Ct., were married in St. Joseph's Catholic Church here yesterday.

The bride is a daughter of Mrs. Henry Jerome Hush and is socially prominent in Old Greenwich. She is a graduate of Notre Dame De Lourdes Convent.

On Sunday Mr. and Mrs. Farrell accompanied by Mr. and Mrs. Gene Sarazen will leave on a wedding trip to San Francisco and the Hawaiian Islands.

Loyola Passes Up Football for 1932

Chicago, Nov. 25 (INS)—Suspension of intercollegiate football by Loyola University will be continued for another year it was announced today by Father Robert M. Kelley S. J., president of the college. Announcement followed a canvass of the faculty whose members voted to keep football off next fall's athletic program because of the success of the plan this year.

Football Yet Greatest 'Pure' Sport—Casey

By Eddie Casey

Harvard Head Coach and All-American Star

Eddie Casey will write an exclusive article for the Boston Evening American each Monday, Wednesday and Friday.

Football closes the 1931 season still pre-eminent as the greatest college sport in popular esteem and hence in many ways the most popular amateur sport in the world. The season has been peculiar as far as the general economic situation has made everything odd, but it has intrenched the merits of the game more firmly than ever in the minds and hearts of all of its protagonists.

While the crowds at the games have fallen below the figures of a year ago, the drop has not been as great as many predicted and there were several games during the season that drew record throngs of ninety or a hundred thousand. The fact that almost universally the game continued is proof again that nothing will interfere with football.

During the war, it was played in camps here and at rest stations behind the lines in France. The game has elements within it that make those playing it and those watching it better citizens and hence makes for a better nation.

To the football fan this season has brought many realizations. First and foremost is the fact that our game is now delicately poised at the point where the offensive and defensive sides of football are about equal. This has been the goal of the Rules Committee for many years because such a game is the most interesting of all. Years ago the defense had the edge in football and scores were always low. Then the offense became too strong and scores of over a hundred were common.

Few Huge Scores Piled Up This Year

This season there have not been more than three or four such scores recorded. Yet in every game both teams have scored or at least threatened, and such games as the famous 33-33 battle between Yale and Dartmouth have been staged which would have been utterly impossible a few years back.

This balance has made for encouragement to the small college team as no matter how big the other fellow might be he does not injure the little fellow and he is not certain to get away without at least one score against him. This keeps the smaller college hoping for that big chance when it may score an upset by winning the game. In this regard upsets have been numerous at all stages of the season, Oregon beating N. Y. U.; St. Mary's victory over Southern California; and numerous other such games make football as uncertain as life itself.

Such teams as Dartmouth, Boston College, Indiana, U. C. L. A., have rescued seasons that started poorly by turning in victories over old rivals late in the season. On the other hand the teams of proven class such as Northwestern, Tulane, Tennessee and a few others have gone through difficult schedules with never a let down sufficient to bring a defeat.

No outstanding new offense has come to the fore. Howard Jones at Southern California developed a new huddle, Tuss McLaughry at Brown, had a spread formation, but the vast majority of teams are sticking to the formations made famous by Pop Warner or Rockne.

Probably the play that has leaped into most universal use during the fall is the forward pass behind the line of scrimmage. While this is not new to the game it has crept into the offense of almost every coach in the country this year for the first time. It has the merit of threatening a pass down the field to hold the backs in place and developing into a play off tackle that requires those same backs up there close if it is to be stopped.

Little New Defense Play Worked Out

Defensively there is not much chance to create new ideas as almost every type of defense is universally known and used at the present time and these usually revolve about a six or seven man line. Some southern teams have gone to the extent of playing five man lines or less, but this is not possible against a well rounded attack that includes strong running plays as well as forward passes.

There have been fewer trick plays than usual, possibly because the rules are more standardized and hence do not allow for new wrinkles but more because intelligent and sportsmanlike scouting has made the coaches depend on plays that have real merit rather than those which are successful simply because of their element of surprise.

There will be the usual supply of All-American teams picked to close the season, but outstanding players are not so easy to find nowadays as a decade ago. This is partly because football becomes more and more a team game and further because teams that are successful must depend on not only eleven men working together but even a few extra subs who must be in there almost as much as the regulars.

Hence most teams are operating today with 14 or 15 men who play most of every game and thus keep up the pressure on offense. Teams which depend on 11 men only, such as Michigan State this year, have not fared too well in the later stages of their seasons. Iron men teams today must be made up of super men if they can hope to keep on winning against high class opposition.

Another exclusive article on football by Eddie Casey will appear in the sports pages of the Boston Evening American on Friday.

MAIN EVENT

Gus Sonnenberg vs. Charlie Strack (Finish match, best two in three falls).

SEMI-WINDUP

Jim Browning vs. Lee Wykoff (One fall, 30-minute time limit).

PRELIMINARIES

Nick Lutze vs. Pat McKay.
Jack Sherry vs. John Spellman.
Billy Bartush vs. Ivan Vakturoff.
Al Beveridge vs. Pat Reilly.
Al Morelli vs. Jim Heslin.
Karl Pojello vs. Boris Demetroff.
Count Zarynoff vs. Bonnie Muir.

By RINGSIDE

Charlie Strack, former Oklahoma college football star, declared today he would conquer Gus Sonnenberg when he battles the former world's champion in a finish bout, best two falls out of three, at the Arena tomorrow night at a show staged to aid the orphans of the Veterans of Foreign Wars.

Promoter Paul Bowser will turn over a part of the profits of the tournament to help build a cottage at the National Home at Eaton Rapids, Mich., for Bay State youngsters and their mothers.

Strack, one of the most powerful men in the mat game and a finished grappler, won the right to tackle Sonnenberg when he recently disposed of Count Zarynoff.

Strack is built much like Ernie Schaaf, the boxer. He has tremendous strength and is also blessed with an expert knowledge of the fine points of the mat game. He is of the opinion that these assets will upset Sonny.

Browning and Wykoff in the Semifinal

The semifinal will feature Jim Browning against Lee Wykoff. Browning recently had Henri De Glane on the verge of defeat when the latter crashed him against an iron ring post. DeGlane returned to France rather than meet Browning in a return tussle.

The colorful Nick Lutze and his famous reverse back fall will try to prove that Pat McKay, Irish champion, is just another wrestler.

Billy Bartush will battle Ivan Vaktuloff. Al Beveridge will oppose Pat Reilly, Al Morelli will take on Jim Heslin, Karl Pojello will tackle Boris Demetroff, while Count Zarynoff will mix things with Bonnie Muir.

Not to be outdone by those in charge of the gathering together of these stellar mat men, the Veterans of Foreign Wars have arranged an entertainment program which will be presented between bouts.

The Marlboro Post band prize winners of the Veterans of Foreign Wars competition, will be on hand to make the welkin ring with national and patriotic music. Billy Barker's quartet from the Iona Club of East Boston will do its stuff, while the Gossipers, famous over the air, will stage a burlesque wrestling bout between the first and second falls of the main event.

Campolo's Pilot Barred From Big Go

New York, Nov. 25 (US)—On the eve of the most important match of his career Victorio Campolo today lost the services of his manager and chief second, Louis Gutierez.

The Argentinian was notified by the state athletic commission that Guttierez will not be permitted in his corner when Campy lines up for a 15-round go with Primo Carnera at Madison Square Garden on Friday night.

BRUINS CONQUER, 7-1

CANADIENS SLOWED, THEN OUTCLASSED

By JOE CASHMAN

"They may be faster than we are, but we'll quickly slow 'em down to our gait and then proceed to lick 'em," announced Manager Art Ross as he sent his Bruins onto the ice against the world's champion Les Canadiens of Montreal at the Boston Garden.

And that's just what our ice heroes did.

It took them just 15 minutes of the first period to take all the dash and pep out of the visitors. Then they started scoring and didn't stop until they had tucked away a 7 to 1 victory.

It was one of the biggest upsets and most startling reversals of form in modern hockey, the most one-sided score in the history of the rivalry between the two clubs and the worst licking for the Flying Frenchmen in more than five years.

Bruins Give Fine Hockey Performance

What, if anything, Ross said or did to his players between Saturday night, when they were beaten 3 to 2 by Les Canadiens, and the start of this game we don't know, but the team that looked so crude and sluggish a week previous in its first home game, and was very poor while dropping three road contests, was as formidable in this encounter as ever before.

It is impossible to single out any one of the natives as the hero of the tilt. They all starred. Harry Oliver scored three goals, two of them unassisted, Dit Clapper counted twice and had two assists, Shore made the first marker, Touhey the fifth, and Cook the sixth. Others who were credited with assists are Owen and Chapman, each of whom had two.

The player most responsible for the Bruins' great win in our opinion, however, was Hitchman, and here's why.

The game had been going only a few minutes and the champions were slightly outplaying the Rossmen when the great Howie Morenz started a solo towards Tiny Thompson.

Whirling along as only he can, he shot over the blue line and set sail for the goal, but before he had advanced more than a yard Hitch hit him. Howie flew up in the air, turned over, landed on his back on the ice, and for the rest of the game he was just another hockey player. And his mates slowed up with him, as they usually do.

Bruins Profited by Rough Battle

After this smash, the game got rough and the Bruins profited. Burke, Morenz and Wentland went off for roughing and with a one-man advantage, Shore galloped down the ice to pick up a pass and shoot it home. There were only four more minutes to play in the period but the Bruins never let up and a minute before the bell, Owen passed to Oliver for the second goal.

In the second period, it was all Boston. Oliver scored a minute after the start, picking up a loose puck and carrying down alone. Three minutes later, Clapper galloped in unassisted and blazed the disc over Hainsworth's shoulders. A few seconds before the close of the stanza, Touhey caged a Clapper rebound.

Alex Cook, a first-year wing, started the Bruins' scoring in the final stanza, making his first big league tally on a pass from Chapman at the two-minute mark and Oliver shot the final native marker unassisted three minutes later.

The champions were desperate by this time and determined not to be blanked, they sent five and six men up the ice for the remainder of the game. All this effort got them was one goal by Morenz, on a pass from Joliat.

Campolo's Manager Barred From Corner

New York, Nov. 25 (INS)—Luis Gutierrez, manager of Vittorio Campolo and Kid Chocolate, will not be in Campolo's corner when Vittorio fights Primo Carnera here Friday night.

Guiterrez was suspended indefinitely by the New York Boxing Commission for failing to appear to answer charges that he declared the Chocolate-Canzoneri fight here last week was "in the bag" for Canzoneri.

The Daily Dozen

By MYLES T. McSWEENEY

Prisoners at Sing Sing will never again trust a cop. The Port Jervis police, who challenged the prisoners' eleven to a game, went out and hired a lot of ringers.

There is no satisfaction in hitting a substitute for an officer.

Fans who attended the game wondered why a group in the stands kept calling out to the Port Jervis team: "Get in there and fight. They can't hurt us." It sounded like a gang of fight managers.

Sure the prisoners couldn't hurt the police. They were all in the stands while a bunch of former high school players were taking a thumping on the field.

Several members of the prisoners' long-time all-America eleven expressed their indignation at the trick played on them by the police. "It has destroyed my faith in human nature," said Convict 41144.

"What about the ideals football is supposed to teach?" asked Convict 111111. "Some of us are doing time here for fraud."

The Port Jervis police simply laughed the matter off. "It was just a case of cheating cheaters," said the spokesman for the police.

"Honest, I'm sorry about that fellow I tackled hard," said another member of the convict team. "You see, I figured he was a cop."

Another member of the Sing Sing team, more philosophical than the rest, said:

"Well, we all know that Justice is blind. But none of us thought her representatives were double crossers."

A scholarly halfback of the prisoners' team dismissed the whole business in the phrase: "Love's Labor Lost."

Hereafter, any team claiming to be a police eleven will have to pass a foot test. The members will have to prove that every point on the soles of their feet coincides with, is congruent to, and lies in the same plane as the board itself.

Norcross Eleven, 'Gates' Play Sunday

Gate of Heaven Club, semipro football team and the strong Norcross Catholic Club will play this Sunday at the New Columbia Stadium, South Boston, for the semipro title of the district.

Bunny Shaparian, Tweet Larkin and Johnny Hayes are outstanding stars on the Norcross Club. Dutchy Murray, Johnny Ryan, Luke Lucas, Toed Forrey, former high school stars are on the "Gates."

BELMONT AND WAVERLEY IN 35TH FRAY

By BILL GRIMES

Two well balanced, strong elevens will be in action when the Belmont and Waverley town teams clash tomorrow morning at Belmont Town Field, in their 35th annual conflict.

Under their respective coaches, "Maddy" Sayles and Warren Flanders, Belmont and Waverley have been practising for weeks. For years, the rivalry between these teams has been exceptionally keen, and a victory tomorrow will give Belmont the Farnham-Corbett trophy.

Belmont has a wealth of backfield material. Coach Sayles has John Schereschewsky, Harvard's powerful line plunger; Syd Farrell, the Bates sensation; "Flash" Rogers, a first string back at Williams; "Bing" Bacon, former Belmont high captain, who played with the freshman team at Harvard this fall; Edmund Keville, a member of the Crimson 150-pound eleven, and Al Young, a regular back at New Hampton Prep.

Francis O'Toole, one of the best backs ever developed in Middlesex County, will alternate at fullback with John Schereschewsky.

Coach Sayles has three quarterbacks, all of whom are former Belmont high field generals, "Junie" Hawkes, who played goal for the Dartmouth hockey team; Herbie White, New Haven Prep, and Dick Ford.

Warren Flanders in Waverley Backfield

Coach Warren Flanders will be in the Waverley backfield. He was the best back on either team a year ago, and is expected to feature again tomorrow. Ralph Coe, Worcester Academy, will be one of Flanders' running mates.

Flanders and Coe were the outstanding ball carriers for Belmont high's undefeated elevens. Working with Flanders and Coe will be "Wolf" Larsen, Billy Teevans, Cliff Slade and Walter Farrell, all well-known B. A. A. athletes.

The presence of Henry Lamar, Harvard's boxing instructor and former professional heavyweight and George "Kayo" Lawless, Belmont's best known boxer in the Waverley lineup might be taken as an indication that everything is being done to prevent Belmont annexing its third straight victory and the Farnham-Corbett trophy.

Hub Orchestra Boss Defies Song Ban

By N. F. T.

Various and sundry developments occurred in local radio circles yesterday.

First of all, Joe Rines and his musickers took it upon themselves to defy a ruling recently made by WBZ. Joe directed his boys through the strains of "This Is the Missus," current popular song declared not permissible for transmission through that particular station.

SELECTION CUT

At least he managed to get the alleged objectionable tune under way when John Clark took the bit off the air for 20 seconds or more. Subsequently, the Advertising Club luncheon program was resumed.

It doesn't take much imagination to visualize the buzzing and exchange of opinion that followed, bearing in mind that gentlemen of the press were present in force, representing Boston daily sources of information. Some seemed to think Joe Rines did wrong, flying in the face of an established taboo. Joe on the other hand insisted vehemently that there was nothing wrong with the ditty. Debating waxed loud and long for a time, very little being definitely decided.

NEUTRAL SO FAR

Even John Elwood, NBC vice-president and guest of honor, found himself being queried in the matter. He most delightfully avoided handing down any opinion that might be considered an official attitude. His organizations' stand on the question of prohibiting this, that or the other musical selection has not yet been taken.

Some spirited controversy is imminent regarding radio censorship of the kind, unless one witness to the occurrence is venturing a worthless guess.

Bill ("Jawja") Munday was on hand too. Bill's broad Southern accent enhanced his ability to tell Darky stories so as to make folks laugh.

Jack (one of The Gossipers) Shannon visited with Mayor Curley and had the temerity to suggest that His Honor change the "James M." to "James J." in view of the fame attained by James J. Walker, James J. Jeffries, James J. Corbett and a few more J. J.'s!

LOCAL LATHER

Gerry Harrison, busy broadcasting boy in the interests of WAAB-WNAC, just heard about the WBZ barring business. He promptly expressed an opinion for himself and Linus Travers, production manager for the Yankee Network, which was, in effect, that this code of guarding against suggestive song lyrics has always been in vogue at The Buckminster studios . . . Louis (not Lewis) Whitcomb is excited about a weird dramatic sketch listed on WEEI tonight (7), based on the mystery thriller "Frankenstein," about which movie enthusiasts will be talking for some time to come . . . Walter (Hap) Myers, NBC man of affairs for New England, saw to it that Bill Munday left last night for Pittsburgh to execute that Thanksgiving Day football assignment depending upon the wordy Georgian . . . Tomorrow night you'll hear songs of Cornell, Harvard, Sanford, Dartmouth, Brown and other Eastern colleges, providing you listen to Oscar Elgarts' orchestra (WEEI) at 7.30.

CRITICISM BY PUBLIC CAN'T BE IGNORED

By B. C. FORBES

"THOSE IN HIGH PLACES are on trial. The public attitude has become keenly critical. Hard times have brought dissatisfaction. Sufferers—quite naturally—want to blame others for their misfortunes.

President Hoover is not the only target. The country's most influential bankers have incurred unprecedented ill will. Executives of gigantic corporations likewise are coming in for condemnation.

What are some of the bitter complaints voiced against men of large affairs?

Bankers Encouraged Inflation

Metropolitan bankers are unreservedly condemned for having encouraged rather than discouraged the wild inflation which led to the undoing of this country's prosperity. The charge made is that the biggest of our bankers participated in the issuance of fantastic amounts of stocks and bonds at utterly unwarranted prices. International bankers are accused of having loaded up unsuspecting American investors with wicked amounts of foreign bonds. Investors contend that these international bankers should have known that they were courting trouble.

> "The international bankers get fat commissions for foisting these loans upon the public," so runs the criticism expressed in many communications in this column. "They didn't buy their foreign bonds themselves, but got others to buy them. They pocketed their rake-off. So they're not worrying now."

Purchasers Holding the Bag

Here is another theme bitterly harped on.

> "Corporation after corporation issued reams and reams of additional stock. Bankers are directors of such corporations. These bankers did nothing to prevent corporations from taking advantage of investors. Instead, they voted for all kinds of stock increases. By getting unlimited capital from the public, corporations were able to pay off all their bank debts.

Corporation Salaries Assailed

Lately letters have come in criticising the payment of bonuses to executives. Inquisitiveness concerning salaries paid is also being expressed. A growing number of stockholders want to know how the whole facts can be ascertained. Coupled with this expressed eagerness to discover just how much is paid leading executives of big corporations is questioning of the "superior" ability of such executives in the light of what has been happening during the last two years.

Workers Freed From Burden

More recently another complaint is making its appearance. Some corporations that granted employes the privilege of subscribing for company stock on special terms, usually well below market prices, have decided to release employes from the arrangement they entered into. Current quotations naturally are far below the prices employes agreed to pay, in instalments. Therefore, employes are saved money by being released from their obligations.

> "Why should corporations remit money paid by employes for shares when they don't and won't make good the losses suffered by us?" ask stockholders. "The employes entered into a hard-and-fast agreement. If it had turned out profitable to them they would have gone through with it. Now that it is turning out unprofitable, they are asking the rest of us, the other stockholders, to hold the bag. Haven't we lost enough already without losses being increased by making good the losses of employe stockholders? The employes still have their jobs; many of us have lost our jobs.

Banks Demand Pound of Flesh

Another kick.

> "Bankers were perfectly willing to lend money freely on stocks when they were selling at boom prices. They were willing to lend far more than the stocks, in the light of events, were actually worth. The banks should have known better than do such a thing. Now that stocks are selling—so we are told—far below what they are intrinsically worth, are the bankers willing to lend even half as much as before? Not much! They insist on exacting their pound of flesh. First they encouraged us to buy at inflated prices. Now they are compelling us to sell at sacrifice prices. Does this show that these bankers are fit to occupy the positions they do occupy?"

Not a few sufferers are convinced that bankers and others who, by their action, are forcing securities lower and lower, are quietly buying up the stocks and bonds which investors are compelled to let go.

These are not pleasant facts. But they are facts. From one leading banker to whom I submitted a typical letter and asked for a reply, I have just received a note saying, in effect, "You do the replying."

My earnest advice to all in high places is that they do not sit back complacently, but exert themselves to the utmost to defend their actions. Public ill will has a habit, in a democracy, of expressing itself through legislation. Holding aloof won't avert looming danger.

POLITICS— Notes and Gossip About People You Know

MULHERN FIGHTS RATES

Former Senator Joseph J. Mulhern of Boston, who asked Governor Ely two months ago to take action leading to a reduction in telephone, gas and electricity rates, is preparing to speak before chambers of commerce and other boards. Mulhern, at the Governor's request, yesterday had a conference with him.

SEEKS REAPPOINTMENT

Miss Ethel Johnson, assistant commissioner of labor and industries, is receiving the support of many women's organizations in connection with her reappointment. Among those endorsing Miss Johnson is Mrs. Larue Brown of Boston.

WARNER WARNS OWNERS

Atty. Gen. Warner is sending letters to owners of land on the East Boston water front informing them that the state is about to expend $65,000 to remove abandoned ship hulks there and that the process will constitute a lien on their property. In other words the property owners are being told that this is their last chance to get busy and remove the hulks.

WOMAN'S BRIEF VISIT

Dr. Helen I. Doherty, prominent in Democratic politics, holds the record for the shortest visit to Governor Ely. Those who timed her entrance and exit claim that not more than two minutes were consumed. But probably the long line waiting to see the Governor had something to do with it.

TO RUN FOR OFFICE

Mrs. Elizabeth A. Montgomery of 445 West Fourth st., South Boston, vice president of the Al Smith Club of that district, today announced that she will be a candidate for the Legislature from Ward 7 next fall. She was one of the most staunch supporters of George Donovan, who was recently elected to the City Council from Ward 6 that district.

RUSH FOR TICKETS

There is a last minute rush on today to purchase tickets for the Boston College-Holy Cross football game in aid of the unemployed. The office of Budget Commissioner Charles J. Fox in room 47, City Hall, is the busiest of the various places where tickets are on sale. Tickets are also on sale at Jordan Marsh Co., Gilchrist's, Filene's, Houghton & Dutton's and at various ticket agencies throughout the city.

CONTRIBUTE $15

A contribution of $15 for the welfare department of the city was received by Mayor Curley from Jones and Gazarian, Inc., of Fulton st., last night.

THREE BENEFIT

Miss Miriam Myers of Hollander st., Roxbury, has been appointed a bookkeeper in the public welfare department by Mayor Curley. The Mayor also continued William V. Ward of 2 Warren sq., Jamaica Plain, in service as supervisor of employment for that department and ordered a salary increase of $100 a year for Miss Elizabeth E. Kelley, visitor there.

Financial News, Stocks, Bonds and Comment

—SPECTATOR— Says:

The market is beginning to act oversold and yesterday's rally seemed to have an even chance of extending into today's session, but this hope was dashed by heavy selling of the rails. If you buy anything now, don't expect more than a turn, and be sure to cut your losses short.

Too Much Company

Many shrewd traders have temporarily changed their opinion on the market due to the almost universal bearishness in speculative quarters. The reported growth of the short interest in recent weeks is another reason. The past has shown that when most everyone agrees on what the market will do they're badly fooled. Then, too, those with stock to sell may well let a little rally get going to give them a better market on which to liquidate. Demand for stocks is very slim these days.

There are a number of usually well informed sources who make no secret of their belief that the market is headed definitely higher from this point, with the advance to continue for about a week or so.

Auburn

Reports are current that the old crowd is active in Auburn again and threatening to "get" the shorts. It would seem that real constructive action in Auburn will await introduction of the new models and the reaction of the public to these.

It's curious that an oil ruling, the one permitting the N. Y. Standard-Vacuum merger — preceded by a week or so the sensational June rise in stocks. The Hoover moratorium followed to do the trick.

Here and There

There is a growing feeling that Congress won't throw any bricks at the utilities this session. Fear of this has been one factor overhanging the power and light stocks. Retiring $30,000,000 of its bonds is constructive on Standard of New Jersey . . . General Electric is expected to pay the regular dividend at the next meeting of the board. Informed buying is coming into Pullman. Further reduction in lead prices and collapse of the silver boom explain the slump in American Smelting.

Houdaille Hershey Profit Is $486,329

Houdaille-Hershey Corp. reports for nine months ended September 30 net profit of $486,329 after taxes and all charges, including depreciation. As of September 30 current assets were $3,565,498 and current liabilities $302,148. Of current assets, cash and government securities were $2,399,541.

St. Mary's Mineral Merger Is Approved

Stockholders of St. Mary's Mineral Land Co. by substantially more than the necessary two third of the 160,000 outstanding shares, approved sale of the company to Copper Range Co. for 160,000 shares of the latter's stock.

MARKET STAGE MONOPOLIZED BY CARRIERS

By FRANK H. McLOON

Center of the stage in the stock market is still being monopolized by the railroads. The carriers are expected to meet the final test on voluntary wage cuts December 8 when rail representatives meet 1500 delegates from 21 railway labor organizations in Chicago. If this movement results in the widely expected disagreement, the next step would be to move formally for wage reductions under the current transportation act.

It is certain much time would be consumed before any definite results can be had. Well-informed Wall and State st. leaders do not expect any reorganizations of important railroad systems will be called for, and therefore feel that the existing emergency has been well discounted, perhaps over-discounted, by current prices for the major carriers. The interstate commerce commission will soon have hearings on the railroads' counter-proposals to its pooling plan.

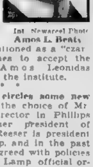
Oils have been showing firming tendencies at times this week. American Petroleum Institute representing 4300 oil leaders has done nothing about the reported plan to have a "czar" for the industry. Vice-President Curtis and a salary of $250,000 a year were mentioned in gossip, but nothing has happened. Edwin B. Reeser, retiring president of the A. P. I., also mentioned as a "czar" possibility, declines to accept the responsibility. Amos Leonidas Beaty now heads the institute.



Int. Newsreel Photo
Amos L. Beaty

In speculative circles some new hope centers on the choice of Mr. Beaty, also a director in Phillips Petroleum, former president of Texas Co. Mr. Reeser is president of Barnsdall Corp. and in the past has not always agreed with policies suggested in The Lamp, official organ of Jersey Standard.

President Teagle of Standard Oil of New Jersey, in announcing redemption of $30,000,000 Standard Oil of New Jersey 5s of 1946, shares a more hopeful attitude regarding the capital structure of the industry. He says:

> "Current earnings of . . . the industry . . . do not show satisfactory return on the investment. As the industry is now amply supplied with facilities to meet requirements, there will be no need for large capital expenditures in the near future."

One big Boston partner in a major New York Stock Exchange house today comments:

> "As oil is one of the few commodities for which demand has continued to increase in unfavorable times and with regulation believed nearer solution than in many other industries, Standard Oil of New Jersey appears attractive at or below current prices."

Today's News of Live Stocks in Wall Street

TODAY'S weakness in the rail shares was attributed to uneasiness over the wage dispute, which now promises a long drawn-out controversy between the executives and union labor chiefs. Unsettlement was accompanied by another outpouring of railroad stocks, which carried prices of a number of the favorites to the year's lowest prices.

Westinghouse and Steel Set Lows

U. S. Steel and Westinghouse Electric, favorite bear targets today joined the list of market favorites setting new lows. Big Steel went down in the face of reports large automotive orders would be placed this week.

Lorillard to Redeem $15,000,000 in Bonds

Following the example set by other companies, P. Lorillard Co., tobacco manufacturer, today announced that it had called for redemption on Jan. 1, 1932, all of its issued and outstanding 10-year 5½ per cent debentures at 101¼ and accrued interest. A total of $15,000,000 of the debentures was issued in July, 1927.

Underwood Elliott's Financial Position

Although the dividend on Underwood Elliott Fisher was reduced to a $3 a share annual basis from $4 a share recently, reflecting the reduction in business, the company has maintained a strong financial condition. As of the end of September the company had current assets of $14,900,000, while cash holdings amounted to approximately $4,500,000.

Earnings Estimate of Borg-Warner

Interests who often have good information on Borg-Warner state that present indications are that earnings in November and December will be better than those for October, when the company was working at a low rate of activity. There has been some improvement in business as a result of the improved activity of automobile manufacturers. This has resulted in some fair-sized orders.

Noranda Mines' Outlook Earnings

Private advices from Canada state that it is estimated Noranda this year will have earnings of better than $1.25 a share after all charges. It is added that the company has been mining only the lower grade of material recently but with any improvement in general business, and particularly in connection with metals, it is probable that the richer ore will be handled. This would mean a reduction in costs and a higher margin of profit on the outturn.

Ford Operations to Aid Briggs

Increased operations by Ford will help Briggs and this fact has been responsible for a moderate amount of speculative buying of the stock on a scale during reactions. Interests who have taken a long position in the stock maintain that the earnings for the third quarter must be considered creditable, when it is remembered that there was a sharp reduction in unit production as a result of the smaller production of automobiles in the period.

Dividends

Federated Department Stores, Inc., declared dividend of 25 cents a share, payable Jan. 2 to stock of record Dec. 21. This is same amount as declared three months ago when the initial payment was ordered.

American Locomotive Co. has omitted quarterly dividend of 25 cents on common. It declared regular quarterly dividend of $1.75 on preferred, payable Dec. 31.

BOSTON STOCK PRICES MOVE DOWNWARD

Prices moved downward in trading on the Boston Stock Exchange today during most of the session. Atchison and Pennsylvania railroads set new lows, the former off over 3 and the latter down more than a point.

Old Colony railroad sagged a point. Losses of a point or more appeared at the same time for New England Telephone, United Fruit, General Electric, Edison and American Woolen preferred. American Telephone quickly receded over 3 points.

New England Equity moved against the trend, rising nearly a point. Gilchrist also advanced fractionally. United Shoe and Bigelow-Sanford dipped fractions.

Springfield awarded to Shawmut Corp. at 3.48 per cent, $400,000 loan due May 25, 1932. Other bidders were: Springfield National Bank 3.54 per cent and Day Trust 4.09 per cent.

Springfield also sold to Faxon Gade Co., at 3.85 per cent the $600,000 notes to be discounted Nov. 27 and payable May 25, 1932 issued in anticipation of water bonds. The notes had been offered on Nov. 24 but no bids were received at that time.

London Silver Lower

—STATE ST.— Hears:

That, considering the bearishness of the financial community, the market has held surprisingly well. The short account continues to increase and it may safely be said that it is now large in relation to the turnover. If wheat and silver are able to weather additional selling flurries it will not surprise observers if a more determined effort is made to drive the short interest to cover.

Hudson

Hudson is one of the motor manufacturers preparing an aggressive sales campaign, backed by vigorous newspaper advertising, for its new models. The company is attracting buying from sources impressed with the features incorporated in the new car. At the same time they feel Hudson is catering to prospective motor buyers in the price class most likely to get the bulk of 1932 business. At current levels the shares are priced at about twice cash and easily marketed security holdings. Because production schedules will be stepped up slowly until after the turn of the year buyers do not expect too much at present.

Dispatches telling of meager steel orders by automobile concerns are in line with forecast of this column that motor officials want to end the year with good cash reserves, small inventories and a fair backlog of orders.

Switching

Some stock market writers have seen fit to emphasize the selling of investment trusts. Usually they refer to this selling as impatient liquidation. This is hardly the whole story and results in the creation of a false picture. In the case of one trust, credited with the disposal of large blocks of Western Union and other utilities, the funds released were immediately put to work in other securities. Obviously this switching creates as many favorable situations as it does unfavorable.

The motive behind such an operation is to get rid of securities whose future does not hold the promise of old. Also the trusts are often able to increase the net return on their investment.

Boardroom Briefs

Some buying of Warren is said to be based on the expectation the company will be awarded a large order in the near future . . . One of the most outspoken of recent bear leaders was reported as covering at the time he advised customers in a local board room to get short of the market . . . On Tuesday, the market ignored a usual bear signal when Pennsylvania and Western Union established new lows . . . A Boston broker reports what he terms excellent buying in Gillette . . .

Until more seasonable weather arrives purchases in the store section can be held in abeyance. In the meantime shorts may engage in a drive and while uncovering more attractive buying levels build the base for an even better rally.

NEW FIRM HAS R. I. PLANT

New England Power Association has transferred ownership of the electric power plant of United Electric Railways Co. of Providence, to a newly formed subsidiary, Power Realty Company, involving a $2,150,000 property transfer.

Hereafter the traction company will purchase its electric power from Narragansett Electric Co., another subsidiary of New England Power Association, at the rate of 15 mills per kilowatt hour. The contract with Narragansett Electric will run for 20 years with right of discontinuance on two years' notice by either party.

While no funds are involved in the transfer, the result should be an increase in earnings all around. Although revenues of the trolley company have declined substantially and requirements for electricity in consequence have dwindled, fixed charges on the power plant property remained stationary.

RAIL SELLING IS EXTENDED IN WALL ST.

New York, Nov. 25—Selling of the railroad shares was extended in today's pre-holiday session of the New York Stock Exchange.

Heavier offerings of the carriers, most of which went to new lows, brought sympathetic selling in other sections of the market.

Both U. S. Steel and American Can made new minimums on losses of more than 3 points.

SETBACKS FOR CARRIERS

Declines in Atchison and Union Pacific exceeded 4 points while Southern Pacific, Lackawanna, Reading and New Haven were off 2 or more. American Telephone's loss was 4 and Allied Chemical's 5. Eastman tumbled 6. Transactions approximated 1,500,000 shares.

grains, inability of cotton to hold yesterday's gains, weakness of the pound sterling and the heavier tone of bar silver contributed to selling in the stock market.

Discouraged security holders apparently abandoned hope of early settlement of the railway wage problem and saw little of cheer in various trade reports. Activity at times was heavier than in preceding market sessions of this week.

Publication of additional railroad earning reports for October, disclosing shrinkage of more than 25 per cent in revenue as compared with last year, and the car loading total, which was down a shade more on the week than seasonal, caused early selling in the rails and in the afternoon this spread to other sections of the list.

EYES ON EUROPE

The primary American markets are still watching closely developments in Europe.

Favorable reaction to announcement that the Reichsbank recently had lifted the bars on export of German capital in sufficient amount to absorb a $6,000,000 maturity of Government guaranteed bonds in this country has been more than offset by conflicting reports on the outlook with regard to Germany's February maturities which include large amounts of short term credits.

Further weakness of sterling accentuated this general concern today, with leading New York houses reporting moderately heavy shifting of sterling into dollars.

Railroad wage adjustments will apparently consume more time than most had anticipated. While acceptance of a cut by Florida & Georgia trainmen had created some optimism, there were no developments today to indicate that the brotherhoods planned to deviate from their attitude as expressed by their leaders in conference with eastern railway presidents.

A note of cheerfulness was furnished in the Iron Age report, which, while it showed a decline in production rate to 29 per cent of capacity, expressed hope that release of orders from automobile manufacturers might be quickened next month by Ford's activities. Assembly of the new Ford cars it is expected will start around mid-December.

Decrease of 3.9 per cent in electric output for the week ended Nov. 21 compared with the same week of last year was relatively better than for any week since last Oct. 3. The decline reported in the preceding week was 5.2 per cent.

New England Rails Give Their Reports

Both the Boston & Maine and the New Haven made their financial reports public today. The Boston & Maine Railroad reports for October net income of $253,044, comparing with net income of $772,533 in 1930. In 10 months ended October 31 net income was $3,145,050, comparing with net income of $4,807,986 for corresponding period of last year.

New Haven reports for October surplus of $542,197, comparing with surplus of $1,536,698 in October, 1930. For 10 months ended October 31, balance was $4,155,237, against $9,220,277 in first 10 months of 1930.

Tobacco Products Plans $10 Payment

Tobacco Products, Inc. is planning a distribution of assets to stockholders. Statement issued by the company declares:

"A plan for the voluntary distribution of assets of Tobacco Products was considered at a meeting of directors, and will be presented to stockholders this week. It provides for approximately $10 for each share of common stock.

"No United Cigar Store common stock will be thrown on the market. If anything, the holdings of United Cigar Stores common stock by United Stores Corporation will be increased."

Trading Is Dull in N. Y. Bond Market

New York, Nov. 25—Trading was dull in the bond market today. Although indications of better conditions in the sounder securities list were not lacking, at the same time traders and investors were inclined to mark time before making heavier commitments. There was a mixed interest in United States obligations, some of the Liberties selling off, while the Treasury issues were bought at a slight advance.

Silver Is Easier in N. Y. Dealings

New York, Nov. 25 (AP)—Bar silver was easier in the New York market today, declining ⅜ of a cent to 29⅜ cents an ounce. The metal was heavy in London, where it sagged a quarter of a penny to 18 7-16 pence.

Foreign Exchanges

Demand sterling $3.66⅜. Lire 5.13½ cents. Franc 3.91⅝ cents.

Big Steel Orders Are Expected This Week

New York, Nov. 25—Iron Age, reviewing today conditions in the iron and steel industry, says Ford Motor Co. is expected to place substantial steel orders this week for December rolling and, in addition, will contract with steel mills for its first quarter requirements, calling for a minimum of 100,000 tons. Ford's needs may amount to as much as 300,000 tons of steel, although this will depend on retail sales of motor cars.

Release of this business, which will be accompanied by similar blanket orders for other materials used in automobile manufacturing, may do much toward stimulating the lagging purchases of other automobile manufacturers.

December output of automobiles, according to estimates gathered by the Iron Age, will be between 125,000 and 150,000 units, against 86,000 in October and probably a slightly smaller number this month. The steel that will be needed next month for automobile manufacture may tend to offset the usual year-end decline in miscellaneous construction prompted by inventory retrenchment.

Aside from the automobile companies, industrial activity, as reflected in steel orders, is still marked by extreme irregularity, gains in some directions being modified by losses elsewhere. The net result, partly influenced by the holiday, is a decline in steel ingot production this week to 29 per cent of country's capacity, against 31 per cent in the two preceding weeks.

Locomotive Dividend Off

New York, Nov. 25 (AP)—American Locomotive Co. today omitted quarterly dividend of 25 cents a share on common stock due at this time. Regular quarterly disbursement of $1.75 on the preferred stock was authorized, payable Dec. 31 to stock of record Dec. 11.

Plans Lower Grain Trade Unit

New York, Nov. 25—Grain trade of New York Produce Exchange voted in favor of lowering the unit of trading in bonded wheat futures to 1000 bushels from 5000. Proposal goes before Exchange's board of managers for ratification at meeting in early December.

Business Machines' Sales Up

New York, Nov. 25—International Business Machines reports business this quarter continues good. A special sales drive is producing good results. Volume of the Dayton Scale division, for example, in October exceeded any previous month in four years, with orders received October 31, setting a record for a day's incoming business

London Gilt-Edged Issues Up

London, Nov. 25—Sterling improved and gilt-edged issues were up on the stock exchange today. German bonds were weak, and the general list mixed. Closing was irrgeular on the Paris bourse.

Continental Can Company Expands

New York, Nov. 25 (AP)—Continental Can Co. has acquired the assets and can manufacturing business of the Gordon Can Co., of Omaha, Neb. The property acquired includes a modern four-story concrete plant with good sidetrack facilities.

New Exchange Listings

New York, Nov. 25—New York Stock Exchange will admit the following on notice of issuance: American Power & Light Co., 59,023 additional shares of no-par common, Household Finance Corp., 41,000 additional shares of participating preference stock, $50 par, (convertible).

HOUGHTON'S TO REVEAL BIG "MYSTERY"

A mystery attraction, which will require three entire windows in Beacon st. for its display, will be revealed tomorrow in the Houghton & Dutton Co. as a Christmas feature.

All work on the mystery feature, which will be more amazing even than those of previous years, is being done in secret, with even the employes unable to guess what it will be.

The Houghton & Dutton Co., each year, has presented an attraction that has made its toy world famous all over New England. It was the first to bring Santa Claus to Boston with real live reindeer and was the first to land him in Boston in a real airplane, as well as the first to have Santa Claus broadcast to New England children.

All New England people are invited to the unveiling Thanksgiving Day.

Port of Boston

By GEORGE HAMBLIN

REUNION

Three old-time shipmasters, two of whom are retired, met in the office of Nathaniel Doane, State st., and the trio of friends aggregated 251 years in their ages.

Capt. Oscar Gilman Eaton of East Boston, 90, is known as the oldest squarerigger skipper in New England. Capt. Henry K. Doane, 85, of Harwichport, the oldest towboat captain in this port, and one of the original Doane towboat captains. Capt. William C. Durkee, 77, of Braintree, a former towboat skipper, and still an active harbor pilot.

Years of stories were retold while the three skippers reclined in easy chairs and more than one story of the clipper ship era found its way into the discussion.

STERN REPAIRED

A broken stern frame on the motor barge Supreme, suffered during its recent trip here, is being repaired at the Simpson plant of the Bethlehem Shipbuilding Company in East Boston. It is estimated that the Supreme will be ready for service before the end of the week.

SHRUB CONTRACT

The Brewer Drydock Co., Mariner's Harbor, Staten Island, has been awarded the contract for repairing the lighthouse tender Shrub, which was seriously damaged by grounding off the Maine coast some time ago.

This company was the lowest bidder, but before the award could be made confirmation had to be received from the Bureau of Lighthouses at Washington.

When the approval of the bond is received, the Shrub will be towed from R. T. Green Company's plant in Chelsea to Staten Island.

Reardon Defends Extra Session Pay

Branding criticism fired at the Legislature for accepting extra pay for attending the special automobile insurance session as unfair and unjust, Rep. John J. Reardon of South Boston, speaking before the Women's Democratic Club of Massachusetts, at the Hotel Bradford, last night, insisted that many members of the Legislature resented the attacks which have been hurled at them.

He contended that they had worked hard and that it was no fault of theirs that a satisfactory solution of the problem had not been reached.

SEAL SALE ON TO FIGHT DISEASE

One hundred and twenty thousand letters containing Christmas seals will be mailed to the people of Boston.

The association maintains a camp in Mattapan, where children who have been exposed to tuberculosis have their bodies built up and their resistance to the disease increased.

Thanksgiving, 1931

A Day for Thinking of Others

The Boston Evening American expresses the cordial and sincere hope that you all will enjoy a happy Thanksgiving Day.

Thanksgiving Day is peculiarly a New England institution.

It originated with the Puritans.

They fell upon their knees and gave thanks to Almighty God when the rescue ship from Ireland and England came into the harbor with its load of supplies and provisions to save them from starvation.

In the succeeding generations it has been definitely fixed in the harvest time, when the prayers of a grateful Nation thank the Divine Providence for bumper crops as a symbol of the material blessings that have come to them throughout the year.

Our people, probably on the fag end of a depression that has brought suffering and misery to many homes, would welcome a rescue ship today.

Many millions are at work, with undiminished incomes to buy what they want in a low-priced market much to their advantage. They have adequate cause to be grateful and happy on the morrow and to let their spirit ring out in paeans of joy.

On the other hand, several millions are out of work looking hopefully to the day soon when they need not rely upon charity but can rear their heads in the dignity of honest labor.

It is they who command your utmost consideration.

Bring them into your homes on Thanksgiving Day. Let their children share the joy of your own fortunate children. Decide yourself to remove the veil of despair which hangs over others.

Then let us all resolve to build a rescue ship for 1931 such as lifted privation from the sturdy founders.

The national government must be compelled by us to do this.

Mr. Hearst's Five-Billion-Dollar Prosperity Loan, if issued promptly by Washington, would promptly put 3,000,000 men to useful work, building up the natural resources of the country and providing a great army of our citizens with a living wage sufficient for themselves and their women and children.

Everybody would then have cause to be grateful and happy in this wonderful holiday season which should breathe the spirit of contentment and peace and goodwill among men.

The benefits of such a beneficent program would flow to every corner of the country, to every trade, business and profession.

The cornucopia of material blessings would be full to overflowing. General prosperity would settle upon us. The hour of depression would vanish overnight and be hardly a memory.

Football for the Needy

B. C. and Holy Cross Show Fine Spirit

Boston College and Holy Cross College will play their annual football game on Thanksgiving Day afternoon, this time in the Harvard Stadium.

It will not alone provide a spectacle of color, a brilliant scene and an athletic magnet which will attract many thousands of thrilled onlookers.

IT WILL SUPPLY A DEFINITE AND VERY CONSIDERABLE CONTRIBUTION TO THE RELIEF OF THE POOR AND NEEDY.

The profits of this fine contest are to be delivered to Mayor Curley's Committee for the Relief of Unemployment and it is, therefore, deserving of every penny of patronage and every measure of success possible.

Neither of these colleges is rich in endowments. Their officers and their students have back of them a heritage of experience of the suffering and misery of practical life.

They know the needs of the poor and afflicted.

Knowing them, it is to their credit they have not turned away from them.

Just Folks

Thanksgiving

If in the cold, bleak days of old
Our Pilgrim fathers thought
Upon God's blessings manifold
And all His wonders wrought;
If they amid the pain and smart
Of constant strife with care
Could pause and set one day apart
For gratitude and prayer,
Are we so cruelly beset
That all God's mercies we forget?

If they who walked with death each day,
And poverty and toil,
Could bare their heads and kneel to pray
Upon the snow-clad soil;
If they could feel God's presence near,
Despite their thinning ranks,
And at the closing of the year
Return to Him with thanks
For all His blessings should not we Today His grateful children be?

As once they prayed, so let us pray:
"Dear Lord, for all Thy care;
For Thy great love from day to day
Accept our grateful prayer.
For the rich harvest of the field,
For fruit of vine and tree,
For the eternal truth revealed
In all that comes from Thee;
For all Thy mercies while we live
Acknowledgment once more we give."

Listen, World!

By Elsie Robinson

Thanks—For What?

THANKSGIVING DAY again! "Give thanks—for what?"

Are you saying that with an angry snarl or a self-pitying whimper? Well, I don't blame you. I've seen Thanksgiving Days when I felt like that myself. And yet—

I suppose, when you stop to think of it, that first Thanksgiving Day couldn't have been such a hot sketch, either.

We whine about OUR "depression." They had the original issue!

We think we have poor pickings now. But think what the pickings were then, for those lonely adventurers, huddled on that hostile "rock bound shore."

1621—their first harvest. A meagre harvest gathered from reluctant soil. A few pumpkins . . . a little meal . . . a sourish sauce made from the wild beach plums . . . a rabbit or a partridge roasted in the open coals—

There it was, that poor feast, spread on the treasured white cloth that had come from old England. And there, with the wind plucking at their thin clothes . . . and the taste of snow thickening on the air . . . and the sound of the surf rising in a snarl . . . they gathered to give thanks.

Ever see a bunch of bundlestiffs contriving a meal out of tin cans in the jungle under the railroad bridge? Putting aside all the patriotic ga-ga, that's what they were like—those brave, pitiful men and women who started this Thanksgiving idea.

Gray sea . . . gray sky . . . gray, grudging years ahead—

Put yourself in THAT picture!

Yourself, alone, in that cold, savage land—

With all the joy and comfort and peace that you'd ever known shut off forever by the moaning miles of sea . . . and the thought of the old land lying like a stone in your heart.

The wet, black smell of gardens . . . and thyme—

The dead leaves burning . . . and the children's shouts—

The curfew calling, through the dark, sweet air—

An opening door—your mother's welcoming smile—

Thanks—for what?

For poverty? God knows there was enough of that . . . enough of bitter work and danger, too.

For sickness? The sound of a pine box sliding into the sea . . . the sound of a man screaming in an agony they could not heal—the thought of a tiny grave, there, at the edge of the wood . . . thanks for that?

YET THEY GAVE THANKS!

Poor, weak, lonely, menaced by a thousand perils without and a plucking heart ache within—STILL THEY GAVE THANKS!

Thanks—for what?

THANKS FOR FREEDOM!

Thanks for the chance to live honestly at last and worship God as they saw fit!

Thanks for the chance to build a refuge where other men might do the same!

Thanks for the chance to give all they had, to suffer all they could, if only they might establish their great dream in this far wilderness.

Penniless, homeless, shabby, half starved—there they stood and gave thanks FOR THE RIGHT TO SUFFER AND DIE FOR FREEDOM!

And now tomorrow—it's Thanksgiving again—

And we stand, huddled on no stormy shore, but rich and safe, with power over all the world . . . but slightly muddled—

And you complain because you still must use the same old car—

And I complain because I can't buy sable furs—

If THEY could see us now—

Those tragic, gallant souls who spent their all to give us liberty—

If THEY could see us now—

WHAT WOULD THEY SAY?

New York Day by Day

Female Sherlock Holmes

NEW YORK, Nov. 25—A tall, Junoesque lady with the breath of Killarney in her voice is Manhattan's female Sherlock Holmes. At the age of 33, with soft auburn hair and a schoolgirl shyness meeting strangers, she is the only woman to operate a huge private detective chain.

Up to date she has never lost a case in court, and she has been sleuthing for 15 years. Her name is Adelaide F. Jennings. Rochester born, and she occupies an expansive suite of offices in the shadows of the public library on Fifth avenue.

Miss Jennings started in the detective business professionally with a capital of $2.50. Her parents had decided upon a teaching career for her, but she bolted the parental yoke and came to New York, a little bewildered, but in some magical manner earning $500 as her first fee.

She has the happy faculty of being at home with a ten-cents-a-dance girl as well as a flapper debutante off the Gold Coast. She has mingled in the role of guest at Park avenue weddings and as a toothless old hag has invaded the underworld cache of counterfeiters.

The only scar of her adventuring is a bullet wound in her arm, the result of protecting a young girl from a white slaver's wrath. She has been close enough to death several times to feel its chill, and never flinched, but fled from a banquet room when suddenly called upon to speak.

It is her belief women are important in detective work because of that superior reasoning defined as "intuition." A lady of utterly untheatrical temperament, she is infatuated with the theatrical. It is her hope to clasp a hand on the shoulder of a reigning Capone and say: "Baby, come with me."

Tom J. Geraghty is a student of the color of words. He submits as favorites; roundelay, jasmine, rainbow, greensward, daffodils, moonstone, toreador, rhythm, enchanted, gazelle, narcissus, delicious, coloratura and cuddle. My preferences include: glamorous, attenuation, crepuscular, sombre, monotone, argle-bargle, splendorous, holocaust, unbelievably, nexus and flippancy.

Harry Reichenbach's posthumous book, "Phantom Fame," records with burly vigor a brand of ballyhoo that has passed. Harry was a bright sparrow of life, trigger-minded and superlatively gifted in transmuting the dross of mediocrity into the gloss of genius. He delivered live lions in hotel rooms to Mr. T. R. Zann to pack a movie featuring "Tarzan." And capers like that. Also Reichenbach minted the best of the smart cracks of his day and was a compelling figure in the now vanished Broadway we like to romanticize.

Resourcefulness of beggars festoons a depressed world with a grip of humor these days. A motor car cadger, suggesting a group picture of the Marx Brothers, staggered to the open window of an auto held in a traffic floodgate. The owner waved him away. Walking around to the other side, he stuck his head in the window and hiccuped: "Since when can't a gentleman cross the street without a dirty insult?"

I think the best of the stories about the late and beloved Dwight Morrow concerns his acceptance of the ambassadorship to Mexico. A close friend chided him for taking the post. He wanted to know why a man of such extraordinary talents should bury himself in that decadent country, and wound up with: "What in the world can you do for such people?" Mr. Morrow thought a while and finally replied: "Well, I can love them."

* * *

Christopher Morley has for a long time been trying to persuade a certain illegitimate vintner in the Forties to rubricate over his speakeasy bar the martial and appropriate line from "Antony and Cleopatro" which reads: "I have yet room for six scotches more."

* * *

Writes Mrs. F.: "I was glad to get a glimpse of you and your spats at Bernard Sobel's tea party the other afternoon?"

What Do You Know?

Match correctly:

1. She Stoops to Conquer	Walt Whitman
2. Riders of the Sea	Alfred Tennyson
3. In Memoriam	Oliver Goldsmith
4. Little Dorrit	J. M. Synge
5. Leaves of Grass	Charles Dickens

Who said:

6. "One touch of nature makes the whole world kin"?
7. "'Tis distance lends enchantment to the view"?
8. "We are as near heaven by sea as by land"?
9. "Cast thy bread upon the waters"?
10. "To see a world in a grain of sand"?

Do you know:

11. Who was the American hero of the battle of Bunker Hill?
12. What is associated with the name "gruyere"?
13. What is a Herculean task?
14. Who is the most noted hero of Cervantes?
15. Who loaned Antonio money in "The Merchant of Venice"?

Answers to today's test:

1. Oliver Goldsmith. 2. J. M. Synge. 3. Alfred Tennyson. 4. Charles Dickens. 5. Walt Whitman. 6. Shakespeare. 7. Thomas Campbell. 8. Sir Humphrey Gilbert. 9. Bible. 10. William Blake. 11. Gen. Putnam. 12. Cheese. 13. Very difficult one. 14. Don Quixote. 15. Shylock.

The Drama Shifts to Washington

By Claude G. Bowers

WITH CONGRESS about to convene, the most interesting American news is trickling out of Washington. Jack Garner, a real Jacksonian in character and temperament, is assured of the speakership and this is not alarming to Republicans who know he will be fair. He has breakfasted with John Curry, the Democratic leader of New York City, usually described as the head of Tammany Hall, and found him a delightful gentleman. In facetious mood, Mr. Garner announces that he found none of the hoofs or horns of caricature. Instead he found a modest, soft-spoken, kindly gentleman, interested, like himself, in the coming triumph to the Democratic Party.

Just what is to be done to meet the $2,000,000,000 deficit of the Hoover regime is still in a nebulous stage, men differing widely as to how to get the money. Meanwhile, in the home of Senator Walsh, of Montana, Democratic leaders wisely have met to plan the party program for the Winter. And in the Republican camp there is consternation over the evident determination of the insurgents to unhorse Senator Moses, whose contemptuous fling about "wild jackasses" in the agricultural sections still rankles in the minds of the affronted.

Insurgent Group Gains Great Power

It is remarkable that the insurgent group of the Republicans in the Senate have attained so much power, despite the policy of excluding them from strategic positions. In the old Aldrich days this would have been impossible. Reactionary leadership has deteriorated in cleverness since those halcyon times. It is almost incredible that some of the most important chairmanships are now held by "the sons of wild jackasses." Borah is at the head of the Foreign Relations Committee; Norris of the Judiciary Committee; Couzens of the Interstate Commerce Committee; Johnson of the Commerce Committee; La Follette of the Manufactures Committee, and Norbeck of the Committee on Banking and Currency. If men once living and now dead meet in the shades and discuss the proceedings done before, it would be interesting to listen in on the conversations of Aldrich, Eugene Hale, Julius Caesar Burrows and Spooner. Such things were impossible in their day.

Vengeance of People Falls on Reactionaries

Of course, Watson, Moses and Reed do not approve, but the vengeance of the people has fallen upon the reactionaries from time to time, and death has taken its toll and, under the rule of seniority, the insurgents have moved up to the chairmanships automatically. But it will be noted that the Finance Committee, the happy hunting ground of privilege for generations, is still in the hands of the reactionaries. When the insurgents get that committee the Bastile falls.

In the "good old days" Aldrich handled these matters better because more ruthlessly. Thus there came a time when there was a vacancy on the Finance Committee to which Dolliver, of Iowa, aspired, and with reason. He had served on the Ways and Means Committee in the House and for years had been used in close debates, where his remarkable ability made him a host within himself. But, just before, he had refused to bow to the yoke in the rate regulation fight and Aldrich pronounced him "unsound." He was refused a place on the Finance Committee and an obscure new man from Michigan, who would do as he was told, was put on.

That was a stupid piece of ruthlessness. It made Dolliver so ruthless that within a year he was tearing the cotton schedule to tatters in one of the most tremendous speeches ever heard in the Senate during the fight on the Payne-Aldrich bill. That was the beginning of the end of "ruthlessness" and of the oligarchy of privilege. It is too late to return to the old methods.

Democratic Party May Organize Senate

If the reactionaries refuse to throw Moses to the sharks at the instance of the insurgents there is a possibility that the Democrats may organize the Senate, which is Republican by a meagre majority. If the reactionaries vote for Moses for president pro tem, and the insurgents for one of their own number, the Democrats will control in the organization. This, however, is not the sort of control they will want. A minority in control is always hopelessly handicapped. They would lack the power and yet be so situated that responsibility for legislation and policies they could not dominate would be passed to them. It would be infinitely better for them to organize the Senate only when they have a clear majority and a positive mandate in the Senate.

Ridicule Dominates Johnson's Demand

Meanwhile the demand of Senator Johnson of California that Mr. Hoover announce that he does not choose to run next year is overloading him with jeers and ridicule. But the very intensity of the fury against him is a revelation of the seriousness of his demand. It is not encouraging for the Senator from a President's own State to lead in the demand for his elimination; and especially when that particular Senator so easily eliminated the President from the consideration in California in 1920. Mr. Hoover never has had any such hold on California as Hiram Johnson. Neither has any other Republican in twenty years. Mr. Hughes once took too seriously the jeers of the Eastern press at Johnson, and that was fatal. On the night of the election in 1916 reporters calling at the Hughes home were informed by the butler that:

"The President has retired."

He awoke the next morning to learn that California had retired the "President" before he had qualified.

Johnson a Fighter; President Is Not

A contest, whether Johnson is a candidate himself or not, between the Senator and the President, would not be conducive to the President's triumph. For Johnson is a fighter and the President is not; Johnson is forcefully articulate and the President at times is strangely inarticulate; Johnson is fighting now against the subordination of American to European interests, and the President, blissfully oblivious to conditions here, is bending every effort to help Europe by transferring the billions of European debts from the backs of Europeans who got the money to the backs of American taxpayers who loaned the money. Nationally that is not entirely to the advantage of the President in a fight.

State's Pride Backs Johnson in Fight

The reaction of the nation to such a contest as that between the President and Johnson is [illegible] to be one of wonderment that a Senator would dare to endanger his political life by fighting the President in his own State. The answer to that is that to Californians, California is more the State of Hiram Johnson than of Herbert Hoover. The Senator was born in California, has lived there all his life, participated in the civic duties of a citizen, and as far back as 1912 his was a household name in the State when the name of the President was scarcely known at all. It was scarcely known because he had lived during the greater part of his life in Europe, had not so much as voted, and knew so little of public affairs in America that in the Spring of 1920 he had no notion to which party he belonged. As far as State pride goes it operates for Johnson. If he were a candidate against the President in a preferential primary in California he would sweep the State. Jeering at Johnson is not an especially intelligent indoor sport.
